State Monopoly in Liquor Business Proposed

Many Measures Brought Before the Legislature to Cover Liquor Control-Local Option.

In the flood of house bills introduced Friday was one by Richards giving to the state a monopoly, not alone in the liquor business but in the business of selling beer, wines and other drinks, all profits to the state general fund to be used as replacement for benefit of payers of real estate tax.

The measure, unlike four previous liquor control bills, is short. It carries local option and sets up a state liquor commission. It proposes an appropriation of $200,000.

Old H. R. 510, much discussed and disputed 20 percent county salary reduction bill of two years ago, has reappeared under new number and with Vogt as introducer. It strikes at salaries of more than $1,000, same as the bill two years ago which passed both houses but was vetoed by the governor.

Haycock, Burr and Barnes introduced a bill extending from 64 to 70 years retirement age for the Nebraska adjutant general now reported to be 63. It would permit his continuation as head of the military department for seven years. General

Paul was appointed about 16 years ago.

A bill proposing to perpetuate names of members of this 50th session was introduced by Nickles of Cass. It provides for an appropriation, left blank, for placement of bronze tablets in legislative halls upon which shall be engraved names of officers and members of this session. A measure by Sullenberger provides that taxes on personal property shall be a lien from an after date of assessment. Another bill pumped from the busy hopper Friday contains the state FERA set-up as proposed in model sent out to the several states from Washington.

Representatives Hyde, Schroeder, Hastings and others sponsor a bill providing for a comprehensive coordination of the public welfare program, representing various groups of civic and industrial groups. Disbursement of public relief funds may be administered thru the department created and into which existing boards and flexible enough, it is claimed, to assume additional services as well as meeting the present emergency. A nonpay, nonpartisan commission is to administer the act, and the plan is set up with the idea of avoiding duplication. For that reason the bureau of health, labor and social service are brought under its provisions, as also child welfare.

Nebraska Deaf Down Platters by 24 to 18 Score

Game Hotly Contested and Repeatedly Tied Until Last Few Moments of Hectic Battle.

From Saturday's Daily
The Nebraska School for the Deaf of Omaha, which had won six and lost five of their games in the season, last evening chalked up their seventh win in which they took the blue and white Platters by the score of 24 to 18.

The game was a see-saw from the first quarter and neither team held the lead for a long period until a scoring rally by the NSD netted them a margin too wide for the locals to threaten.

In the opening quarter Hendrix and Wooster each registered to secure four points while the visitors were annexing five.

The second period saw the two teams show much fire as the visitors fought to hold their narrow lead against the efforts of the local sharpshooters and at the end of the period the score was 10 allie.

Hendrix brought the Platter total to 12 at the opening of the third but the visitors came back to tie up the score when an under basket shot by Wooster gave the Platters a two point lead that was wiped out in the next few seconds for a 14 allie tie at the close of the period.

When the fourth period opened Nebraska Deaf advanced their score to 16 which was tied by Cotner a few moments later with a well placed shot from the side. Visions of victory came when Wooster sank a field goal to place the locals in the lead and with the game fading fast away. The Nebraska Deaf, however, started a rally that netted them three field goals and with the game in seconds the desperate efforts of the Platters to secure at least a tie was fruitless and the visitors retired victorious.

The floor work of the visitors was excellent and they carried plenty of fight in the rangy five that was used throughout practically the entire game.

Hendrix was the chief scorer for the Platters who had many chances at the basket but were unable to make the ball stick as it rolled around the hoop only to fall scoreless.

SAY GIRL FATALLY KICKED

Vale, Ore.—Spurred by public indignation, officials launched an inquiry to determine whether Phillis Westfall, 9, had been fatally kicked by small boys. Deputy Sheriff Leavitt said the girl was tormented by four boys of her own age on her way home from school Jan. 9.

When she was almost home they began to kick her, he said. In terror she rushed back to the school yard. Her mother, critically ill, saw the girl's plight but was unable to go to her rescue. About a week later the girl became seriously ill, was removed to a hospital where she sank into a coma and died a few days later.

Dr. Charles Palmer, Ontario surgeon who attended her, said a blow she received on the abdomen could have caused her death. He said he found indications of catarrhal jaundice, but suggested a post-mortem examination.

Million Seedling Trees are Requested

Cherry County Farmers Alone Ask for 23,000 to Plant—Douglas Second with 10,400.

Applications for Clarke-McNary seedlings and transplants distributed thru the agricultural college extension service this week totaled more than a quarter million, Earl G. Maxwell, state extension forester, says. More than a million trees will probably be ordered before the application deadline is reached.

Cherry county farmers continue to show the most interest in the tree planting program. They have applied for 23,000 trees to be planted for windbreak or woodlot purposes this spring. Douglas county stands second with 10,400 trees applied for. Butler with 7,700 is third. Other counties showing unusual interest in the tree planting are Howard, Adams, Dawson, Jefferson, Valley, Phelps, Nemaha, Lancaster, Fillmore and Holt.

Broadleaf and evergreen varieties are again available to all Nebraska farmers. The latter trees are grown on the national forest at Halsey and will be shipped from that point this spring, while the broadleaf trees are in storage at Fremont. Last year 1,125,000 such seedlings and transplants were distributed to Nebraska farmers thru the extension service and its agricultural agents.

SENATE VOTES FOR INQUIRY

Washington.—An investigation of the government's land and water policies was ordered by the senate. The inquiry was authorized in a resolution introduced by Senator O'Mahoney and approved by the senate without debate. The resolution authorized an appropriation of $5,000 to finance the inquiry by a special committee.

The committee was directed to "make a survey and study of all land and water policies and projects of the several executive agencies and establishments of the government and to report to the senate, as soon as practicable, the results of its survey, together with its recommendation for necessary legislation."

River Work at Mouth of Platte is Picking Up

Kansas City Bridge Co. Calls for Additional Fores and Quarries Start Operations.

The Kansas City Bridge company, contractors on the reversion work along the Platte river north of this city, Friday started a larger force on the job and made call for thirty-five workmen who were supplied by the local re-employment office.

The company is moving their land driver today from the north side of the Platte to the scene of operation on the south, making four of the land drivers that are now in service on the scene of activity. The land driver is being moved by the McMaken Transfer Co., to the scene of activity and will be ready for service at once.

Fifty car loads of material have been ordered sent to the scene of the work and twenty-four of these are now on the siding of the company and ready to be unloaded at the scene of construction.

With the opening of this line of river work the local re-employment office has received word that sixty-one had been placed at work in the Jasper quarries at Weeping Water, where stone is being quarried out for shipment to other points where river and construction work is in progress. The Pickens quarry of this place is also taking on additional forces as they will be called on to supply a great deal of the stone used in this section of the river program.

The work on the Farney project here is still closed down until the opening of the river when their activities can again be started.

Second Corn-Hog Program is Being Told to Farmers

More Freedom in Use of Acreage Is Feature of New Contract—Preliminary Meetings.

Details of the 1935 corn-hog program are being explained to Nebraska farmers in practically every county this week, as preliminary educational meetings get under way. Applications for contracts are being signed in a few counties.

District conferences with allotment committee members and agricultural agents at twelve points opened the 1935 program. Elton Lux and M. N. Lawritson of the state AAA office, together with district supervisors, were in charge.

The corn-hog program is designed to adjust probable production to probable demand and to prevent, if possible, a series of violent ups and downs in corn and hog production and prices. Lux told those in the conference. The normal tendency after a dry year is for increased acreage and production of corn. Livestock numbers are so low there will be less demand for corn next fall.

Farmers in the drouth territory without feed and breeding stock will be slow to recover from the drouth. By the time they have corn and hogs to market, the allotment committee members were told, everyone will be "back in the game" and prices, without some adjustment, would probably be low.

The new 1935 contract calls for an adjustment of 10 percent below the corn acreage base and the hog base establishment for 1932-33. Signers can take up to 30 percent of their corn base and get corn benefit payments for it. There are no contracted acres, and signers can use the land taken out of corn for any other crop. They may also increase the acreage under the plow if they wish.

Something to Look Forward to—on the Beaches

Some idea of what the bathing girls will be wearing—and, ahem, leaving off—on the beaches next summer might be gained from this layout, showing the latest styles in beach attire. Left, Miss Irene Colman, erstwhile film beauty, clad in her backless knit suit; right, Loretta Neuberger, modeling a shorts outfit, fashioned after the bandanas worn by natives in the Caribbean regions; below, Ethel Farrell showing her suit made of lace—no fooling. Oh, boy!
