

Film Success Causing Break?

Hollywood has been rocked by rumors of a pending break in the domestic ties of Norman Foster, screen actor, and his pretty wife, Claudette Colbert, movie star. Observers in cinemaland attribute the strained relations of the noted couple to the fact Miss Colbert's success in motion pictures has been far greater than that of her husband.

FERA Grant is About One Third of Sum Asked

Relief Administrator Hopkins Says When Congress Acts, More May Be Allotted.

Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins Thursday advised officials at state relief headquarters at Lincoln that Nebraska was granted a partial allotment of $581,000 for February relief work, approximately one-third of the amount requested. The grant received in January was $1,761,150 and Administrator Haynes had asked for $1,509,466 in his budget for February. Officials said the partial allotment was due to a lack of funds at Washington and indicated that if congress appropriates more money, additional grants to Nebraska may be made for the remainder of the month.

Hopkins notified the relief headquarters that $200,000 of the February grant is earmarked for general relief, $350,000 for drought relief and $17,000 for transient care. No funds for special programs were available at present.

Haynes sent word from Washington that Frank Throop of Lincoln, chairman of the state relief committee, has called a meeting of the group for next Tuesday in Lincoln. A Nebraska delegation including Haynes, Throop, State Senator John S. Callan of Odell, Rep. George E. Nickles of Murray, is now in Washington and is expected to return late this week.

The $1,509,466 Haynes requested for Nebraska in February was divided in his budget as follows: General relief, $913,476; transient relief, $51,267; drought relief, $261,528; rural rehabilitation $140,995; emergency education, $22,700; student aid, $19,500.

Following announcement of the reduced February grant, relief officials here revealed that the "case load" in Nebraska is increasing steadily and that the peak is expected in March. Harry D. Elmore, state director of the FERA relief division, said:

"Last week our case load was increased by 978 families, while the week before it increased 1,037 with an increase of about the same number during the week that preceded. This brings our present case load up to 48,697, which means that one out of every five persons in Nebraska is receiving federal relief.

"Suit for $21,600.00 damages was filed in District Court by Nathan Zolot against John G. Junker, Ed Kenning, Walter Junker and Junker Brothers on account of an automobile collision, two miles south of Lincoln." —State Journal.

For Uniformity in the Extradition Laws of Nation

Nebraska House Advances Measure in Force in Other States—Declines to Amend.

After sidetracking several proposed amendments, the house Friday, in committee of the whole, advanced to third reading H. R. 65, Hanthorn uniform extradition bill following laws in force in a dozen other states. Adams, member of the Omaha delegation, tried unsuccessfully to insert in several places an amendment providing that a person in this state charged with crime in some other state shall not be subject to extradition unless the offense also is defined as crime under the laws of this state.

Hanthorn and others opposed any such tinkering with the bill, on the theory that since it is a reciprocal bill, the reciprocity feature should not be endangered. Adams explained that what he proposed to do is already part of the existing law. One argument against his proposal was that difficulties might arise as between wet and dry bordering states. Final verdict was to respect the laws of the sister states as well as those of Nebraska.

Steele tried to amend the mileage feature for officers on extradition business. The bill allows maximum of 5 cents per mile. Steele proposed that where it is more economical to go by auto, the maximum be 8 cents, otherwise actual cost. He said the western counties pay small wages to their sheriffs and the latter cover many miles for which they receive no pay. Lack of train service, he added, at times makes auto travel advantageous. His proposal was smothered. Hanthorn reminded that under the terms of the bill where the crime is punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, the state and not the county shall foot the expense of extradition.

The committee on education reported for indefinite postponement H. R. 184, providing that where children are transported more than three miles to school, the charge shall be 5 cents for each quarter mile instead of each half mile traveled, for each family per day. Revenue and taxation committee killed H. R. 119, providing that the value of real estate in excess of the value of any mortgage taxed to mortgagor shall be assessed and taxed to the mortgagor or owners.

Privileges and election reported out to general file H. R. 221, with amendments. The bill provides that nothing shall prevent a defeated candidate from becoming the candidate of his political party for the office for which he shall have been defeated if he shall, have been defeated if he shall, by the campaign committee of his party, be selected to fill vacancy on the ballot at the general election. The committee struck the provision that candidate receiving next highest vote at the primary shall be eligible to fill vacancy.

Washington.—The postoffice department evidenced no opposition to the proposal of President Roosevelt and his special aviation commission that control of air mail rates be turned over to the interstate commerce commission. Postmaster General Farley, who now controls the rates, declined comment.

From Harlee Branch, his second assistant postmaster general, came assurance that the department would not oppose the transfer of authority, especially as it might apply to cases in which rates under present contracts are considered unreasonably low. Branch said, however, that air mail contractors should be required to carry out their present written agreements.

ENTER GOWN SHOP TRADE

New York.—The Sonia gown shop, managed for fifteen years by Sonia and Abraham Rosenberg, acquired two new partners—the glamorous Morgan twins, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt and Lady Thelma Furness.

By 2 o'clock, the two socially prominent sisters had finished luncheon at the Colony club, and walked up the newly painted staircase to the display room where they put in their first afternoon's work explaining why they had gone into the dress business.

"We've known Sonia for years, she's always dressed both of us," they said. "We're going into this very seriously," said Gloria. "We will run a plain, ordinary dress-making shop. We hope to have the prettiest dresses in New York and to make a great success of it. This isn't a society thing, it's purely business."

Would they keep regular hours, 9 to 5? The two women looked slightly taken aback.

"We're not becoming working women," said Lady Furness. "We are in this because we are interested in clothes."

Missouri River Advocates Address Pres. Roosevelt

Group of Western Leaders and Senators Present Cause of River Improvement Work.

With President Roosevelt's attitude on further Missouri river navigation development suddenly cast in doubt by his statement that a single agency should control all forms of transportation, advocates of the project Friday carried their appeal for expediting channel work directly to the White House.

President Roosevelt received the delegation cordially and conferred for half an hour. At the close, he indicated that he would ask a report from army engineers on progress of work already done before deciding whether to direct the use of PWA funds to finish the channel to Sioux City by 1936 instead of 1938.

Delegates "Encouraged."
Although the delegates were "encouraged," and voiced the belief that the president had been won to their cause, they received no assurance that the requested $5 million dollars would be granted.

The president's decision to ask a report from army engineers pleased them, because they are confident the engineers want the project pushed. The engineers have given assurance that all the proposed work could be contracted within a short time, that five million dollars would be spent before June 1, thus putting to work many idle men and much idle equipment.

Favors Unified Control.
Doubt as to the president's attitude has arisen as a result of his statement favoring a single governmental agency to regulate the railroads and other competitors, including the Inland Waterways corporation. This statement followed the report of the national resources board, which emphasized water development for power, flood control and conversion of natural resources, rather than for navigation.

Encouraging reports, however, emanate from the war department. Secretary Dern desires to carry forward with the Missouri river program and does not believe that efforts to rehabilitate the rail carriers should injure waterway development.

Eastman Report Cited.
In contrast, the recent Eastman report recommended that no federal action be taken that "would impede the general development of transportation," apparently meaning the railroads.

Members of the delegation included Senators Burke of Nebraska, Norbeck of South Dakota, Frazier of North Dakota and Murphy of Iowa; former Governor Arthur J. Weaver of Nebraska, Mayor Hayes, L. C. Wrench and W. S. Gilman of Sioux City, and C. C. George and C. E. Childs of Omaha.

Every penny spent for advertising will yield a big return.

Mrs. Roy Cochran, wife of the governor, is one of the most enthusiastic boosters of the million-dollar National Flower and Garden Show to be held in Omaha beginning March 30.

Here the first lady of Nebraska is shown receiving a bouquet of flowers at her home in Lincoln from Mrs. Adolph Sachs (right) and Mrs. Harvey E. Newbranch of Omaha, active show boosters.

Mrs. Roy Cochran, Nebraska's first lady, is one of the most enthusiastic sponsors of the National Flower and Garden Show to be held in Omaha, March 30 to April 7.

"I am indeed delighted to be asked to take part in sponsoring such a magnificent project," she told a delegation of Omaha women when they called on her at the governor's mansion in Lincoln. I have attended other garden shows but, of course, they could not be compared with the national show that is coming to Nebraska this spring.

"I shall do all in my power to further the interests of the national show, not only in Lincoln but throughout the state. I want to urge that all of Nebraska make a sincere effort to attend the great event, which is of such universal interest to our state."

The show will bring to the mid-west for the first time in history flowers and garden products valued at more than a million dollars. There will be keen competition for the $25,000 in cash prizes to be offered.

Fifty thousand advance tickets are now being sold throughout the Missouri Valley at the reduced price of 45 cents. When this allotment is disposed of, the regular price of 65 cents per ticket will become effective.

Antarctica—World Playground of the Future?

Sir Douglas Mawson, famous explorer, predicts that the Antarctic, the lower tip of the world that one visualizes as a barren area of waste, ice bergs and polar bears, is the resort of the future. He believes that steamer cruises through the pack ice and winter sports near the South Pole will be pleasures everyone soon will have an opportunity to enjoy. Besides its possibilities as a resort, he also sees the Antarctic as a commercial center for fur farming and perhaps gold mining.
