SHOWS FINE IMPROVEMENT

The reports from the St. Catherine's hospital at Omaha are to the effect that Hillard Grassman of this city, who has been here since Sunday under treatment, is showing a fine gain. Mr. Grassman was very ill when taken to the hospital and for the first two days his condition was considered grave, but he has now rallied and is thought to be well on the way to definite improvement.

Activities of City are Now Fully Resumed

With Clearing Up of Health Condition There Is Resumption of All Public Gatherings.

"Happy Days are Here Again," as all of the activities of the city in social and public gatherings are fully resumed and the community now back in normal activities after two weeks.

The result of the moves of the board of health to check any contagious disease has been most happy and the past two weeks has seen the cutting of any new cases of serious contagious disease in the community or near this city.

The schools are now operating at their normal attendance with an occasional absence due to colds, but fortunately the pupils have not suffered in the past weeks from anything more serious than childish maladies, the school authorities taking care of the situation in fine shape and with full control of the health situation as far as the health of the children are concerned.

There has been two weeks since any dangerous contagion has appeared and the city is now apparently free of any cause of serious worry as far as contagion is concerned.

Avoca Loses in Class 'B' Finals at Falls City

Defeated by Elk Creek by the Score of 23 to 19 in Finals of the Regional Tournament.

Cass county basketball fans were disappointed Friday when the crack Avoca quintet that has finished a three year undefeated record in their scheduled games, was overpowered by the Elk Creek five.

The elimination of Plattsmouth and Avoca in the regionals gives the only Cass county bet left for the state meet in Murdock, who plays at the Lincoln regional meet tonight in class B.

Coach Larson has had very successful teams at Avoca in recent years and last year were among the serious contenders for the class B crown at the state tournament.

The box score of the final at Falls City was as follows:

SLAYING IS SAID ADMITTED

Sulphur Springs, Tex., March 7—Cherif Reneau said Clinton Palmer, arrested here for the killing a year ago of a man near Sulphur Springs, had admitted the slaying of William E. Oliver in a Utah range feud. The Hopkins county sheriff said Palmer, who returned to this section Monday night, made an oral statement to him in which he told of range troubles leading up to the shooting.

Sherif Reneau said Utah authorities informed him Palmer, known in Utah under the name of James C. Palmer, had been charged with murder for the killing of Oliver, 70, and also for Oliver's grandson, Norris Shumway, 24. Palmer, well known in Hopkins county, is under indictment for the killing of Dillard Garrett near Sulphur Springs last April 16. Garrett's skeleton was found last December 29.

INSULL'S JURY COMPLETED

Chicago.—A white collar jury, completed Tuesday, heard state and defense versions of the transaction for which the prosecution hopes to convict Samuel Insull of embezzlement. The defendant looked on dejectedly while both sides made their opening statements about the $66,000 deal.

Assistant State's Attorney O'Hara declared he would prove Insull, then chief of a huge power empire, directed removal of the money from the treasury of Middle West Utilities company, headed by his brother, Martin Insull, to bolster the latter's market accounts.

Floyd E. Thompson, attorney who successfully defended Samuel Insull in his 100 million dollar fraud trial last fall, predicted the state will never prove its case. He said the defendant will give the fully story of his life and business ventures as his own star witness. He added: "Samuel Insull will testify and will tell of the transaction as it took place. He will tell you that he borrowed 7 million dollars of his private fortunes in his efforts to save his companies."

RETURNS FROM HOSPITAL

Mrs. Hamilton Mark, who has been at an Omaha hospital for the past several days, recovering from the effects of an operation, has so far recovered that she was able to return home Thursday evening. Mrs. Mark is still quite weak from the effects of the ordeal that she has been through but it is anticipated that she will soon be on the highway to recovery.

American Police Records Compare Well with Others

Investigation Shows That American Arrests and Punishments Hold Place With Others.

New York, N. Y.—The vaunted superiority of the British police over that of the United States in bringing murderers to justice does not appear so great percentage-wise, when convictions for homicides in the two countries are compared. The police had knowledge of 489 homicides in New York City in 1931. During the same year in England and Wales, the authorities had knowledge of 290 homicides. The percentage of convictions was 33 in Great Britain and 22 in New York. But although the percentage of convictions in Great Britain was 11 higher than in New York, it was nevertheless lower in ten other large American cities by about the same amount.

This is according to Dr. Louis I. Dublin, third vice-president and statistician of one of the leading insurance companies and Miss Bessie Buzel, of the insurance company's statistical bureau, in "Thou Shalt Not Kill," a study of homicides in the United States in the current number of the Survey Graphic.

The survey on homicides shows dissimilarity in the police methods of the two nations. The most striking difference was in the number of suspects taken into custody. In New York 54 per cent of those proceeded against were discharged or acquitted, while this percentage for Britain was 39. Capital punishment, the survey shows, was not carried out more frequently in Britain than in New York, as is generally supposed. In fact, the reverse was true. Death sentences were imposed on 30 persons, or 28 per cent of those found guilty in New York City, as contrasted with 18 persons, or 19 per cent in Britain. In both countries the guilty person paid for his crime with his life in only 6 per cent of the cases known to the authorities.

More than 11,000 persons, or 9.2 out of every 100,000 of population, are victims of homicide in the United States each year, according to this survey. Furthermore, the rate is steadily increasing. The report says "Such huge wastage of human life is the more acute symptom of a deeply rooted national lawlessness which reflects our historical backgrounds, racial mixtures, industrial conflicts, limited educational system, and many other factors in our social organization."

The contrast of deaths by violence in the United States in comparison with European countries is brought out in the survey, which says: "The Netherlands has the best homicide record in Europe; during the five-year period 1926-1930, an average of only three persons out of every million in the population were killed. Our rate was 29 times as high. It was 18 times that of England and Wales and of Scotland. In no region in the British Empire did the rate approach that of the United States. Our figure is more than three times that of Italy, which has the highest rate in Europe; it is about four and one-half times that of Belgium and Germany; and five and one-half times that of Switzerland."

Pointing out that age and sex as well as race are significant factors in the homicide rate, the survey says: "As a cause of death, homicide involves men far more frequently than women. In 1932, 8646 men and 2076 women were slain in the United States, exclusive of Texas. In the early years of life the homicide rates are very small for both sexes and approximately equal. After age 15, however, the begin to diverge widely and at ages 15 to 19, the male rate is twice the female rate among the white population.

"The highest homicide rates occur in early adult life, reaching a peak in the age group 25 to 34 years among males and 20 to 24 among females. Among white males the rate stays above 10 per 100,000 at all ages between 20 and 54."

The variation, in different parts of the country, in the percentage of those convicted for murder and manslaughter is reported as follows: "Taking the number of such crimes known to the police as a base, investigation showed that convictions reached the high mark of almost 60 per cent in Baltimore and Detroit and the low point of 20 per cent in Chicago and New York. Excluding these two, which have rather special conditions, convictions in 10 large cities averaged 43 per cent during a recent year. To this number must be added the cases that are pending, some of which will undoubtedly be ultimately declared guilty. There is much room for improvement in the efficiency of our police departments and in our legal machinery.

The fact that the high homicide rate in this country may be due, in part to the fact that the murderer in many instances goes scot free, is borne out to a certain degree by the study. It says: "In 611 cases of homicide investigated by us, 86 persons had been killed by officers of the law while resisting arrest or while engaged in committing a crime, 54 assailants committed suicide and 13 died before arraignment. This left 458 assailants answerable to the law. Of these, 13 per cent had not been apprehended one year after the act; 108 were released for lack of evidence; 8 were declared insane; and 258 or 56 per cent, were actually brought to trial; one quarter of these were acquitted, and 9 cases were pending twelve months after the slaying."

"Only 43 per cent of the 458 who should have been prosecuted were actually declared guilty; 8 were sentenced to death and 170 to prison terms of varying length, and 9 were released either with suspended sentences or upon payment of a fine."

URGES MUNICIPAL GARDEN

The recent snow should remind us of the fact that this winter isn't over and that another, one isn't so far ahead of us. The chances are that next winter will be fully as bad, if not worse, as far as the weather and people are concerned. And right now instead of next fall, is the time to prepare to meet another emergency which is sure to be.

A community truck farm is one project which should not be passed up, for here is something that when managed right, under normal conditions, will be self-supporting, relieve suffering and save the county many dollars. At the same time it would give people something to do, that will fill their jars and cellars with vegetables that will be of some importance to all who are interested in the welfare of our community. With 40 acres of good land properly handled will furnish garden produce for 100 families for the canning and storing for next winter and take care of the rent, seed, etc., providing the good Lord sees fit to furnish us with moisture.
