Jefferson D. Cross

Jefferson D. Cross was born in Virginia more than seventy years ago, and came to Nebraska and Cass county when he was a young man, having lived in Cass county, where the family was raised and where he has made many friends. By dint of hard work on the farm he accumulated sufficient to provide a good home in town as well as assist his sons in their start in life as farmers, they locating in Colorado.

Not content to sit down and fold his hands when he came to town, he became an employe of the Union telephone company, continuing in that capacity for a number of years. As he neared man's allotted three score years and ten, he found the work a bit too strenuous and allowed the task to pass to other hands. Of a genial social disposition, he entered into the sports of his fellow friends and became a very proficient horseshoe player, as that was the popular sport here during the past six or eight years. His kindly disposition and social ways will be missed in Union, for the business circle, the church work and his many friends with whom he has heretofore mingled. A more complete account of his life and funeral will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Apple Blossom Time

The orchard of W. B. Banning, located at the intersection of the highways just east of town has been a scene of rare beauty during the past few days and has been viewed by a large number of people, many of whom came from quite a distance to see the hundreds of trees in full bloom and giving off the fragrance of apple blossoms. Among them were a number from our neighboring states of Iowa and Kansas.

Mr. Banning has put in a number of years of hard work bringing this orchard into its present high state of production, proving beyond doubt that this section of country is adapted to the raising of fine apples and that it can be done on a paying basis. The prospects for a good crop this year are very bright.

With the orchard in bloom, the work has just begun, however, as it will be necessary to spray the trees frequently before the time comes to harvest the crop, and that, too, is a lot of work.

Mr. Benning well deserves the success that has come to him in this venture—for it was little short of a venture when he set out the trees a good number of years ago and took valuable land out of production to bide the time when it might yield a return commensurate with the money and labor expended in growing the orchard.

Guests of Avoca Woman's Club

It was guest day at the Avoca Woman's club on Monday, and the Union Woman's club, having been honored by an invitation to attend a tea given at the church on the afternoon of that day, eleven of its members availed themselves of this opportunity to enjoy the hospitality of this very wide-awake club, a pleasant memory of which lingered with them from the convention of last fall.

At the close of the business session conducted by the efficient president, Miss Straub, a clever and entertaining program was presented, with excellent music furnished by some members of the club and the high school orchestra, demonstrating that Avoca has some fine musical talent which is being developed.

At the close of the program, refreshments were served in the basement of the church, where the social spirit was much in evidence, and all enjoyed greatly the get-acquainted hour spent over the teacups.

The high cultural standards of this club and their cordial reception will long be remembered by those of the Union club who were privileged to attend the tea. Those in attendance were: Mesdames D. Ray Frans, president; B. N. Kunkel, W. B. Banning, R. E. Foster, P. F. Rihn, Chas. Greene, Ida Roddy, Lawrence Meisinger, Ivan Balfour and Fannie Eikenbary and Miss Augusta Robb.
