To Honor Hog as Nebraska Farm Mortgage Lifter

Experimental Stock on Display as Phases of Rehabilitation Is Discussed.

The hog, known in years previous as the mortgage lifter and seemingly on his way back to earn that title again, is going to have his day at the college of agriculture at Lincoln Friday, Oct. 11.

Prof. William J. Loeffel of the animal husbandry department has announced the program for the annual "Rooter's Day." The session gets under way at 9:15 in the morning and closes promptly at 3:30 p. m.

Prof. H. J. Gramlich, chairman of the animal husbandry department, will preside over the meeting in the student activities building. Walter Tolman opens the speaking program with a talk about, "The pig club as an aid in rehabilitating the swine industry." W. W. Derrick will speak next. Prof. M. A. Alexander is to answer the question of whether or not a farm flock of sheep is practical in the eastern Nebraska.

Farmers attending will hear M. L. Baker of North Platte experiment station discuss the feeding of small grains. Prof. H. C. Filley is to present the outlook for the hog man. Dr. S. W. Alford will appear before another Rooter's Day in discussing disease prevention. E. R. Thalman winds up the morning program, talking beef problems.

Experimental livestock at the college will be on exhibition during the noon hour. Dean Burr will open the afternoon session with a short address of welcome. Miss Inez W. Willson of the national livestock meat board will talk about, "Satisfying Our Customers." The only out state speaker on the program will be W. E. Carroll of the University of Illinois. He will tell of investigations with breeding hogs. Prof. W. J. Loeffel then speaks about hog feeding experiments conducted in past years at the Nebraska station. Professor Gramlich winds up the program with a short address entitled, "It Seems To Me."

ed into the rear end of the government truck. It happened there was a five gallon can of gasoline in the rear of the government truck and this was spilled from the hole in the can, making a ribbon of gasoline along the pavement up Main street as the trucks proceeded. Quickly the gas became ignited and soon the pavement became a stretch of flames.

Elmer Withrow grabbed a fire extinguisher at the elevator and was later joined by Ray Becker with another from his station, but they were unable to make much headway against the burning gasoline. Then Elmer hastened into the office and asked central to sound the fire alarm, which soon brought the fire fighters to the scene. It was not long after that before the fire was out, but for a short time the excitement was as intense as that of a world series baseball game. The rear truck was damaged somewhat, but no one injured.
