Husked Corn in the North

Howard and Walter Rasmussen, who have been in the northern Iowa, where they have been picking corn, completed their work there and returned home last Sunday. They tell of the corn crop up that way being very good and yielding from 60 to 70 bushels to the acre, in some instances going as high as 80 bushels. They say the weather was very cold there, going as low as 29 below, with a large amount of snow on the ground. They were brought home by Carl Mogenssen, a cousin, who drove the boys down in his car and is remaining for an over the holiday visit with friends here.

Files for Legislation

With a perfect record as a legislator, having served in the senate last term and a record without a blemish, Fred L. Carsten of near Avoca after having been urged by a host of friends of good government has finally agreed to file for the representative of Cass and Sarpy counties in the one house legislature.

On last Monday he was in Plattsburgh and filed with the county and then went to Lincoln where he made his filing with the secretary of state. Mr. Carsten is not a seeker after office, but as he has served and made an exceptionally good officer and being well acquainted with the manner of enacting laws and having a clear head and a desire to do justice to all people whatever their race, religion or party affiliation, he stands in a place which will enable him to be of the very best of service to the people if elected. We are pleased that he has listened to the call of the people and allowed his name to come before the citizens for their consideration.

Celebrated Fiftieth Anniversary

James Philpot and Miss Elizabeth Dawson were married in Plattsburgh on December 22, 1885, they both being residents of Cass county at the time. The groom being a brother of Charles Philpot, and making his home near Weeping Water as well as was also the bride. They farmed near Weeping Water for a number of years but have been making their home near Gandy in the western part of this state, and on last Sunday, December 22 their friends and relatives to the number of 96 were at the celebration of the anniversary. Invitations were sent to friends and relatives in and near Weeping Water. Jack Philpot who was on his way to the west did not get the invitation, although the folks here did, and Mr. Philpot did arrive at Gandy as he had some business there and enjoyed the gathering which he describes as a very fine gathering. Mr. James Philpot was visiting with friends here a few weeks ago as well as looking after some business matters while here.

Family Dinner at E. Askew's

The home of E. Askew was one of merriment on last Wednesday where they entertained for the day and dinner and had as their guests for the occasion Ben Gibson and wife, of Weeping Water, Guy Buchanan and family of Nehawka, Luther Womack and family of Murray, W. L. Munson and family of northeast of town which made a very merry party and who were loud in their praise of the manner which they were entertained and the very good time they enjoyed as well as the excellent dinner.

WORK AT CROSS PURPOSES

Washington.—One federal bureau accused another of working at cross purposes with it in the name of relief. In his annual report to Secretary Wallace, Jay N. Darling, retired chief of the biological survey, found the effects of mosquito control and drainage projects "destructive" to wild life. In many instances, Darling said, "the work was done without proper consideration of wild life interests or adequate supervision, and valuable forms of wild life have suffered. Some of the most destructive results have occurred where good waterfowl areas were needlessly drained under the guise of mosquito control."

Plattsburgh offers opportunities unexcelled anywhere to small factories. Natural gas, low cost electricity, nominal living wages, splendid shipping facilities, etc., all combine to make this possible.

Women's Programs for Agriculture Week

Awards for Club Leadership Are to Be Made, and Distinguished Iowan to Speak.

Nebraska farm women will again have their own sectional home economics program at Organized Agriculture at the college of agriculture the first week in January, it was announced by W. H. Brokaw, director of agricultural extension service. Several store women will be honored for their leadership in extension project clubs as one feature of the program.

Collections of Tax on 1933 Incomes to Front

Report Shows That Nebraska Increase was for the Third Consecutive Year.

Washington.—Guy T. Helvering, internal revenue collector, reported individual income tax collections increased in Nebraska for 1933 for the third successive year. One income between $300,000 and $400,000 was reported and four between $150,000 and $200,000 for the only 1933 Nebraska incomes of more than $50,000. There were ten between $50,000 and $80,000, 47 between $25,000 and $50,000, 138 between $15,000 and $25,000, 267 between $10,000 and $15,000 and 1,363 between $5,000 and $10,000.

Helvering's annual report, made public Monday, showed the increase in individual income tax collections was in the face of fewer returns and smaller reported income. It was the third consecutive year also the tax on corporations in Nebraska showed an increase. A total of 4,473 income amounting to $9,813,000 and for which taxes aggregating $1,378,000 were paid.

There were 24,939 individual returns reporting net income of $65,022,543 on which taxes of $1,133,297 were paid compared with $970,563 in 1932, $723,426 in 1931 but $1,581,310 in 1930.

Helvering also reported 123 estate tax returns for which $449,000 in taxes was collected from gross estates of $16,345,000.

For 1933 in Nebraska, 1.79 percent of the population filed individual returns. The average tax per return was $45.44.

FOUNDATION GRANTS DROP

New York.—Donations of American foundations were cut by half during the 1930-34 period, but in spite of the depression, foundations were not compelled to draw upon their capital to "any great extent" to meet their obligations, the Twentieth Century fund reported. The report stated the total grants of the sixty-eight leading foundations for which comparable figures are available decreased 53 percent from 1930 to 1934. Trustees of the organization include Newton D. Baker, Edward A. Filene, Roscoe Pound, Oswald W. Knauth and A. A. Berle jr. The study revealed the disbursements of the ninety-five foundations which made complete returns totaled $24,211,598 in 1934, and the assets of the eighty-seven reporting assets were $701,676,268.
