LAND PUT ON TAX LIST

Board of educational lands and funds ordered 80 acres of Custer county school land put on the tax lists Tuesday, as the law permits it to do. The land is held by heirs of James Holcomb, who leased it in 1886, and instead of completing the purchase they have been keeping up 5 percent interest on the sum of $658 for the past fifty years. This was cheaper than paying taxes. They asked Commissioner Swanson for an extension of time but this was refused. The board approved his classification and reapportionment of state lands in Dundey, Hitchcock, Red Willow, Furnas and Harlan counties.

Receive Corn-Hog Checks.

About $120,000, representing the last payment of their 1935 corn-hog contracts, was distributed to Cass county farmers the past week. This amount covers the payment on about two-thirds of the contracts signed in the county. The balance of the checks will be received later.

4-H Club Camp in July.

A number of applications have already been received at the office from 4-H club boys and girls who plan to attend the annual 4-H club camp to be held at Brewster, one mile south of Omaha, July 26, 27, 28 and 29. Remember, the first 75 applications to be received are all that can be accepted, so get yours in early.

Four days packed full of fun awaits those who send in their application and the camp fee of $3.25. Special classes are conducted for those learning to swim, handicraft periods provide useful work for willing hands, while the playground is planned to accommodate them in their favorite sports, such as tennis, kittenball, volleyball, etc.

Cured Meats Tempting in Summer.

Summer is the big season for cured meats. We use them all the year round, but the summer demand is greater—perhaps because the flavor is more tempting to hot-weather appetites, certainly because they make such good cold cuts. Whatever the reason, most specialists tell us that much of the pork killed and dressed in winter is so processed to be just ready to "come out of smoke" when summer comes.

Perhaps then, we should pay particular attention to the cooking of cured meats. Fresh or cured, pork must always be cooked—and cooked thoroughly. Corned beef, too, is cooked, though dried beef often is not. In all cases, says the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, the cooking of cured meat is subject to the same general rule that governs the cooking of all meat and all other protein foods. Cook slowly. Otherwise the meat shrinks too much and gets hard and tough.

Most popular of the cured meats is ham—which is usually baked. Usually ham that is to be baked should be soaked beforehand, or else parboiled, to get rid of the too-salty taste. "Boiled ham" properly cooked, however, never is actually boiled. It is simmered, in water fully to cover it all the time, and with the lid partly on the kettle. The water should never reach the boiling point. Let it simmer for 25 or 30 minutes to the pound of ham, or until the meat is tender. Cool the ham in the liquor.

To bake ham, use the same rule of slow cooking. First, however, soak the ham overnight. In the morning, wipe it dry, and place it—rind-side up, on a rack in an open pan—no water and no cover. Keep the oven low (260 degrees F.). Baking as well as "boiling" requires 25 to 30 minutes per pound for a whole ham. For half hams, proportionately more time is necessary. Shank ends usually require from 40 to 45 minutes per pound, and butts from 45 to 55 minutes per pound to bake when the oven temperature is 260 degrees F.

The final touches give a baked ham an unusually tempting appearance. When the ham is done take the rind off and spread over the fat surface a mixture of brown sugar and fine soft breadcrumbs, with a little prepared mustard and cider, or vinegar for moistening. With this paste covering the ham, stick long-stemmed cloves an inch or so apart all over it. Or else score the fat with a knife, sprinkle with brown sugar and add thin slices of pineapple, or orange, with occasional preserved cherries or other decorative fruit. Then brown

ROGER DEAN LORENSEN

Roger Dean Lorensen was born at Manley June 27, 1925, and died on June 18, 1936, at the Bryan Memorial hospital in Lincoln, being 10 years, 11 months and 22 days old.

Surviving him are his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lorensen, two brothers, Kenneth and Donald, and a host of friends.

Roger spent his entire life in Manley, where he attended the school through the fifth grade. His pleasant ways and sunny disposition endeared him to those whom he met. He was sick only three days and his death came as a profound shock to the relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held on the Saturday following his death, at the home in Manley, conducted by Rev. J. B. Starkey, of Bloomington, Neb., who was assisted by Rev. J. A. Persell, pastor of the Mennonite church of Weeping Water.

The pallbearers were Harvey Bergman, Ernest Gruber, Bud Rhoden, Herman Fleming, Richard Dowler, Ralph Miller. His little friends and playmates formed a line of honor in the procession. Interment was in the Oakwood cemetery.

Mrs. Harold S. Baker and Miss Helen Lane sang several numbers, with Mrs. Melvin Rich at the organ.

Card of Thanks
We desire to extend our sincere thanks to all our friends and neighbors who by many acts of kindness ministered at the time and following the death of our son and brother, Roger. For the many floral tokens of love, to those who sang, and to the ministers who spoke kindly words of comfort at the funeral.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lorensen and Family, Manley, Nebr.

Bindweed Eradication.

That smother crop possess some possibilities in eradicating bindweed, Nebraska's worst weed pest, has been proved by Paul Scheer, of Reynolds, in Jefferson county. He uses a late seeding of cane together with following successfully.

"I have killed several patches of bindweed with cane," Scheer says. "It takes more than one year but it works. I like to drill the cane about the middle of June as early seeding is not successful."

Scheer followed the land for one season and then cross drilled a heavy seeding of cane at the rate of 2½ bushels per acre for two successive years. Broadcasting, he says, is not successful.

Agricultural Agent Victor Rediger, visited the Scheer farm and found no bindweed infestation. Experiments conducted by the Jefferson county farm bureau on the Claude Nider farm and by the University of Nebraska at York this year will throw further light on this method of eradication. Dr. F. D. Keim, Nebraska's foremost authority on bindweeds, says the plan has some merit.

ADMITS FORGED BOND SALE

Kansas City.—W. C. Kirkpatrick, Sioux City, Ia., one of 21 persons recently indicted in federal court in connection with an alleged swindle in forged Omaha municipal bonds, pleaded guilty in federal court here Tuesday. Judge Albert L. Reeves deferred sentence until October, when the other defendants will be tried at Springfield, Mo. Kirkpatrick was specifically charged with selling four bonds to a Sioux City broker.
