

Cook Reunion Draws Members to Cole Farm

Over Eighty Attend Twenty-third Annual Celebration Sunday—C. E. Cook President.

Over eighty attended the twenty-third annual Cook family reunion Sunday, August 30, at the home of Mrs. Caroline Cole. Enough tables were set in the shade of the maples that every guest was seated.

C. E. Cook was chosen as president at the business meeting following the dinner. Other officers selected were Roy O. Cole, vice president, and Mrs. Robert Patterson, secretary-treasurer. A. H. Weichel presided. The secretary's report showed seven new members added by birth to the family roll. They are: Judith Claire Cook, Clayton Carl Cole, Thomas Caawe, Barbara Anne Finkhouse, Ronald Vernon Jewitt, Darlene Johnson, and George Blessing. There have been three marriages and no deaths in the family during the past year. Newlyweds and babies were introduced to the relatives.

A program followed the business meeting. Beverly Jane Weichel gave a piano accordion selection. The request number "Stand Up for Jesus" was played by the Sherman Cole orchestra. The crowd arose in honor of the oldest living members of the family. The orchestra also played "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." "Rest for the Weary" was sung by the original members of the family who were present. They were Mrs. T. W. Valley, Mrs. Caroline Cole, C. E. and J. H. Cook, John F. and Phillip Cook were unable to be present.

The following poem telling the history of the Cook family, composed and read by May Hartman Dreamer at the reunion at the Will Cook home in 1920, was read by the secretary:

Famous Cooks of the World
I have such a good, generous husband
Who appreciates me all the time;
And for all the hard work I've done
For him—
Yesterday he gave me—"Just think"
—a dime.
Not wanting to spend it foolishly, I held very tight;
But temptation was too great, I went to the movie that night.
The crowds came from everywhere,
each fellow with his girl—
For it was advertised "THE FAMOUS COOKS OF THE WORLD."
I didn't get there any too soon; ere long the curtain raised,
And all that appeared on the screen
deserves everlasting praise.
Before my eyes, a scene so pictureesque and still—
A team of oxen and covered wagon
was moving down the hill.
Father Joe and Mother Mary and their children four—Bina, Jacob, Phil and George, were glad their journey was o'er.
They stopped close by the banks of old Four Mile creek,
And a log cabin was then built in less than a week;
It had just one room with a loft
over head,
Where the boys would throw pillows
at Bina when going to bed.
Little Mother Mary was scarcely settled in her western home,
When her thoughts would very often
go to old Ohio room;
But she had no time for pining, she had much to do—
For settlers began coming as the country was then quite new.
The doors were opened wide to every one chancing to pass that way;
There was room in the loft and on the floor for all who cared to stay.
On awakening next morning, they were greeted with her smile—
And the corn bread she baked strengthened them for many a mile.
The home was made cheery and very happy, I dare say;
For a smiling blue eyed Susan came
and made up her mind to stay.
Six years passed by between the scenes,
And then upon the screen the little
family appeared;
And Mollie, Lizzie and Lina are now
to be seen.
They were indeed a happy family,
what fun they did enjoy;
Father Joe was often caught playing with his girls and boys.
Bina, the oldest, helped her mother
in every single thing—
She had to wash, iron, cook, rock the cradle, and to the babies sing—
Jacob, the dignified, and eldest son of the lot,
Had to be very precise, whether he wanted to or not;
He went to Nebraska City to learn a thing or two—
But he didn't like their eats, so came back to mother's stew.
Phillip was quite a worry to dear
Bina's plump soul,
And often came up missing when his name was called in school;
But with these shortcomings he was always very kind,
For he dearly loved his mother and father all the time.
George was always the champion who looked out for his sisters four;
They all went to spelling school and had fun galore.
Blue eyed Susie with her winsome
ways and smile,

Was ever very happy and singing
all the while;
Her father had often said, "If I can just recall—
That she was the very fairest flower
of them all.
There were Mollie, Lizzie and Lina,
who never had a hat;
So their father went to town one day
saying "I'll not stand for that."
Little sister Lina went along, the youngest of the three—Became the boss of the hat, but shared it most cheerfully.
In the early days of learning the children went each day,
To the little red school house just
a mile away.
While changing of the scene, the orchestra struck up a popular air;
Home Sweet, Sweet Home! How
happy they are there.
When the curtain rose again there were ten years space between;
A new house had been built and Mother Mary was the queen, Four more boys are added to the group as the pictures show—
And now you gaze upon them, John,
Charley, Will and Joe.
And what those boys couldn't think of, I'll tell you that They did all kinds of stunts and were regular acrobats.
They went with all the pretty girls
for miles and miles around,
Still time to play pranks on brother
Phil was always found;
The cow was in the cellar, the boiler
set on the roof—
Gun powder in his pipe that made it go ka-ploof.
Most times he took it good natured,
and seldom ever frowned;
He said, "You'll never fool me again,
you crazy little hounds."
Time rolls on and on, as time will always do.
The boys went a courting and the girls had beaux too.
Marriage is a lottery, sometimes we get it in the neck—
They took the one they loved, without even a check.
Money mattered little in this time
of life,
Because they had each other and
were willing to face the strife.
Bina was a winsome lass, as every one had found;
A handsome black-eyed man, George Kitzel, came young—
From Nebraska City and claimed her
as his own;
They went west some thirty miles
to build them a little home.
To this happy union six children
came—wide awake and alert;
There was Minnie, Lula, Will, George
Oscar and little Bert.
When baby George just four years
old, left this old world of ours,
He left his little mother bowed down
in grief and sorrow.
She never forgot her little boy; he is held very still;
Her husband she buried beside him,
there upon the hill.
How happy she will be when this life's troubles are o'er,
And she will meet her dear ones on the other shore.
Jacob found his mate, Mary Johnson, he claimed Always gave him love and kindness
while with him she remained;
But one sad day the angels came
and bore her away—
Her sister came and helped care for her boys, so they say.
She was so devoted to every little
tot,
That Jacob soon found out he loved
her too, a lot.
So after much persuasion on Jacob's
active part,
He won this lovely lady, the queen
of his heart.
Eight fine boys she reared to manhood—
Which only a fond, kind, loving mother could.
Joe, Andy, Ed, Jim, Harry, Fred,
George and Dan—
They love her most devotedly, as only just, true men can.
There was another boy, Sammy, I've been told;
Who, when just a little boy, passed
into the heavenly fold.
Phillip went a-courting, as all boys
are apt to do;
And for his prize package, you can't guess what he drew.
Sarah, good old Sarah, Sarah Win-
scott, who by her fame
Helped her dear old Phil his wealth
to attain.
Now this happy family consists of children seven,
John, Bell, Adam, Minnie, George,
Eva and Forest—not quite eleven.
George chose for his bride a lady,
Abbie cook by name;
To this union three happy children came—Percy, Frank and Dottie, a little blue eyed tot,
Who always, as a little girl, loved
her dad a lot.
Jerry Hartman they say, came court-
ing Susie bright and fair;
She finally then decided with him
her life to share.
Five children came to bless this happy home—Lillie, Etta, May, Winfield and Robert, but the angels
came and bore Winnie away.
Susie, when twenty-seven, gave up
this earthly life—
She went to her home in Heaven,
where everything is bright.
She is not dead—her memory still lives in our hearts today;
Our darling, happy Susie, who always had kind words to say.
Now Mollie said to mother Mary, "To make me happy be,
I'll follow the path of matrimony,"
And so you'll soon see—
She selected the nicest little fellow
as ever could be found;
To my mind he is as fine a man as ever was around.
I might as well tell you, his name
is Billy Wheeler.

Pearl, Albert, Percy, Betty and Joe
were their children's names; Billy walked ten thousand miles when they were babes, he claimed.
But it made a man of him; he became a politician great;
And Mollie loved her Billy, she feels
it is her fate.
Lizzie, dashing Lizzie, says, "I won't
be left out;
I'll have a man by sun down, just watch what I'm about."
Walter Valley was so charmed by this handsome little miss,
That before any one knew it, he had planted a kiss
Upon her lips, and she became his happy little bride;
And to this day she is still by his side.
Six children came, Frank, Dula, Glen,
Lela, the little pet,
Charley and Marjory, the youngest of the set.
Lina was the last girl left and to herself she said,
"I'll not be an old maid!" And she married young instead.
Olin Cole was her choice, and a happy home she had,
The children came, two fine girls and
four sturdy lads;
Earl, Olive, Carl, Roy, Sherman and
Opal the youngest of the six,
Formed a merry group when the parents and children mix.
John, the oldest of the four younger set—
Keep an eye on him and see what he'll do next;
He ventured abroad in this great,
big wide world—
First thing you knew he too had a girl.
He chose the girl of his heart, her name is Molly Beines;
The whole family was so pleased,
for she was just fine.
Five children came to this happy
world.
Only one boy and four little girls;
Marie, James, Luella, Gladys and little Lorine—
A finer group of children are scarcely ever seen.
Charley was a jolly lad; Of years he was quite young,
When he went a-courting, just for a little fun.
But the first thing we knew, he was head and heels in love
With the very best of girls; we all loved Lillie Doud.
He led her to the altar, and she became his bride;
We congratulated Charles for he had won the country's pride.
Two little tots, Frank and Nell, came with them to roam—
When little Nell was but a babe, her mother went to her heavenly home.
Charley has a big heart and was surely blessed;
For he won another queen, who labored and cared for the rest.
Her name is Minnie Dreamer, and I tell you, she's no fake;
Although her name was "Dreamer,"
she is surely wide awake.
A little dark eyed baby came to them
one day;
Raymond said, "If you'll not object,
I think I'll stay."
Will, he had his failing; Of school
teachers he was most fond;
So he went to school many years;
In the meantime he said, "I'll look around!"
There was one who came to teach at the little red brick—
He fell so deeply in love, it nearly made him sick.
Lenora Perry, a very pretty name,
I'll claim;
But Will said, "She's worth more than all her pretty name;"
And to his great surprise, she promised to be his wife—
He has never regretted it all the rest of his life.
Orest, Wilma, Clarice and LeRoy
complete his happy home;
Where they are so contented, and scarcely care to roam.
Joe, the joker, of this glorious, happy
crowd,
Said boys, "I'll tell you a joke if you don't laugh too loud, I'm going to get married; she teaches piano for fun;
I'll tell you her name. It is little Mabel Young."
Nita and Francis, a little girl and boy,
Can't you bless this home, much to their parents' joy.
This completes the scene of the Cook
family and grandchildren too;
I'll not start in with the great-great grands, or I'll never get through.
Mother Mary and father Joe have been gone for many a year,
But to all our hearts today, their memory is more dear.
So let's love one another with a spirit kind and true;
I can hear dear mother Mary say
that's what we should do.
We have much to love and cherish,
you will also with me agree;
Come now, and with me join, in this grand jubilee.
