Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, September 20

By L. Neitzel, Murdock, Neb.

"Christian Living"

Rom. 12:1-3; 9-21.

In eleven chapters Paul has finished the doctrinal part; now he goes over to the practical. The great mercy of God shown in eleven chapters, calls for sacrifice of ourselves to do his will. (Vs. 1, 2).

The first eleven chapters of the Epistle to the Romans may be considered the most important single stone in the whole foundation of Christian thought. Upon this foundation Paul is about to build in the remaining chapters a superstructure depicting the proper conduct; the rich life that should mark everyone who, by faith, has become identified with Jesus Christ. The lesson verses cannot all be properly explained and taught in the mere half hour usually allotted to study of the Sunday school lesson, hence we must abbreviate and concentrate.

Verses 1 and 2 will take considerable time. The great mercies of God should be reason enough for any thinking man to make a great sacrifice to him—that is "reasonable." The "mercies of God" refer to all the promises enumerated in the preceding chapters. (Please read all of them). All that we have and enjoy through Jesus Christ, we have because "God is rich in mercy" (Eph. 2:4) and the apostle about to unfold before his readers an ideal of life that is loftier, holier, sweeter than that of the pagan world could ever dream of, wants it clearly understood that such a life does not "lead up to salvation" in Christ Jesus, but flows from a salvation already accepted in the human heart. "To present your bodies." Christianity does not condemn the body, but demands that the body shall be purified and united with Christ. Our members are to be instruments of righteousness unto God (6:13); they are to be members of Christ (1 Cor. 6:15); they are the temple of the Holy Spirit (1 Cor. 6:19). We are to be pure both in body and in spirit (1 Cor. 7:14). To "present" means to set aside, give over to a special purpose, "a living sacrifice." This in contrast to the dead sacrifices of slain animals presented in the temple. Our sacrifice has to do with our daily life.

No one can indulge in bad habits, abuse his body, and be a whole-hearted Christian; that is "unreasonable," and God will not accept such service. No clean soul lives in a filthy body.

With this living sacrifice goes the separation from the fashions of the world. It is a sad spectacle that today the Christians cannot be distinguished from the non-Christians. They seem to feel at home in the counsel of the ungodly (Psalm 1:1), standing in the way of sinners and sitting in the seat of the scornful.

The old orthodox Jew could not be persuaded to lower the dignity of his religion (read Psalm 127:1-7), but our generation does. The movies and theatres are crowded with church members and pay a premium for front seats; while the churches have only a sprinkling of the members present at the services and all get as far away from the preacher as they can. "Be not fashioned according to this world" should be inscribed on the walls in the church in flaming letters not unlike the bright red of the Neon signs that are seen everywhere to attract people to places of worldly pleasure and sin. But be ye transformed, or "transfigured." This takes place when old things pass away, and all things become new; when the soul is reborn, passing from death into life, a new spirit takes the place of the old, bringing new thoughts, new aspirations, and new desires which prompt the whole being to action for the cause of righteousness. Man is not the same after this change has taken place. His life seems a strange thing to the world; he runs not with the old crowd; his language is different, he has a higher aim—he is actually and really transformed.

Now his conduct to his fellowmen is changed. Verses 9 to 21 show us the ideal life. Is that obtainable? Yes! "I can do all things through Him who strengthened me."

The eleven elements that build the arch of Christian character are contained in the verses as given: (1) Love, verses 9 and 10; this is the source of all others, the root, the fountain; (2) Fervor, verse 11, intensity of feeling, zeal, warmth; (3) Hope, verse 12, expectation, anticipation, confidence; (4) Patience, verse 12, calmly enduring, persevering; (5) Prayerfulness, verse 12—the key to God's storehouse which must never be lost or laid aside, or the soul is without its most potent weapon when in distress; (6) Generosity, verse 13, the opposite of covetous, close, avaricious, miserly—but rather being liberal, bountiful, etc.; (7) Hospitality, verse 13, the practice of entertaining strangers and friends with kindness and liberality; (8) Unvindictiveness, verse 14, the seeking of no revenge for supposed wrongs; (9) Sympathy, verse 15, a mutual feeling of pleasure or pain, compassion; (10) Unity, verse 16, the state of being one, concord, uniformity, harmony; (11) Humility, verse 16, humble, modest, self-abasing—this is the ideal of a Christian character. All these elements were in Christ Jesus. "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus." (Phil. 2:5).

If all the followers of Jesus would strive to follow His example, surely "the tabernacle of God would be with men and He would dwell with them." (Rev. 21:3).

National Advertiser Enters Small Towns to Reach Consumer

Quaker Oats Begins Comprehensive Campaign in Journal—To Distribute Book of Tricks

The Quaker Oats Company is coming back to small town daily and weekly newspapers to advertise their excellent product. The Journal has just signed a contract for ads in each edition of our Thursday Semi-Weekly for the coming six months. To insure the success of this initial campaign in small town papers, the dealers and newspapers are joining in a special co-operative effort, that includes tie-in ads of dealers to be run in connection with the regular ad of the Quaker company, the distribution through the newspaper offices of Dick Darling's 'Bag of Tricks' upon presentation of trade marks cut from Quaker Oats labels.

When this opening advertising broadside appears in the Journal next Thursday, full details of this free trick book will be given therein. In addition the Quaker ad will list the names of all dealers in Cass county who handle Quaker Oats. The Journal is giving this listing lineage free to help the campaign along and to make it a success in every store.

In addition, all stores are being urged to carry small tie-in ads on this special Quaker Oats page.

Grocers appreciate the value of an established brand name and should respond to the special tie-in offer by placing ads of their own, calling attention to their displays of Quaker Oats and the book of 62 magic tricks to be given away free.

The Journal office will distribute this trick book of 64 pages, neatly bound, to each person who brings the Quaker man cut from a large package of oats or two Quakers from the smaller packages. This book contains simple tricks which any boy or girl can perform for the entertainment of themselves and others. They will all want one, and under this plan of distribution it will not be necessary to mail the trade marks to some distant point, as is usually the case—simply bring them to our office and take home your copy of the book.

Quaker Oats dealers throughout the county will co-operate in the campaign by using special displays in their stores, stocking an adequate supply of Quaker Oats to meet the increased demand, and, as stated above, using small tie-in ads calling attention to the fact that Quaker Oats may be obtained at their stores.

When a large concern decides to use local newspapers for advertising service, it means increased sales for the local merchants (as proven in the state of Missouri where this tie-in plan has been worked most successfully in every county seat newspaper) and the Journal is pleased to co-operate, confident that the merchants themselves will want to take supplemental ads next week when the opening Quaker ad runs, to further increase their sales.

WE THANK YOU ALL

Incident to our disability which resulted in our spending some four days at the hospital. Our friends and neighbors were very kind, very solicitous for our care and welfare by calling on us and serving in many ways, by coming to the home, doing acts of kindness, taking us to the hospital and bringing us home again; while we were away caring for the home, having it ready for our return; doing errands, the kindly letters, and in many other ways making it evident we are making our home in a happy land among friends again. We thank you all.—Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Briggs.

- 2—General open-piece quilts;
- 3—General open-embroidered and appliqued quilts;

While passing near here, an axle of the truck of the Dudley Oil company of Glenwood, Iowa, broke, and it was impossible to proceed further until Charley Land arrived on the scene and repaired the damage. The accident happened early Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hughson, of Onawa, Iowa, were week end guests at the home of Mrs. Hughson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Foster, who reside south of town. They made the trip in their car. Mrs. Hughson will be remembered as the former Miss Dorothy Foster.

Return to Southern Home

Misses Deede, Ruth and Bessie Ann and Master George, children of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nickles of Ponca City, Okla., who have been spending the summer as guests of Frank and Anna Bauer, left Thursday for their home in the south, where they arrived in time to enter school this week, the schools there beginning a little later than this far north. They went home with a neighbor, Mrs. Vance, who came up from Oklahoma after them.

The Bauer home seems rather vacant now with the merry party of grandchildren gone.

Attended Lodge at Nehawka

Rev. W. A. Taylor accompanied Dr. R. R. Anderson to Nehawka one evening last week for a session of the Masonic lodge. During the course of the evening, Dr. Anderson was called to care for a patient, leaving Rev. Taylor to enjoy the lodge session, at the conclusion of which no less than three of the brethren offered to take him back to Union, so he did not have any transportation problem to worry about.

Had Positions at State Fair

Mary Becker and Mabel Reynolds, two of Union's efficient young ladies, were in Lincoln throughout the duration of the state fair, having positions at the fair grounds that kept them pretty busy, but withal allowed sufficient time for each to get around and take in the sights of the fair. During their absence, business at the bank was looked after by George Stites.

Had Excellent Church Service

Last Sunday the church service at the Baptist church was unique and out of the ordinary, but withal one of the very best of services. Mrs. C. L. Greene and Miss Ada Armstrong formulated a program and went to the trouble of conducting a rather extensive research into the scriptures, so that when the time came for the discourse, Miss Armstrong delivered as good a sermon as one might find traveling across the state in any direction. There was also provided plenty of inspiring music to make a fine and well-balanced program during the absence of Rev. Booher, who was attending the annual church conference.

He soon had the arm set and in a sling and the young lad is getting along as well as could be expected.

Mail Carrier Very Ill

Orville Hathaway, who is a rural mail carrier out of the Union post-office, has been kept from his work during the past two weeks on account of illness. He is still confined to his home but hopes are entertained that he will soon be well again and back on the job. During his absence, Louis Burbee, the substitute carrier is serving the patrons of Mr. Hathaway's route.

Visited Friends Here

Mr. and Mrs. Winnie McNamee of Los Angeles, and by the way Amos is also making his home there with them, were visiting in Union for a number of days during the past week, having a trailer house which they attach to their car, enabling them to travel about. Accompanying them is Mrs. Haddock and husband, the former a sister of Mr. McNamee. After concluding their visit here, they departed for Brush, Colorado, where they will visit for some time before continuing on to their home in the west.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Atteberry was the scene of a very pleasant family gathering last Sunday, many of the relatives being present to enjoy the day. The guest of honor on this occasion was the mother of Mr. Atteberry, Mrs. Fannie A. Atteberry, of Linwood, Kansas, who, after a visit here, will go with a daughter, Mrs. Ray Prichard, to Houston, Texas, to spend the winter. Others who were present were Frank Atteberry, wife and two children, of Kansas City, Kansas; Jess Atteberry, of Cheyenne, Wyoming; Lon Vroman and family, of Plattsmouth, and Ollie Atteberry and family, of Blair.

Have Excellent School

The Union schools are well filled with scholars and have one of the finest array of instructors possible to obtain. The school year is starting off most auspiciously and with high promise that this year will be a most successful one from an educational standpoint.

Gas Price Wavering

The price of gasoline in Union, as elsewhere, has been 20.4 cents a gallon for the better grade, but George A. Stites this week cut the price of his gas to 18.5 cents a gallon and has an ad in this issue of the Journal calling attention to the new price.

This is the first semblance of a gas war in Cass county in many a month, as the price seems to have been standardized among all dealers. Mr. Stites contends the price has been shaded to certain customers by some dealers and he believes in giving the same price to all, so has set that price at 18.5 cents and is so advertising it to the world.

High Water Took Out Bridge

The bridge which apparently rested securely on its supports and carried many a wayfarer over the creek near Santa True's place, was carried away by the high water following the rain last Saturday night, and by now should be well on its way to the Gulf of Mexico. The bridge was a wooden structure, 14x16 in size.

Busy Bee Extension Club

The Busy Bee Extension club met at the home of Mrs. Ray Younker last week. Twelve old members and five new ones were present to participate in the business session and election of officers for the coming year. Mrs. Laura Becker was named as president, Mrs. McClure as vice president, and Mrs. Frances Crawford, secretary-treasurer and news reporter.

A delicious lunch was served at the close of the meeting.
