They have three sons, Leland, Floyd, and Byrle. Leland and Byrle were at the celebration.

Two musical selections by Mrs. Alvin Smock preceded the mock wedding ceremony. The wedding brought a great deal of enjoyment for the guests. Mrs. Fred Howland acted as bride and Byran Galland impersonated the groom. Bill Mason was best man and Mrs. Earl Harris, bridesmaid. Don Tischer, as minister, tied the knot. ## Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, October 4th By I. Neitzel, Murdock, Neb.

"The Macedonian Call"

Acts 15:36 - 16:15; Rom. 15:18-21.

With this last quarter for 1936, we also close the five year cycle for 1931-1936. We continue the study of the "Spread of Christianity." Paul and Silas begin a second tour, for Paul, with a different partner. The teacher may well inject the occasion for selecting Silas as described in Acts 15:36-41, which will convince us that these great leaders were intensely human. But the incident fits perfectly into the plan of God, for now there are two teams, instead of one; and soon the group grows as Timothy is added at Lystra and Dr. Luke at Troas. Barnabas took John Mark and went to his own country, the isle of Cyprus, and that is virtually the end of him, only as he is mentioned by Paul in his letters. (1 Cor. 9:6; Gal. 2:1, 9, 13; Col. 4:10). Paul never visited the island of Cyprus again. Later Paul beautifully refers to John Mark and asked Timothy to bring him to Rome. (1 Tim. 4:11; Col. 4:10).

After visiting the church founded on his first missionary tour (a map would be of great service here), Paul and Silas take their journey from Seleucia by Cyprus to Pamphilia, then over land to Derbe and Lystra, where he was stoned on his first visit. Here Timothy joins the party. The mother of Timothy, a Jew, had married a Greek—whether he was a convert to Judaism, we know not. Timothy may have been present when Paul was stoned and in that hour turned to the Lord Jesus Christ, whom Paul preaches. Paul suggested the circumcision of Timothy, which could not offend the Gentiles, for it would make him a more acceptable worker to the Jews, because he was the child of a mixed marriage.

Now they are on their way thru the regions of Phrygia and Galatia, in Asia Minor, Roman territory. Something strange happened here that baffled Paul—the Holy Spirit shut the door against him. So our plans are sometimes crossed by God; but if one is in fellowship with God, then he sees that the disappointments and difficulties are also under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, realizing this then, it is possible for the Spirit to guide him. Again he makes another start, intending to go into Bithynia, going north—the spirit of Jesus again frustrated his plan. He is bewildered! Now, he turns south, reaching the seacoast town made famous by Homer, once known as "Troy," now Troas. Many a time in history has supernatural restraint and constraint changed the course of God's servants. Livingstone intended to go to China; God sent him to Africa. Carey wanted to go to Polynesia; but God sent him to India.

Now comes the call from Macedonia: "Come over into Macedonia and help us." Before this call came, we visualize Paul in a ferment, and, greatly agitated, he takes recourse in prayer. God grants him a vision in answer to his petition. That is a kind Father's way, he leads his child, being in fellowship with him, man understands the voice, interprets the signs. (Someone has said that it was Dr. Luke who suggested this move—the next verse has "we" in it.) As Timothy and Luke join Paul and Silas, the company has increased to four. They set out to go to Europe by way of Samothrace, Neapolis and Philippi. It was a great day, a momentous day for Europe when the Gospel made its entrance; that "day" only, will reveal the tremendous upheaval caused by this move. Europe could never be the same after having had the light brought to them. And in like manner, no man will be the same after having experienced salvation, even if he should later backslide.

Looking over the city and finding no synagogue, they find the place, by a riverside, where some devout women had gathered for prayer, on the Sabbath. What an example for Christians this should be, who can go by the church door and neglect to go in. Here is an opportunity and Paul embraces it—and what a glorious result!

Why does not the preaching of today have such instantaneous results? Do we expect it? They were had 50 and 60 years ago. A Holy Spirit is present in power—a whole household is converted. Lydia—the first convert in Europe. The gospel has that same power today.

A gracious revival follows, a new church is organized and Paul and his party moves on. Luke abides in Philippi for the next seven years. (Chap. 17:1 would indicate that). Paul addressed a wonderful epistle to this church in the spring of 63 A. D., from Rome, sending same by Epaphroditus.

In our second section of the lesson, Rom. 15:18-21, Paul reveals some of the fundamentals of his preaching and missionary work and recognizes the Lord Jesus as the personal and ever-present worker. (Matt. 28:20, Acts 1:1; 1 Cor. 15:10). His address at Iconium, Acts 14:17, shows how he points out that God had at sundry times given ample testimony to his claim as a divinely appointed preacher of the gospel. As an apostle, he had performed signs and wonders in the power of the Holy Spirit, as related in his letter to the Galatians. (2:1-5).

Going where no one had been before; not building on the foundation of another. His parish was so large he had no need to go where others had been; no duplication for him—a waste of time. He quotes Isaiah 52:15 and follows its dictation.

Finding Much Good Corn.

Fred Drucker who farmed the Albert Young place this summer and which looked like there would be no corn during the extreme hot weather, has succeeded in gathering so far some twenty-five bushels of excellent seed corn, well filled ears and good and solid. There is more also to gather which he is continuing to secure. With good care it looks like a very good quality of seed corn can be secured, whether enough for the spring seeding or not, remains to be determined, but a lot of it at any rate. It is greatly up to the farmer what he shall do about his seed corn for there is some on every farm which can be utilized to gather it, cure it and give it the most stringent tests will determine in advance what can be done. Better do it.

Beautifying the Home.

W. S. Smith, the merchant, who has tried hard to maintain a good lawn at his home in Murray but the adverse weather and extreme drought has made it difficult to grow any grass. He has succeeded in getting some trees to grow by placing a tile where he could water the roots and thus has a few trees growing, but the grass was different and there is no water in Murray except wells and which to pump and water a lawn is a difficult task. The grass was burned out with the exception of the dandelions which seem to flourish. But with the coming of the fall rains, affording an abundance of moisture, Mr. Smith has spaded the entire lawn and is sowing it to grass which it is hoped will get a good start this fall and it looks like it would, so with the coming of spring again the lawn will have a fair start.
