

Speed Work on Super-Highway

Alaska—northern terminus
Mexico City—halfway point
Buenos Aires—southern terminus

Recent announcement of the Mexican government that it expects to have completed by 1940 a new road through from Arizona to the Guatemalan border has given new impetus to plans for the international-highway running from Fairbanks, Alaska, to Buenos Aires. Preliminary survey work has been in progress since United States appropriated $1,000,000 in 1934. Sponsors of the project claim the commercial value involved in making the mineral deposits and fertile farming country along the route accessible would soon pay for the highway.

JUST A BUNCH OF BELLBOYS

Hollywood—To George Bernard Shaw, the bearded bard of Ireland, Hollywood scenario writers are just a bunch of "bellboys." He plastered that label on movie literati in a letter to Samuel Goldwyn, film producer. Goldwyn, for the second time in ten years, has been trying to negotiate a deal with Shaw to film some of the shavian plays. He has even discussed the idea of bringing Shaw to Hollywood to do the adaptations himself.

"When I allow the film firms to try their hands, they turn the job over to the bellboys," Shaw wrote. "And when the bellboy wants a bit of extra dialog, he does not dream of asking me to supply it. He just sticks a patch of his raciest Californian on my classical English without perceiving the difference. He (the scenario writer) has no more notion of telling a story than a blind puppy of composing a symphony," the dramatist concluded.

"I must admit that some of the writers deserve Mr. Shaw's remarks," Goldwyn commented, grinning. "In general, tho, I find that most famous authors are satisfied with the screen treatments given their literary efforts."

Irrigated Corn is Good for Seed, Agronomist Says

Scores Reports in Circulation that are Alarming Farmers—Cites Sources, Types of Seed

Branding as untrue the report that irrigated corn will not make good seed, P. H. Stewart, extension agronomist at the college of agriculture at Lincoln, declared that such "wild tales" are alarming some Nebraska farmers. For the most part, he said, the type and variety of corn grown under irrigation in the eastern third of the state is not different from that grown on dry land.

"The fact that the corn has been irrigated this season would in no way reduce its value for seed," said Stewart. "Irrigation would amount to nothing more than growing the corn during a good season with plenty of rain. Application of water would in no way change the value of the crop for seed purposes."

The college of agriculture is recommending that farmers having to buy seed corn, secure it from irrigated fields of the same locality if possible. Such sources of seed will be very valuable this season in meeting the seed corn emergency which is bound to face farmers next spring.

"In some sections of the state, particularly farther west, the type of corn grown under irrigation is slightly larger and later than that grown on dry land," Stewart explained. "In such cases seed from irrigated fields might be larger in stalk development than normal upland corn."

Farmers seeking further information on the irrigated seed corn problem were advised that irrigated seed from western Nebraska and Colorado can be used satisfactorily as far east on upland as about North Platte and Holdrege. There are occasional fields of irrigated corn in western Nebraska that are quite late in type. This year these later types are well advanced in maturity, and such lots of seed possibly could be used with good results on uplands of central Nebraska.

A navigable Missouri river by 1937 is the promise of Missouri river development boosters.
