The first two weeks of 1937 proved the most quiet in the history of the office of the county judge in recent years. There had not been a complaint filed there since the dawn of the new year.

Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, January 24th

By L. Neitzel, Murdock, Neb.

"Two Miracles of Mercy"

John 5:2-9; 6:8-15.

By diligent study of this lesson we should discover one great fundamental truth—that what Christ said he was and what Christ proved himself to be by his miracles, compel every man to either believe in Christ as the Son of God, or reject him, as again and again in this lesson man did. It is imperative for man to make and come to a decision some time in life where he is confronted with the question: "What think ye of Christ? Whose son is he?" (Matt. 22:42).

The first part of our lesson occurred in Jerusalem, while the second part took place at Bethesda, on the shores of the sea of Galilee; the discourses following were given in the Synagogue in Capernaum. The miracle at the pool of Bethesda—"house of mercy" should prove very interesting. A description and location of this pool, mentioned only by John, is time well spent. We find Jesus on a Sabbath visiting the sick—a laudable occupation to be initiated. How that great compassionate heart of Jesus must have been stirred when he saw the many sick, blind, halt and withered—the work of that dreadful disease—sin. Passing along he beholds a very unfortunate, impotent man, the picture of hopelessness; who having suffered for 38 years from a disease caused by sins of his youth. As a last resort he will try the healing waters of a pool of which he had heard, also of the miraculous cures; but he cannot move fast enough when an angel stirs up the water (when it gave its healing powers) to enter the pool and another enters and is healed; and another futile effort sends him back to his bed. The sympathizing Jesus stops at his bed—listen to the loving voice: "Wouldst thou be made whole?"

"Yes, indeed! But what's the use trying; I am too slow and have no one to help me." Here the Son of God shows his knowledge of men and manifests his power: "Arise, take up thy bed and walk." Jesus does not ask faith of the man—only obedience, and with the effort comes strength—and health is restored. That is the wonder working Jesus! He's just the same today. No one need despair. "There is power in the blood" to heal all diseases: "Sin hath left its crimson stain, he washed it white as snow." A good Sabbath day's work for Jesus—"go thou and do likewise" and cheer up the sick and the shut-ins, the dependents and the un-saved.

But another result follows: The devil got busy and drove Jesus out of Jerusalem (because his hour had not come) (John 2:4); and he leaves the environs of Judea (the end of his first year's ministry), and we find Jesus next in Galilee. Here a great work awaits him.

Crossing the sea of Galilee, seeking retirement with his disciples—the multitude followed him on foot. Seeing the masses, who were gathering for their pilgrimage to the passover feast, he had compassion on them. (All four evangelists report this miracle).

Asking one disciple a test question: "Where can we buy bread to feed the people?" Philip finds the treasurer, ascertains how much it contains and finds there are only two hundred pennies, and that would not buy sufficient bread. In the meanwhile Andrew searching for a supply has poor luck, but he reports what he found: "There is a lad here, whose mother packed in his lunch kit, five barley loaves and two small fish (knowing that boys are always hungry) but what is that among so many?" (See Numbers 11:21, 22 for a parallel). Here the Son of God reveals his power (as he does every day feeding 1,500,000,000 three times a day). Our God can do great things! Order is heaven's first law; let the people come to order.

Five thousand men are seated in companies by fifties and hundreds. (Women and children form another group, probably five thousand more.) The lad gives up his lunch (or did he sell it?). It is brought to Jesus, who, having given thanks (grace before meals) distributes the bread and fishes and the twelve waiters got very busy; so did Jesus, filling their baskets, who returned for more when empty. By this time all eyes are fixed on Jesus, and the thought enters the mind of some, when they saw the "sign" whether this was not the "prophet" that should come into the world. (See Deut. 18:15). The people even were willing to make Jesus their king; (yes, who would not live under the rule of a king who could feed his subjects in such a marvelous and easy way; that would even be better than being on relief). As a king, they thought he could deliver them from the Roman government. They did not accept him as Messiah and Saviour.

This miracle cannot be explained. All attempts to escape the miraculous nature of this event violate all the canons of historical evidence, and are on the face of them, irrational and foolish. John was there and John KNEW what happened. Our God is great and greatly to be praised.

of the rabbits they might instantly shoot it, the gun went off and knocked the hat of Mr. Clarence from his head and tore a ragged hole through the roof of the car. While it was not a pleasant experience it was indeed fortunate, for Mr. Clarence could as well have been shot as to have been missed by a few inches or a fraction of an inch. Someone said that Will looked into the gun and saw the charge coming and ducked just in time to avoid the charge. However it was a little too close in any event.

Death of Frank Fetzer Occurs at Fairbury

Was Twin Brother of Late Joseph Fetzer of This City—Former Louisville Resident.

Frank Fetzer, 84, the last of the Fetzer brothers who were early settlers in Cass county, died Saturday at Fairbury, where he has made his home with a daughter, Mrs. Fred Goebel and family.

Mr. Fetzer was a twin brother of the late Joseph Fetzer of this city, founder of the Fetzer Shoe Co., and made his home for many years in Louisville, where other members of the family had located.

Coming here from Wisconsin where the family was first located, the brothers took up different vocations, Frank engaging in the blacksmith business at Louisville, at which he was very successful for a great many years.

While a resident at Louisville he was a leader in many of the civic enterprises and was several times a member of the village board there and mayor of the village, being one of the highly esteemed residents of the community.

With the advancing years Mr. Fetzer retired from active work and has made his home with the daughter and family of Fairbury.
