Open Season for 4-H Clubs. The return of fair weather brings renewed interest in 4-H clubs.

Snappy Cooks, Margaret Ranney, Weeping Water, leader.

Early Bird Poultry club, Owen Raymond Polard, Nehawka, leader.

Future Dairywomen club, Albert Miller, Murdock, leader.

Happy Hustler Baby Beef club, Albert Miller, Murdock, leader.

Master Feeders Baby Beef club, Clyde Althouse, Eagle, leader.

Boys who do not have feed for growing baby beavers should find interest in some other project.

Swine clubs are unexcelled for practical all-around training.

Two Keep-Well clubs, which have been organized during the winter months, have nearly completed their lessons.

Girls interested in joining a 4-H club are urged to enroll in one of the major cycle projects.

Any group of five boys or girls interested in organizing a club should get in touch with the Farm Bureau office for more information.

Plan Spring and Summer Activities. Seven group achievement programs and one county-wide meeting for women's project clubs were planned.

Recreational School. What shall we have for entertainment, is an ever baffling question especially when planning for a large group.

Plans are under way for holding a two-day recreational school within the county April 1st and 2nd.

Plans are under way for holding a two-day recreational school within the county April 1st and 2nd.

How Long Can a Three-Quarter Wife Hold Her Husband?

YOU have to work at marriage to make a success of it. Men may be selfish, unsympathetic, but that's the way they're made and you might as well realize it.

The program will be different each day but the same delegates should attend both days.

Make plans now to have your community represented, then send in to the Farm Bureau the names of your delegates so that more detailed information may be sent to them later.

Progress of the 1937 Conservation Program. Precinct committees have just completed their work of setting bases for individual farms in the county.

It is the present plan of the county committee to hold community meetings beginning about the 17th when farmers can come in and have their individual plans gone over so they can understand how they can comply with the 1937 program.

Livestock Marketing Ass'n Finds Demand for Its Services. The Producers Livestock Marketing Association opened for business on the Omaha market two weeks ago.

Eleven carloads of stock were handled the first day, seven the next and ten the third day the association opened for business in Omaha.

The board of directors of the Omaha exchange is composed of eight members, with Chas. Y. Thompson of West Point, Nebr., as president.

Getting Horses in Condition. Now that spring work is "just around the corner," Cass county farmers are making an effort to get their work horses in condition for spring plowing and other activities.

During April, May, June and July when the horse is worked the hardest, the average animal will need approximately 25 bushels of corn or 40 bushels of oats and about a ton of roughage.

Many work horse rations under the present feeding emergency are suggested in Extension Circular 206 which is available at the Cass County Farm Bureau office.

Tree Shipping Time Near. Cass county farmers have less than one month to make application for Clarke-McNary seedlings and transplants for windbreak and woodlot planting.

Thus far farmers have made application for about 20,000 seedlings. In the state, applications are on file for nearly 1,300,000 trees and it is expected that the number set out in 1937 under the Clarke-McNary program will exceed those of all other years. Farmers wishing the trees should get their applications filled out at the Farm Bureau office at once.

Treat Seed for Smut. There's one job on the farm that usually pays good dividends. That is the treating of seed grains such as sorghums, oats, barley and spring wheat for smut control.

Such was the suggestion made by the Cass County Farm Bureau. Treatment is cheap insurance against smut and other diseases. The practice is doubly important this year in view of the great amounts of oats and barley of unknown origin that will be used for seed here in the county.

There are three materials that can be used for seed grain treatment. For wheat, copper carbonate is regarded as the cheapest, easiest and most commonly used material. It is a dust containing about 50 percent copper. Treatment consists of covering the kernel thoroughly with dust, by means of a mixer of some type. For oats, formaldehyde is probably the most commonly used treatment. It is cheap and if properly used is effective in controlling smuts.

Formaldehyde may be used with varying amount of water, the important thing being that it is applied at the rate of 1 pint of formaldehyde to 50 bushels of seed oats. Some use the dry treatment of 1 pint of formaldehyde and 1 pint of water; others use 1 pint for 40 gallons of water and sprinkle.

New Improved Ceresan, a trade name for ethyl mercury phosphate, is a very effective and satisfactory treatment for oats, wheat and barley when applied properly and at the correct rate. It is to be especially recommended for barley as it controls some diseases not controlled by formaldehyde.

Seed corn, however, should not be treated for smut if it is pointed out. Smut in corn is not carried on the corn kernel so treatment is of no value. Smut in corn is due to field infection. Treating seed corn in Nebraska for other diseases under Nebraska's soil and climatic conditions has not proved to be worthwhile and is not recommended by the Nebraska Experiment Station.
