Entertained Party of Friends.
Mrs. R. E. Foster, living a few miles southeast of Union, was hostess last Friday at their beautiful country home to a number of lady friends at an afternoon gathering at which cards were featured and a real enjoyable time was had, with a delightful luncheon.

Taken to Hospital.
Miss Gussie Robb took her father, Mont Robb, to Omaha Monday afternoon, both being taken by Orville Hathaway, carrier of the rural mails here. Mr. Robb has been in rather delicate health for some time and it was with the idea of his daughter that he might be given a clinic and thus know better how to handle his illness. It is the hope of his many friends that he may soon return to his former good health.

Service to His Fellows.
For many years past the city of Union had as their lawyer, Charles L. Graves who finally went to Plattsmouth to be the municipal judge of the city.

Since then people have come to D. Ray Frans for advice and which has called Mr. Frans to see service in a big way to his fellow man. During the past winter when Mrs. Frans was very ill with pneumonia and her sister, Mrs. G. H. Gilmore and husband came to live with the Frans family until Mrs. Frans recovered. Mr. Frans thought the proper thing would be to study medicine and did so until the returning of the health of the wife. Then with the coming of many for business advice it occurred to him he had better also study law that he could render assistance to those who might need it. As we look at the matter now it would seem that Mr. Frans is "Living in a house by the side of the road and is being a friend to man."

Masonic Services at Nehawka.
At the Methodist church in Nehawka on Easter there will be special services held for the members of the Masonic order, their families and as well for all their friends. The public is very cordially invited to be in attendance. Rev. W. A. Taylor will deliver the address.

Visited with Father Sunday.
Charles Land was called to Lento, Mo., where his father, Allen Land, who is now well along in years and not too strong, has been very ill.

When notified of the very serious illness of the parent, Mr. Land departed last Saturday. He encountered very heavy snows as he advanced into Missouri. He found the father not so serious as he had been and the arrival of the son seemed to help him. Mr. Land returned home Sunday evening.

Guests at Nebraska City.
The fire department of Nebraska City at a dinner which was held last week, saw fit to invite the members of the Union department to attend. In response Elmer Withrow, Charles and Ollie Atteberry and Ted Sanders attended the dinner and meeting.

Enjoyed the Home Like Place.
Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Chilcote during the past year celebrated the passing of their fiftieth wedding anniversary and just now they have celebrated the passing of their birthday anniversaries.

At the home there was had a very fine dinner at which the relatives and close friends were present, helping to observe the occasion.

Of this couple it can be said that but few experience, they can stand in the doorway of their present home and see both the house in which they were born and have resided in the home for all the more than fifty years of their married life. What a great heritage this is, a full half century in the same locality with the friends of all this time assisting in enjoying the fifty years and say what a wonderful thing these fifty years with all the joy and gladness, with work, which was a pleasure, some sickness and through it all their companionship together, their ripening and mellowing as the years rolled by, new friends to come and old friends to depart for the other world, there to wait their arrival. What greater heritage can people desire, for now after three score years and ten they stand together and look back over the happy years and as the sun is setting look with hope to the glittering shore where there is no sadness, nor illness, but all peace and happiness.

Will Conduct Services Easter.

Rev. W. A. Taylor has been asked by the Masonic order at Nehawka to conduct services at the Nehawka Methodist church where the members of the lodge will attend services. Rev. Taylor being a member. It is their practice to alternate between Union and Nehawka.

The Cotton Club Review.

The people of Union having associated together for the presenting of a play for the delight of all, fell on a humorous play called the Cotton Club Review. The entertainers represented characters of 1849 when the gold excitement was rife and many people went to California. The affair was filled with a huge amount of laughter and all those present at the event got his full worth for attending no matter what the cost, but it was free. The costumes were gorgeous and the acting sublime. There was some disappointment as there was to have been a fan dance with Elmer Withrow as the artist, but just at the time he should have appeared he was taken with a violent attack of "modesty" and could not overcome it enough to play his allotted part.

To Make Home Here.

Edward Midkiff who recently made the purchase of the business at the Union service station taking charge of the station Friday of last week, moved to Union from Avoca last Tuesday and will make this his home. Mr. Midkiff and wife resided here years ago and will be welcomed by their many friends here.

"John's Picture of the Trial and Crucifixion."

(John 19:4-9; 14-18; 25-30)

We are coming now to the end of the "Divine Tragedy." The great moment has come—"the hour"—in which the Son of God—as the "Lamb of God" must be offered up as the sacrifice for the sin of the world. The law demands it. Divine justice demands it. Love demands it. "Without the shedding of blood, there is no remission of sin" (Heb. 10:22). So the lamb of God goes to the slaughter (Isa. 53:7).

May we go with Him from the upper room to Gethsemane, listening to the warning of Peter about the denial, the entering of the garden; His agony, his victory, the arrest, last miracle, led to the trial, all disciples fled, Jesus is alone in the hands of His enemies; but from a distance Peter and another disciple followed. John brings Peter into the palace of the high priest. Here Peter denies his Lord, three times as Jesus said he would. The unusual trial before Annas—early morning hour. Annas was not high priest, but the father-in-law of Caiaphas, the real high priest. The illegality of the trial should be pointed out. It was held (a) in the night (See Acts 4:3-6); (b) it was conducted by a man without authority; (c) it was held on a feast day or holiday—illegal; (d) it was illegal for the high priest to interrogate Jesus concerning his disciples and doctrine; (e) there is no charge herewith stated.

The attitude of Annas toward Jesus and the flagrant violations of Jewish law only revealed the terrible rotten condition of Judaism's holy city at the time the Lord Jesus came to earth. The examination of Christ before Caiaphas was followed by an interval in the high priest's palace, when our Lord was exposed to the ridicule and insults of his enemies and the brutal treatment of the Roman soldiers. At daybreak the Sanhedrin again assembled, and after hearing his confession that he was the Christ, condemned him to death. All these details are omitted by John.

The trial before Pilate brings out the innocence of Jesus; the motive of the Jews of prosecution; also the cowardly character of Pilate; the misuse of his power of releasing prisoners and the dastardly way he turned Jesus over to the mob, without passing sentence on Jesus, only giving consent to the clamor of the mob incited by their leaders. The scourging by Pilate was not justified, after declaring him repeatedly innocent. "But he was wounded for our transgression, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed." (Isa 53:5)

The Crucifixion of Jesus

The picture of the Son of God walking out of the Holy City, the city of Melchizedek, the city of David, the city of a great line of prophets, his head and body bruised and bleeding, carrying on his shoulder the crushing weight of the wooden cross, knowing in his heart that shortly he would himself be stretched upon it, is a scene calling more for meditation than for exposition. An erroneous idea corrected: It has often been said, taught and preached that Christ broke down under the weight of the cross, and another had to carry it to the end. Nowhere does the narrative make mention of that. That Simon, the Cyrenian, came along and the soldiers placed Jesus' cross on his shoulders, was part of a great plan of God.

This man was converted at the cross, and carried the story to the "dark continent," where his two sons, Alexander and Rufus were converted and became the two first bishops for the new religion. (Mark 15:21).

Jesus did not need any helper in His work of redeeming the world. (See Isa. 63:1-3.) Crucifixion was a Roman form of execution of criminals; Palestine was under Roman rule at this time. It was a very cruel and tortuous mode of execution—rather barbarous.

Who is able to draw an adequate picture to this spectacle. Stripped of all clothes, the body laid on the cross on the ground, stretched on the cross, nails driven through hands and feet, the cross is raised up and dropped into a socket in the ground; there the body hangs until death comes to their relief. In the scorching sun or the chilly wind, naked, exposed to the curious crowd. (Painters have draped the body of Jesus.)

Seven times we hear his voice: (1) Father forgive, etc.; (2) Verily verily, I say unto thee, etc.; (3) Woman, behold thy Son, etc.; (4) My God, my God, etc.; (5) I thirst; (6) It is finished; (7) Father into thy hands, etc.

Jesus' mother did not see the end, John led her away.

Between malefactors hangs our Lord, according to prophecy (Isa. 53:12). Six hours on the cross, suffering in darkness, forsaken by God; but glory to God! After "drinking the cup" the Father's face is seen again "into thy hand I commit my Spirit." The first and last word is Father.

"Bearing shame and suffering rude, In my place condemned He stood; Sealed my pardon with His blood; Hallelujah! What a Savior! "I lifted up" was He to die. "It is finished," was His cry. Now in heaven exalted high, Hallelujah! What a Savior!"
