Long Warfare Seems Likely in the Holy Land

British Unable to Ferret Out G. H. Q. of Arab Terrorists—Trying to Restore Order.

JERUSALEM (UP)—The type of warfare taking place in the Holy Land—ambushes and guerilla tactics—augurs a protracted and painful process of restoration of order by the government.

Arab nationalists are resisting the "encroachment" of Jews and resisting the plan of the mandate authority, Britain, to partition the country between Arabs and Jews. There have been scores of deaths.

The activities of attacking terrorists are believed to be directed from an Arab underground headquarters which the British are unable to discover, much less stamp out. No Arab patriot will betray his kinsmen endeavoring to free their race from the "infidel imperialists." As illustration of this, the reward of $50,000 offered for evidence of the murderers of Lewis Yelland Andrews, British district commissioner of Galilee, still is unclaimed. Also is more than $400,000 in rewards posted by the government from time to time for information on similar crimes committed since last year's revolt.

Press Attack Pointed
Another indication that the recent outbreak is of serious and prolonged character is seen in the outspoken comment of "Palestine and Transjordan," the only English language Arab weekly, whose editor until recently, Fouad Saba, also secretary of the Arab supreme committee, was exiled by Britain to an island in the Indian ocean.

The following passages leave little doubt as to the feelings animating the Arab leaders now directing their people:

"The British government has endeavored with one single stroke of the pen to declare the Arab supreme committee and all national committees in Palestine unlawful associations; it assumed control of the finances of the Moslem AWQAF and cut off spokesmen of the Arab population in Palestine in order, as it alleges, to clear the country from its wave of terror, but in fact to silence all opposition to its mischievous policy to divide Palestine... a new rebellion against the British in Palestine may be regarded to have started on Oct. 14, 1937."

The Grand Mufti of Jerusalem escaped on Oct. 14 and on this date there were attacks on Jews and British police in many sections of Palestine.

Another Egypt Feared
The same publication declared that "the Arabs of Palestine have come to believe that their country will soon be for England another Egypt or Ireland... the same England, obsessed with false beliefs and pronounced repression which has lost both Egypt and Ireland, will have to lose Palestine sooner or later."

The paper was suspended for three months by the government, a week after these articles were published.

Palestine prisons have been filled to such an extent since renewal of trouble with the Arabs that the government is preparing concentration camps to which many prisoners will be sent.

There will be separate camps for Arabs and Jews. The largest of the concentration camps is being constructed near Sarafand, where hundreds of Arabs were confined during last year's revolt.

The department of police and prisons has applied to the government for increased appropriations in view of this and other unforeseen expenditures necessitated by the trouble. Other new expenses include numerous radio broadcasting and receiving sets for police posts throughout the country, and remuneration for numerous secret service agents, some of them imported, who have been added to the police forces recently.

Meantime, Arab nationalist organizations have embarked on a campaign to collect funds to finance the Arab nationalist movement and to resist Britain's plan for partition.
