Big Parties Climax Polio Drive Jan. 29

Plattsmouth to Have Part in National Wide Drive for Funds to Battle Infantile Paralysis.

From coast to coast and from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada, there is a great response to the cause of eradication of infantile paralysis by research and care. Funds for the foundation for war on polio are to be raised in parties, balls and other functions on January 29th, the birthday anniversary for President Roosevelt, the nation's most outstanding victim of this malady.

Here in Plattsmouth the event will be marked by a ball to be held at the American Legion building and the proceeds of the ball aside from the actual expenses, will be turned over to the foundation for its use in the polio warfare. Those attending and securing tickets can aid in the most worthy cause that has taken toll of so many thousands.

The paradoxical phases of infantile paralysis are quite numerous. In the first place, designating the disease as infantile paralysis is a misnomer. It is not limited to infants only. Many cases have been recorded where the victims were between the ages of 20 to 70 years.

Also the word paralysis is applied to the disease in an erroneous manner for there have been many cases where the patients have recovered completely without any sign of paralysis.

In the majority of instances, severe epidemics of infantile paralysis have occurred between the months of June and October. One would think the epidemics would occur when children were in school rather than at the time when they are enjoying their summer vacation.

It has been discovered that epidemics are more numerous and more severe in the temperate zones than in the tropical and subtropical climates. There have been no severe epidemics in the southern part of the United States but there have been several major epidemics in the northeastern and north central states and these occurred in the summer months when the temperature in the northern states was on a par with that of the southern climate.

In a family of three or four children, most contagious diseases that affect one will affect them all. Infantile paralysis, a contagious disease, usually only affects one child in a family and the others seem to become immunized. There are exceptions to this principle but they are rather rare.

There is a lack of periodicity in infantile paralysis. A certain area may be swept by an epidemic one year and then the disease will not reappear again for many years.

Apparently healthy adults can be carriers of the disease, as well as children who are sick from it. It has been said that it can be communicated by direct contact through sneezing, coughing, kissing, and even loud speaking.
We gain protection from the disease by not living too shut-in a life. According to Dr. J. P. Leake, Surgeon, United States Public Health Service, "The more crowded and cosmopolitan the community in which the child grows up, the sooner, apparently, he acquires protection against the disease, though he may get a frank attack in obtaining such protection."

BRACES-UP NERVES & DIGESTION

We got the PHONE TO PROTECT THE Baby and all these other things came with it

When baby came, we got a telephone so we could keep in touch with the doctor. Now it gives us so much pleasure that we'll never be without it. We talk with friends and neighbors. The Mrs. telephones her mother frequently. And it makes it real cheerful here on the farm even in the most disagreeable weather. It doesn't pay to be without a telephone; it costs so little.
