Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

A Competition Which Was Open To All By IRVIN S. COBB

TWO gentlemen connected with the cloaking and suiting trade went to the Catskills on their vacation. Shortly after their arrival they took a tramp among the hills.

"I wish," said one, "that I owned that tallest mountain yonder and that it was all solid gold." "That's a lovely thought," said the other approvingly. "Say, Ike, if that mountain was solid gold and you owned it all by yourself would you give me some of it, huh?" "Certainly I wouldn't!" said Ike. "Wish your own self a mountain!"

for many weeks so critically ill that his recovery was regarded as a mere chance has for some time now been feeling much better and was able last week to be out on the street during some of the fine warm days and feels that he is ultimately going to get well.

United Brotherhood Meets. The interdenominational Brotherhood which was better known as the Methodist Brotherhood, but which recently became a brotherhood of both the Methodist and Congregational churches, held their meeting last Monday evening at the parson of the Methodist church where they enjoyed their get-together with a pleasing musical program, as some of the people which were expected to be speakers, were rehearsing for a minstrel show which is to be given at the American Legion rooms in the near future. The Brotherhood arranged to hold their next meeting at the parson of the Congregational church when in connection with the program they are expected to have an oyster supper.

Attained Fifty Years Monday. On last Monday, which was Valentine day and which was appropriately celebrated over the country, Mrs. Ralph Keckler received a valentine, a real one, but fifty years old, but a real live one in the person of her husband, Ralph Keckler himself, as it was his birthday. He and the wife were entertained by their son Richard Keckler at a very fine supper which was enjoyed by the guest of honor and wife as well as the many friends assembled. Again on Monday of this week Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Wiseman entertained and another very fine crowd was present. The evening was splendidly enjoyed and wishes extended for many more happy years.

Celebrate 60th Anniversary. Paul Marshall and wife of Elmwood were last Monday celebrating the passing of their sixtieth wedding anniversary as they were united in marriage on St. Valentine's day, February 14, 1868, and have been making their home in Cass for most of the entire time. They lived on a farm northwest of Elmwood until some fifteen years ago when they moved to Elmwood to make their home.

Woman's Club Meeting. The Weeping Water Woman's club was meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ranney Tuesday where they enjoyed a fine program. A delightful lunch was served.

Beginning the Building. Weeping Water is to rise out of the ashes of the great fire of some weeks ago and will be bigger and grander than ever. Elmer Michelsen who suffered a loss aggregating some $10,000 or more has been very busy since the fire and getting in shape for rebuilding as far as he is concerned and is ready now to begin the erection of a room for his business, the Weeping Water Variety store. Workmen have been clearing away the debris for a number of days, and work will begin immediately in erecting a modern brick building. Mr. Michelsen is endeavoring to have the building complete and stocked by Easter.
