BRIDGES ON RIVER POWER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (UP)—Senator H. Styles Bridges, R., N. H. said today his charge that the Nebraska hydro-electric development was not feasible was based on the report of an army board of engineers to congress in 1933, a report of the bureau of reclamation in 1923, and a report of a PWA engineer named Oldberg in 1934.

Bridges yesterday introduced a resolution asking an investigation into the entire hydro-electric setup. There have been no army engineer reports since 1933 but engineers said a current survey is now under way. In its 1933 report the army board said: "The board is, therefore, of the opinion that the improvement of the Platte river for navigation in connection with power development control of floods or irrigation or combination therefore is not advisable at the present time."

WIND STOPS FLIGHT

CHIPPewa FALLS, Wis., Aug. 3 (UP)—History's second attempt to ascend into the stratosphere using a cluster of fifty small balloons ended last night just ten feet above the ground. A strong wind thwarted the attempt of Captain Earl Barrows to go aloft and the aeronaut himself narrowly escaped injury.

Barrows attempted to ascend last night after his ground crew had filled the five-foot rubber balloon with hydrogen. Several hundred spectators saw the cluster of balloons propelled by the wind, dragging Barrows along the ground for forty or fifty feet, then rise about ten feet and sweep toward the State Fair park grandstand. Barrows leaped to the ground from his feet swinging below the packs unhurt. The balloons disappeared in a cloud. Professor Jean Pickard made the first multi-balloon flight near Rochester, Minnesota in 1937.
