The Coal Tariff.

Our whole coal tariff is a humbug. In eleven months of 1902 we exported very nearly five million tons and imported not more than two millions. To British North America we exported 3,386,365 tons, and from British North America we imported 1,495,316 tons. If the United States and Canada should remove their duties the movement both ways would undoubtedly be larger, and it is reasonable to assume that the balance in our favor would be enhanced. American bituminous coal producers would be benefited. Besides the coal exported to British North America we exported 1,117,733 tons of bituminous coal to Mexico and the West Indies, where it had to meet the competition of British and Nova Scotia coal. Manifestly our coal needs no "protection" even on the protective theory, and the only effect of the tariff is to impose on consumers in districts where importation would be the cheaper if the tariff were removed.-Indianapolis Sentinel, the chorus of republican propositions to regulate the trusts there is one dominant note-insincerity.

FORUM OF THE WEEKLY PRESS

Eddyville (Ky.) Tale of Two Cities: A trust bill which won't govern the trusts or afford an opportunity for federal control is now being sought by the senate.

Glasgow (Ky.) Times: Senator Wolcott denounces the introduction of "the bloody methods of Kentucky into Colorado politics." Whom have the Colorado republicans assassinated?

Akron (O.) Democrat: Nothing in the story that the Standard Oil Co. was wounded in the great war between the trusts and congress. Instead, it is to be promoted for holding its position unflinchingly.

Jerseyville (Ill.) Democrat: The people have furnished the president a large republican majority in both houses of congress and are prepared to enjoy the great spectacular fizzle. The castigation of the wicked trusts by the republican party.

Manhattan (Kas.) Mercury: The New England people who are hunting for free coal and free beef, should not hesitate to look up the workings of the Dingley tariff law and then show their faith by wor ing for the advancement of the democratic party.

Dayton (O.) News: It is too bad that the tariff duty on anthracite got into the bill by mistake, but the tenacity with which the republican managers hang on to it and refuse any suggestion for its repeal indicates that they may have had one eye on it all the time.

Durango (Colo.) Democrat: If the republican senate and house can peel the tariff from coal, they can do a like stunt as to meat and farm implements, wood pulp, food products, lumber, salt, etc. It will be a blessing when one and all the trust-made products are on the free list.

Bonham (Tex.) Favorite: How well do we remember with what contempt Civil Service Commissioner Roosevelt turned away from the offensive political methods of the man Clarkson. As president, however, he plays well the part of Telemachus to Clarkson's role of Mentor. Politics not only makes strange bed fellows, but sometimes corrupts good morals.

Plattsmouth (Neb.) Journal: Acting on the republican assurance that one year from now the coal consumers may again be squeezed at monopoly's pleasure, the Indiana dealers are "merging" themselves into mighty band. Next year they will perch on the tariff wall beside the Baer crowd and make faces at the nation buying coal at say, $15.

Monticello (Ia.) Times: Numerous newspaper publishers desire a reduction of tariff duty on paper. Those same men have been earnest advocates of the Dingley bill and have opposed all reduction of tariff duties, and as a consequence their petition to congress asking for a reduction of duties on the commodities they desire to purchase should be rejected. If pulp and paper should be on the free list there are numerous other commodities that should be on the list.

Hudson (Wis.) True Republican: When the giant trusts in this country are downed the chances are that the trust leaders will be in at the finish and will very likely preside over the ceremonies. No one of very candid Watertown (N. Y.) Re-Union: In republican anti-trust bustle is for The anything but political effect. trusts contributed the money that tided the republican party through in 1896, and that party with no kind of honor to itself can go back on its benefactors. This is a sufficient guaranty that the trusts are in no danger from the republican party.

> Frankfort (Ind.) Standard: Let the democratic element of the democratic party fight their battle out against the Cleveland-Wall street manipulators. Let the democratic elements of all other parties help them. This we regard as the patriotic duty of every true democrat, no difference what party he may be in, or if he is outside of all parties. This people stands face to face with the question whether the people who create the wealth are to govern or whether what they create is to be their master. Shall we have a democratic republic or a plutocratic imperialism?

> David City (Neb.) Press: Having abandoned reciprocity as a theory, the republican leaders have done the country a service. Reciprocity never meant anything more than a system of horse trading. It was a scheme of republican politicians to keep on the right side of campaign funds while trying to persuade the tariff beneficiaries to make voluntary concessions. They are all too selfish. They cannot agree. The tariff cannot be regulated by its friends. Reciprocity won't work. The thieves must protect their watered stocks and all stand or fall together. They must face the public, double their campaign funds and trust to luck.

> Mt. Morris (III.) Democrat: The administration has declared itself against "bad trusts." All leading republicans stand ready to promote legislation to suppress "bad trusts." But great care is taken that no "bad trust" is named. One of these patriots, one of these defenders of his nation's honor, in a speech makes a nice distinction between "public publicity" and "private publicity." The former according to this orator is quite impracticable. Perhaps this is why John D. Rockefeller says he has been "trying to devise some method of placing the Standard Oil company under the jurisdiction of the federal government." Come on with your shackles, Mr. Roosevelt; cunning is abroad in daylight

Columbia (Ky.) News: Our government paid $20,000,000 for the Philippines; has spent three or four times that amount to subdue the inhabitants; has entailed millions of dollars expense to run in pensions annually for one hundred years to come, and now, even now, when prosperity is abroad in the land, congress is asking to appropriate $3,000,000 to relieve distress in those islands. We have never believed that our government was right in the purchase, we have never thought it was clearly within the limits of the spirit of our constitution in establishing a colonial government of people who fought with us the common enemy and who sought the blessings of liberty, and we have had doubts all the while as to the wisdom of the deal from a commercial standpoint. We are just the same today.

Grant the Filipinos Relief.

If a few millions of dollars will help to repair some of the waste which our terribly mistaken war in the Philippines has made, let them go. They are but a drop in the bucket of our judgment has any confidence that the wasteful and unnecessary outlay there Springfield Republican.
