

INTENSE SUFFERING

From Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble

Instantly Relieved and Permanently Cured by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets

A New Discovery, but not a Patent Medicine.

Dr. Redwell relates an interesting account of what he considers a remarkable case of acute stomach trouble and chronic dyspepsia by the use of the new discovery, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

He says: "The patient was a man who had suffered, to my knowledge, for years with dyspepsia. Everything he ate seemed to sour and create gases in the stomach. He had pains like rheumatism in the back, shoulder blades and limbs, fullness and distress after eating, poor appetite and loss of flesh; the heart became affected, causing palpitation and sleeplessness at night.

"I gave him powerful nerve tonics and blood remedies, but to no purpose. As an experiment I finally bought a 50-cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at a drug store and gave them to him. Almost immediate relief was given, and after he had used four boxes he was to all appearances fully cured.

"There was no more acidity or sour, watery risings, no bloating after meals, the appetite was vigorous and he has gained between 10 and 12 pounds in weight of solid, healthy flesh.

"Although Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are advertised and sold in drug stores, yet I consider them a most valuable addition to any physician's line of remedies, as they are perfectly harmless and can be given to children or invalids in any condition of the stomach with perfect safety, being harmless and containing nothing but fruit and vegetable essences, pure pepsin and Golden Seal.

"Without any question they are the safest, most effective cure for indigestion, biliousness, constipation and all derangements of the stomach, however slight or severe."

Mr. Bryan on Watterson.

At Frankfort, Ky., where by invitation of the Kentucky legislature he participated in the Goebel memorial exercises, Mr. Bryan made reference to Mr. Henry Watterson's recent criticisms. Governor Becklam presided and in his introduction said:

"We are just as glad to see him as ever before. His name is still as dear to us as if he were president today instead of being the twice-defeated candidate for that office. We love him still, even if our state's greatest editor did, upon the eve of his visit here, offer him a gratuitous insult.

"We have assembled tonight to welcome the foremost citizen of this great republic," etc.

Mr. Bryan said that he felt honored to be so generously welcomed and commended by the distinguished gentleman who was both the youngest governor in the United States and also the senior governor—the governor having the longest service. Touching upon the reference to Mr. Watterson, he said:

"I was somewhat in doubt as to a subject for tonight. I thought some of speaking of 'Money and Morals'—that being the subject of the famous lecture that Mr. Watterson has been delivering throughout the country. As you have heard the theme discussed by one who has neither, you might be interested in hearing it discussed by one who has both. When I say that he has neither, I do not use the phrase in an offensive sense. I speak not of personal immorality. He accuses me of having money—although I have not, I regret to say, as much as he thinks I have—but certainly he would not impute riches to me as a sin if he himself had money. And he has declared that I am a moral philosopher instead of a politician and he would hardly condemn me for that if he were in the habit of placing moral principles above expediency. But I am not going to meet Mr. Watterson's criticism upon the plane upon which he makes it. I have several times when provoked written out a caustic reply to abuse, but I have usually torn it up next morning, preferring to answer more effectively than with epithets. And then, too, am always restrained from severity by the hope that the offender may reform. I do not believe in total depravity even in politics, although I have seen some cases which were dangerously near the edge. When I think of Mr. Watterson I am reminded of a character in Quo Vadis, the old Greek who, after a career of vacillation and treachery, came at last to a consciousness of the enormity of his sins and with martyrdom immediately before him rose up and took his stand with those whom he had been persecuting, declaring: 'I, too, am a Christian.' And so I am hoping that Mr. Watterson, after a long, devious and uncertain career, may at last allow his political conscience to assert itself and taking his stand with the advocates of the interests of the people and declare: 'I, too am a democrat.' I am hoping that he will some day prefer democracy even in defeat to wearing his breeches out at the knees crawling on the ground in search of the trail of the pie wagon."

Taking as his text the last words of Governor Goebel, "Be brave and fearless and loyal to the cause of the great common people," Mr. Bryan reviewed Mr. Goebel's legislative record and applied the maxim to present issues and to official life.

The War in the East.

Active war began between Russia and Japan on Sunday, February 7, when Japan commenced hostilities by making an attack on the Russian fleet at Chemulpo. In this engagement Japan inflicted great damage upon the Russian vessels and escaped with but slight injury to her own. Russia claimed that this overt act was in violation of the recognized rules of warfare, no declaration of war having been issued. Japan, however, declared that Russia's actions were tantamount to a declaration of war. Japan's preparedness, both on sea and land, was a surprise even to those who have given the island empire credit for almost marvelous activity and energy.

Immediately after receipt of the news of the first engagement the czar issued a proclamation of war, and Russian patriotism was aroused to a high pitch. Japan is fully aroused and the war spirit is great in all parts of the empire. Since the first engagement numerous smaller battles have been reported, almost all of them being greatly to the advantage of Japan. The Russian Baltic fleet is said to be ice-bound, and even if free would find difficulty in passing through the Dardanelles because of treaty stipulations. Japanese troops have been landed in Korea, and a severe land engagement is looked for at most any time. Russia is sadly handicapped in the transportation of troops by the unfinished condition of the trans-Siberian railway, and the forwarding of supplies is being pushed very slowly because of the same difficulty. It was reported on Sunday, February 14, that the Japanese had captured Fort Arthur and effected a landing, but the report was not authentic although not at all improbable.

The expected complications are looming up. The Poles are in a ferment and Russia will probably have to divide attention between them and the Japanese if the war is not speedily settled. Turkey, too, seems bent on taking advantage of the situation to make a move on Bulgaria.

Book Reviews.

Who's Who in America. No general library is complete without this really remarkable volume of biographical sketches. It contains the names and biographical sketches of upwards of 14,000 living Americans who have accomplished something. No space is wasted in fulsome flattery, but the sketches are compact—almost as if hydraulic pressure—but the essential facts are given. Abbreviations serve the purpose of shortening the sketches, thus getting a vast amount of information into a very small space. To one who desires to keep in touch with men of affairs, and with affairs themselves, this book is invaluable. It is not a volume of "memoirs," for only men living at the time of the volume's publication are given a place therein. Who's Who in America is especially valuable to writers and students. Published by A. N. Marquis & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Created Wealth.

Something from nothing—a garden from a desert. Such is the history of irrigated sections. Take land that sells for fifty cents an acre, put water on it, and it sells for—what? There are quarters of land in irrigated sections of Colorado that can be purchased for $20,000.00 and which earn a remunerative interest on that valuation.

And yet you can purchase irrigated lands where the soil is perfect beyond belief, where the water supply is plentiful and inexhaustible, where climatic conditions are healthful and exhilarating, where fuel is abundant and cheap, for from $15 an acre up.

THE REASONS:

The North Platte Valley, extending from Bridgeport, Neb., to Guernsey, Wyo., and the Big Horn Basin, Wyoming, have been but recently made available for settlement by the extension of the Burlington railroad into those sections. The irrigating companies must have settlers along their ditches and they offer substantial inducements in the shape of low priced water rights and lands.

HOW LONG WILL THIS CONDITION CONTINUE?

None may say surely, but it won't be for long, and the sooner you invest the cheaper will you be able to do so, for the advance is just as sure as has been the advance in the price of similar lands in other sections.

It can be given secretly and is harmless. Mrs. Lester will send the prescription free to any one sending stamped envelope to pay postage.

An Extract from Her Letter.

"If you could only be here this winter morning and see for yourself, you would no longer doubt me. Roses are blooming in our front yard, and all nature is as far advanced in this lovely American summer-land as it will be in your eastern home by June.

"We made the journey from Omaha to the Golden Gate via the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific to avoid the circuitous routes—an important item in the winter. A trip to California is made delightful by the perfect service and luxurious accommodation of the 'Overland Limited' which is perhaps the most finely equipped train in the world."

Be sure your tickets read over the UNION PACIFIC.
