

Smoke of Herbs Cures Catarrh

A Simple, Safe, Reliable Way and It Costs Nothing to Try

This preparation of herbs, leaves, flowers and berries (containing no tobacco or habit-forming drugs) is either smoked in an ordinary clean pipe or smoking tube, and by drawing the medicated smoke into the mouth and inhaling into the lungs or sending it out through the nostrils in a perfectly natural way, the worst case of Catarrh can be eradicated.

It is not unpleasant to use, and at the same time it is entirely harmless, and can be used by man, woman or child.

Just as Catarrh is contracted by breathing cold or dust and germ-laden air, just so this balmy anti-septic smoking remedy goes to all the affected parts of the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs.

It can readily be seen why the ordinary treatments, such as sprays, ointments, salves, liquid or tablet medicines fail—they do not and can not reach all the affected parts.

If you have catarrh of the nose, throat or lungs, choking, stopped-up feeling, colds, catarrhal headaches; if you are given to hawking and spitting, this simple but scientific treatment should cure you.

An illustrated book which goes thoroughly into the whole question of the cause, cure and prevention of catarrh will, upon request, be sent you by Dr. J. W. Blosser, 144 Walton street, Atlanta, Ga.

He will, also, mail you five days' free treatment. You will at once see that it is a wonderful remedy, and as it only costs one dollar for the regular treatment, it is within the reach of everyone. It is not necessary to send any money—simply send your name and address and the booklet and free trial package will be mailed you immediately.

ably $50,000 in smaller contributions. When the end of the campaign was drawing near and it was quite apparent that Mr. Parker could not be elected, some of my friends came to me and told me the campaign would collapse unless the committee received financial assistance. I finally agreed, in order to pay the party workers and preserve the integrity of the party, to furnish $350,000. This made a total of $450,000 I gave throughout the campaign. This was a personal contribution and did not represent anyone except myself. I did not give the money to elect Parker. I merely wanted to preserve the democratic organization.

In reply to questions concerning the pre-convention campaign of 1912, Mr. Ryan said he had contributed between $75,000 and $80,000 to Governor Harmon's campaign and more than $30,000 to Representative Underwood's.

"When I came back from Europe in 1911 I made up my mind that the prospects of democratic success were very bright," he said.

"I thought any democrat except Mr. Bryan could be elected and was willing to aid any other man. He had led the party to defeat three times and I regarded him as the only cloud on the horizon.

"I had no special interest in anyone, but I had known Governor Harmon, of Ohio, for twenty-five years and believed he would make a good president. I gave his managers somewhere between $75,000 and $80,000. Later on my friend, Senator Bankhead, manager for Mr. Underwood, came to me with an argument in favor of a southern man for president. That appealed to me and I gave him thirty odd thousand dollars. I was not asked to aid Mr. Clark or Mr. Wilson, but would have given them assistance if it had been requested."

Democrats will also be interested in Judge Parker's remarkable comment on Mr. Ryan's testimony. Following is an Associated Press dispatch from New York: Judge Alton B. Parker, the democratic presidential candidate in 1904, said that he was astounded at the "colossal" contributions to the democratic campaign fund in that year by Thomas Fortune Ryan, as revealed in the testimony before the Clapp committee in Washington.

"I have read the testimony of Mr. Ryan," said Judge Parker, "and I am astounded. I was always under the impression that Mr. Ryan and Mr. Belmont were leading contributors to the democratic campaign fund, but that they were colossal contributors, as now appears, I never knew. Mr. Belmont favored my nomination and Mr. Ryan had vigorously opposed it.

"It now appears from Mr. Ryan's testimony that late in the campaign when my election was not even hoped for by him he paid a vast sum to meet debts of the national committee that the honor of the democratic party might not be impugned.

"August Belmont is said to have joined in that undertaking. Neither they nor their friends ever gave to me a hint of this personal sacrifice—not for the candidate, but for the party to which they were attached. For eight years they have suffered reproach, but I, for one, doff my hat to them. For the honor of the democratic party—not in the hope of electing its candidates, for its defeat was amply assured in the closing weeks of the campaign—they made good the obligations of the organization, not out of the funds of corporations, but of their own pockets.

"The outcome of the campaign of 1904 is the abolition of corporation contributions by federal statutes and by the statutes of this and many other states. The statutes, supplemented as they have been by acts requiring enforced publication of contributions with the names of the contributors, will ultimately do away with the practice of raising large sums of money to make merchandise of votes of citizens and for this all good citizens will be thankful."

AUGUSTUS THOMAS' SPEECH

Augustus Thomas, the playwright, placed William Sulzer in nomination for governor of New York. Mr. Thomas's speech was as follows:

"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: I offer for your consideration the name of a candidate for the governorship of this great Empire state. In doing so I am aware of the conditions that confront us. I know that excessive burdens upon the people and repeated disappointments in their hope of relief have brought home to them closely the problems of government. That, impatient with their representatives, they are taking that proper interest which is inseparable from liberty. I know that this stir of the common heart is not in New York alone, but is felt throughout the nation.

"I know that today the nation is turning to this convention in fair hope that the man you choose shall bring added vigor to their cause.

"We offer you a candidate who has the respect of the free press of state and nation.

"The progressive wing of our opponents has for its chosen leader a man of achievement and generosity. He comes from a race that gave humanity a God and civilization a faith; a people that found in America the first peaceful harbor in the storms of four thousand years. This admirable and just Jew, whose words can not be bettered, said publicly of this leader I propose: 'In 1832 America made a treaty with Russia guaranteeing that the citizens of each nation should have equal rights in the country of the other. Later Russia chose to discriminate between our citizens according to religion. During forty long years American citizens were put in Russian prisons.

"For forty years there was that infringement upon our national honor, that blow against the dignity, the sanctity, the solidarity of American citizenship, until there stood up in the house of representatives this chairman of the committee on foreign affairs, who in logic and eloquence told the country that Russia should no longer stamp under her iron heel the rights of Americans. Then passed that famous resolution that gave not only Russia, but the world to know we place human rights above profits of farm machinery, we place the man above the dollar."

"In my opinion, and I hope in the opinion of this convention, that motion written by the son of a Presbyterian preacher in the defense of a race is more than the report of committee, more than joint resolution, more than a national document; it is a page in the history of man.

"We offer you this publicist of a quarter of a century's training; his five years at Albany in that legislative body, which a governor must understand; a speaker of the assembly, whose rules and tactics an executive should comprehend; his eighteen years in the congress of the nation, of which our state is a consonant part; a man who never shirked a duty nor failed a friend.

"The measure of courage is the promptness of recovery. In the darkest hours of democratic defeat this unbeaten candidate has been the first to rally the wavering line; the one man with that courage that Napoleon said was so rare in men, the silent courage of 2 o'clock at night.

"No party ever offered to the earnest people of the state a man so consistently their champion as this stalwart, serious, incorruptible commoner—William Sulzer."
