"FORCE" BILL AND THE PEOPLE'S PARTY.

The Hon. Knute Nelson, that splendid specimen and representative of the Scandinavian race whom the republicans of Minnesota have nominated for governor, has analyzed the "force" bill nonsense of the democratic campaign and blown it into more complete nothingness with fewer words than any other man has been able to load with such deadly effect. He said in his brief address to the convention:

"A member of congress is a member of the legislative department of the federal government, and in voting for such an official the citizen exercises a federal right and performs a federal duty. And any encroachment upon this right and duty on the part of the people or authorities of a state is a disturbance of a federal, not a state election. To deny the right of the federal government to maintain and protect the purity and integrity of the federal ballot is to deny the supremacy of the federal government within the scope of the functions given it by the constitution. If federal government can not control and regulate a federal election, it is an abject political nonentity—at the complete mercy of the several states. Viewed in this light—and our federal constitution affords no other—the second paragraph of the democratic platform, in view of the fact that the republican party is not seeking to control state elections, sets up a man of straw, or unconsciously, as if from force of habit, reiterates the doctrine of secession."

That is an admirable statement of the impregnable position of the republican party upon the subject of honest elections.

Not less clearly and sensibly does he touch in that brief speech upon the Weaver party. Quoting the plaints from their platform he said: "And what are the chief remedies prescribed for the ills complained of? In brief, these three: Government ownership of all railroads—as though nothing could be regulated or controlled unless owned; unlimited coinage of free silver—thereby under the existing disparity of value between the two metals paying the owners of silver bullion 100 cents in coin for 70 cents in silver, and last but not least the federal government must turn pawnbroker and set up a great national pawnshop under the so-called sub-treasury scheme. Thus when our government owns all the railroads, buys all the silver bullion at a big premium, and does the biggest and most unreasonable pawnbroker business known, then, and not until then, has this government of ours—founded by Washington and preserved by Lincoln—that degree of perfection contemplated by these new apostles of reform. This is not the time nor the place to consider these remedies and reforms in detail, for I believe that when the great mass of the people's party—who I know are honest and wish well for the republic—come to consider these matters calmly and deliberately, come to understand them fully, and realize what a great working capital the government will need, to embark in so many new business enterprises, they will be as quick as any of us to abstain from doubtful or unquestionable methods of government."

The republican party of Minnesota, with Knute Nelson and Cushman K. Davis, whom the convention presented to the senate to succeed himself, at its head, is destined to make a magnificent campaign this year, and its results will endure in republican majorities for many years to come.

WHERE ARE THE BURDENS? Wilson, of West Virginia, said to Cleveland, in telling him that he had been nominated:

With an overflowing treasury they (the people) have seen taxes increased on the necessities of life and the necessities of labor, because private interest demanded it.

A free trader has a rather obscure way of expressing himself on these topics, and he should have an interpretation accompanying his remarks in order to enable people to understand them. Mr. Wilson cannot mean in the above sentence that the people are paying more taxes to the federal government, or more for the necessities of life and the necessities of labor than before the McKinley law was passed. That is what he seems to mean, but the people cannot accept that interpretation, because they are unable to discover any item of increase in the taxes they pay to the federal government. Neither can they discover any necessary of life or of labor for which they are obliged to pay more than they did before the McKinley law enacted. When Mr. Wilson says "because private interest demanded it," he refers to the demand registered by the people in the election of 1888, in response to the promise of the republicans to do the things they have since done. It is furthermore impossible that Mr. Wilson can mean, when he says "with an overflowing treasury taxes have been increased," that increased revenues have been poured into the treasury because, as a matter of fact, the revenues have been decreased. This is in large part owing to the removal of all the tariff on certain staple necessities that cannot be produced in this country, and that therefore had to be imported anyhow, and in part to the falling off of the imports of articles, the supply of which is being produced in this country, under the operation of the McKinley law.

By pursuing this process of reasoning we are enabled to arrive exactly at what Mr. Wilson does not mean, but probably the man does not move above ground who could construe what he does mean.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY COMING FROM ENGLAND.

William Roberts, a woolen manufacturer from Bradford, England, has just completed a large mill in Bergen county, opposite Passaic. It will employ 150 hands. The mill and a long row of cottages for operatives have been built under his direction, and improved looms and other machines for the manufacture of the finest grades of woolen goods are being built. Mr. Roberts formerly did a large business with the United States, all his goods being placed directly on the market here. After the passage of the McKinley bill he arranged to transport his entire plant. Two other English factories will be brought here in the same way. He also intends to greatly enlarge his business and will employ American labor as far as possible.

DEMOCRATS in public life feel as much confidence in President Harrison's wisdom and patriotism as do republicans. The bill according the president power to levy retaliatory canal tolls on Canadian vessel passing through our canals passed both houses without a single dissent from any democrat, although Representative Turner (Dem. Ga.) pointedly called attention to the fact that the power conferred on the president is exactly similar to that in the reciprocity clause of the McKinley law. Democrats know that this large discretionary power is safe in President Harrison's hands.

DEMOCRATS weep over "the burdens of taxation" that are put upon the people, but they have never accomplished the removal of any of these burdens. The promise of the republican party is, if the burden is specified and pointed out (which the democratic shouters cannot do), to remove the burden if it lies within the authority of the government to do it. The people are showing ample capacity to learn that the alleged burdens that the democrats point out do not, in fact, rest upon the people. The people have insight to perceive that the burdens that afflict them are not those due to a protective tariff.

ALL ON ACCOUNT OF MCKINLEY. Albany Journal: The McKinley tariff law has reduced the cost of living 34 per cent; raised the rate of wages 24 per cent; reduced the annual revenue $50,000,000. So the senate committee reports; and its findings, after most careful investigation, were concurred in by the Hon. John G. Carlisle of Kentucky and the Hon. Isham G. Harris of Tennessee, two of the leading democratic members of the senate.

PRESIDENT HARRISON'S nomination of George Shiras, Jr., as justice of the supreme court, maintains the high standard of all his judicial appointments. The appointments he has made to the bench have won unstinted commendation and praise from political friends and foes alike.

J. M. Woodson is repairing his bath house preparatory to its opening in a day or two.

I am a Trav'ling man! I'll tell you of my plan. In spite of all temptation I pursue my old vocation, I'm still a Trav'ling man! A jolly Fairbank man!

CHORUS:

For he himself has said it, And it's greatly to his credit, That he is a Trav'ling man! That he is a Fairbank man!

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in Grand Opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, leading basso of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.
