LONDON, October 19. A Vienna correspondent of the Standard says it is generally believed that Prussia would gladly accept any in-tervention which would tend to relieve her from a winter campaign. Prussia has encountered immense difficulties in providing clothing, shelter and supplies, and great stress is laid on Bismarck's crime of continuing the war.

It is now said that Thiers never asked the neutral powers for any intervention further than was necessary to sustain the same form of government in France that now exists. All the correspondence at Verseilles are unanimous in the belief that general bombardment will not be opened for at least a fortnight, when every gun will be in position.
