Such was the public feeling on the 16th day of August. On the afternoon of that day, thirty-three days after the ascension, a telegram was received from Montague, Mich., announcing the finding of the body young Grimwood on the lake shore, etween Whitehall and that place. The discovery was made by a Mr. Beckwith, who carries the mail between Stony Creek and Montague. During his trip along the lake shore he noticed a peculiar smell and was attracted by it to look along the beach in search of the cause. When came up to the body it was lying on its face and partially covered with sand. Decomposition had already set in, and Mr. Beckwith describs the appearance of the remains as most horrible and offensive. At first Mr. Beckwith hought it might be the body of some sailor who had been washed overboard from some vessel, and which, though a sad event to those related to him, had not a public interest sufficient to require him to try to identify him. He looked again er, and then, remembering the loss on which was engraved the name of N. S. Grimwood, his diary, in which were brief jottings of the incidents of his trip, a numbered ticket to the Chicago Public Library, and other things which showed conclusively that it was the body of poor Grimwood. It had on a full suit of clothes excepting boots and hat, and the preparations made, by tightly buttoning the coat and putting on the life-preserver, seemed to indicate that the young had prepared to swim, and might have succeeded in sustaining himself above the surface for some time had the life-preserver been of any After being examined the body was buried near where it was found, it being impossible to transport it with the appliances at hand. As soon as the finding of the body was known a search was immediately instituted for traces of Donaldson or the balloon. The shore for several miles was carefully looked over by men in parties and singly, but no other body had yet been found and no trace of the air-bag had been reported up to the evening of

A dispatch to the Evening Journal gives the following as a copy of the jottings in Grimwood's diary:

UP IN A BALLOON! From the earliest days of chil bood I have always had a presentiment that some time, sooner or later, I was bound to rise. There are some people who make sport of presentiments, but, after all, a presentiment is a handy thing to have around. Where would handy thing to have around. Where would I have been to-day if I hadn't had a presenti ment? In accordance with my presentiment, I have risen, as it were, to a "point of or-der." Like a great many p liticians, I rise by means of gas.

I regret the fact that there are only two of us—Prof. Donaldson and myself—as I would like to belong to the "upper ten." Prof. Donaldson seems to be a very pleasant gen-tleman, although a philosopher and aero-

Although it is scarcely an hour since I struggled into eminence, the restraints of my position are already beginning to be irksome to me and wear upon my spirits. I cannot help reflecting that, if we fall, we fall like Lucifer, out of the heavens, and that upon our arrival upon earth, or, rather, upon water—for we are over the middle of Lake Michigan-we would be literally dead.

The Chicago Journal -f the 18th says: "Mr. Grimwood was a young man of more than ordinary promise-physically, cultured, studious and unobtrusive; so cially, of a peculiarly pleasant, good-natured and humorous disposition-often minded, of noble instincts, the best of tious of excelling as a practical newspaper man. He became a reporter only as a stepping-stone to something higher in the journalistic profession, and had he lived he would no doubt have been a successful humorist and essayist in literature. His last words among his assembled associates in the Journal office on the afternoon of the day he ascended in the balloon were jovial, and he was unusually full of good spirits. He was twenty-two years of age in February last, and was enraged to be married to a lady in Lockport, His aged father, Mr. William Grimwood, of Kendall County, Ill., is in the

The total value of commodities, the rowth, product, and manufacture of the United States, exported during the year was $643,081,433, against $693,039,054 in 1874, a decline for the last year of $49,-957,621. The Chief of the Bureau of Statistics says the value of domestic merhandise exported to Canada in railroad cars, not included in the above figures, is about $14,000,000, which would make the actual falling off in domestic exports for the year, compared with the

THE Salt Lake City (Utah) correspondent of the Chicago Tribune writes as folwaves, conveying before it logs and drift, lows concerning the recent trial at Beaver and entering the houses with such force as of the Mormon John D. Lee for his con-for a week. Not a house in the place was spared, and the people are living on the raignment of any of the actors in that tragecond floors. They go about in skiffs, but edy was had, and the jury (two-thirds nany have moved away to drier localities. Mormon) disagreed, rendering the proceed-Many hogs, cows and chickens, but no ings a farce. This, notwithstanding it persons, were drowned, as far as can be was abundantly established by the prosecucarned. The damage is not to be esti- tion that the occurrence is rightly understood by the world, and the failure on the part of the defense to either disprove the facts as generally received or to establish even a pretext for the wholesale murder. Which shows, taken with the tone of the community in which the trial took place, as witnessed by numerous indications inside and outside of court, that the people of Southern Utah, after eighteen years of reflection, after the growth of a new gengates of our foreign and domestic trade is eration, sympathize with the perpetrators and of the exposure of the truth; others, counsel, who seem to have appeared voluntarily and without fee, except it was from the church, confining themselves to a vain effort to defend the church. A little examination will show that the theory a loss in coin for the last fiscal year of over advanced is too thin and too late.

According to it, the emigrants harried nd imposed on the people, poisoned prings and sold the Indians poisoned meat; that the Indians, justly incensed, gathered and attacked them in revenge; that the Mormons thereupon hastened to the scene to rescue the emigrants; that they succeeded in persuading them to give up their arms and property to appease the Indians, and were conducting them to a place of safety in the rear; that then Klingan Smith (State's evidence) and a few other black-hearted Mormons, from native ferocity, fired upon them; that this excited the Indians beyond control, who thereupon (being conveniently in ambush) appeared and perpetrated the massacre. If this were true, and Brigham Young, then Governor of the Territory, as well as

of Indian Affairs, were an honest man, what indignation he must have felt against Klingan Smith and the few other Mormons, and how speedily would be have investigated the matter, fixed the blame, and punished the guilty. But he did not, and he now has the effrontery to say that he never knew of the affair at all, except from public rumor; that when Lee attempted to report to him he stopped him berger peremptorily, lest his feelings should be barrowed up. Everything every member of the church does is well known at headquarters, as in the case of a well-organized and disciplined army in the field. And yet a regiment of the church army marches fifty miles under its regular officers, and exterminates an emigrant train 5.965 of 130 persons, and Brigham Young never 3,441 knew aught about it except from public rumor. And, if Lee's action on that occasion was taken to save and not to destroy 07.693 the emigrants, why did Brigham Young make him the scapegoat in the case two or three years ago by cut-ting him off from the church? Brigham says the reason he didn't investigate it as Governor was because he was just then su perseded in that office, and that he offered If the assistance in his power to the new officers. The truth is, Judge Cradelbaugh ield the first court in the district after the ccurrence, and, at the end of weeks of neffectual scolding, was obliged to dismiss his Mormon Grand Jury because they would no nothing. Probably the bones of 200 murdered persons were then pleaching in the district; yet they would indict no one. Cradelbaugh got a detail of Johnston's troops for personal protection, went south, and, with bench-warrants and soldiers, dragged the butchers from the woods, and ferreted out the facts, such as the world knows them. And this was how Brigham Young assisted him. Had he said to that Grand Jury that he wanted the guilty punished, it would have been done in short order. But how could he have his Bishops and Presidents hanged for "living their religion?" Moreover, Cummings didn't succeed him as Governor until nearly a year after the mas-

But, say it was not in his power to pun ish or to report to Washington as Governor and comptroller of Indian affairs, it was in his hands as head of the church to fellowship or otherwise these women-assassi nating and baby-eating priests of his church. And he fellowships them all to this day, except Lee, and he fellowshiped him as long as he dared to. Counsel for the defense say it was preposterous that the church should have preached and blowed" about it if they had intended to murder the emigrants. Preposterous or not, the published discourses of the church show that not only then, but always, the church has taught murder (under certain circumstances, of which the church was alone the judge) as a part of their religion. And, as to "blowing," there never was such a set of crazy braggarts before under heaven. The beggar Jo Smith announcing himself as a candidate for the Presidency as soon as he had secured a respectable body-guard of dupes illustrates the spirit of the church from its founder down.

But from time to time the world has that they poisoned a spring and sold poisoned meat to the Indians. The defense attempted to show these things; but the testimony to that effect fell into shreds 670.146 at the touch of cross-examination. So that the defense established nothing that could be urged even as a pretext. Nothing could palliate it, except a similar attack by the emigrants on the settlements. The defense knew their jury and confined themselves principally to abusing the witnesses for the prosecution. If they were as bad as represented the wonder is their brethren 2:s | didn't find it out till they left the murdering church.

The prosecution fairly established, on the other hand, judicially, the facts of the 100,682 massacre as it long since passed into his. tory. Their witnesses disagreed only in 46.398 two or three insignificant matters such as The value given for domestic exports, they would have been likely to agree except coin and bullion, is currency. The about had they been telling a lie. It is proper to say that Klingan Smith abandoned the church soon after the butchery ported from the United States during the and has since lived in California, whence year was $22,374,710, against $22,780,300 he was brought by the prosecution as a witness. He was a Mormon Bishop in good standing at the time, and he tells the whole story no doubt as it happened. There was no attempt to rebut his testimony, to break it down or to impeach him.
