Frolic to Send Omaha Elk Band to Atlantic City

Proceeds From Bull Fight Attraction to Send Musicians to National Con-

The committee in charge of the Elks' frolic at Krug park during the week of June 26 reports progress in the arrangement of many details for the big event. The park will be the stamping ground for thousands of Elks and thousands of friends of Elks during the week.

The proportion of the receipts ac-cruing to Omaha lodge No. 39, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, will be used to send the Elks' band to the national meeting at Atlantic City next month.

Considerable public interest has been aroused over the announcement by W. W. Bradley, superintendent of the Nebraska Humane society, that the proposed buil fight will not be held in connection with this carnival. Omaha Elks have never failed yet in any undertaking and they assert they will not rescind their determination to hold this bull fight, just as advertised. The event will be a revelation in bull fights. If it should be necessary to kill the bull the animal will be disposed of in a humane manner. The bull will not suffer. Senor Jose Matanzas, iamous Spanish toreador, will be here during the week.

Other special attractions will be the Elks' Palace of Fun, Fatima, The Decapitated Elk, Maggie Murphy and Matilda Ann Brunt, Teddy Brothers, wrestlers, and concerts by the Elks' band. yet in any undertaking and they as-

Homes of Comfort

Copyrighted, 1922,

By Adams & Kelly Co.

Probably no type of home has increased in popularity as much as the New England colonial. This style is an adaptation of the graceful lines and perfect symmetry of the Georgian ideals to American materials, living conditions, climate and the economy necessary to the pioneers.

With enameled trim, malogany stained doors and bright desperies, a besetiful background can be made for the graceful malogany furniture of this period. Such a home is harmonious, restful, dignified and attractive in every way.

In the home illustrated here the proportions, decoration, symmetry and simple dignity of the colonial period are adapted to modern living requirements, conveniences and arrangement of the interior.

The sutability of the interior is evident from a study of the floor plans, and the proportions of the exterior are perfect. Working drawings for Homes of Comfort may be obtained from Adams & Kelly company, Omaha.

Progress sets the pace and those who refuse to be converted suffer the penalty of seeing the ground cut from under their feet," says Charles A. Human kind are very selfish. Especially selfish in their griefs, but the theory argued by Sir Arthur makes them even more selfish than they are. They not only build this world around their selfishness, but they reach over beyond the grave and, in the same selfish way, command their dead and even build a heaven.

The stories from the dead relate to the most trivial, petty, of no consequence details. They would not do credit to the mind of a child in kindergarten. If this is heaven,
