

Transmississippi Golf Journey Opens Here Monday

Here's Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, Twin City crack golfer, one of the tourney entries, who is doped to be up among the leaders in the finals.

The Country club offers a spacious and well-equipped club house for entertainment of tournament visitors. Photo by Louis R. Bostwick.

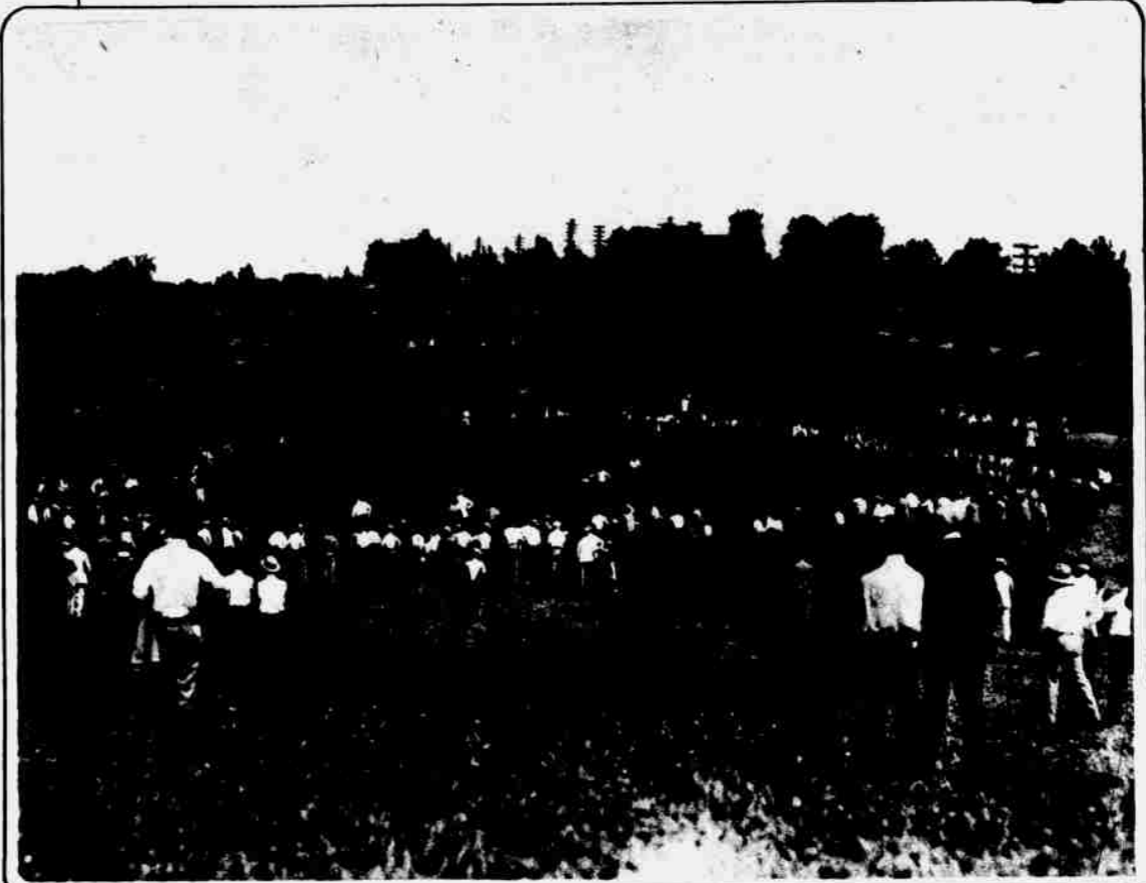

Francis Gaines, Omaha Country club, secretary of the tournament, will take a shot at working his way into the finals.

R. E. (Rudy) Knemper, Sioux City youngster, is figured a dangerous contender for championship honors, despite opposition of more experienced players.

Sam Reynolds, Field club, is the only Omaha player entered in the tournament who is a former winner of the Trans-Mississippi title.

Crowd following a match game over the Country club course. Photo by Louis R. Bostwick.

George Von Elm, Salt Lake City, Pacific northwest champion, is one of the prominent tournament entries.

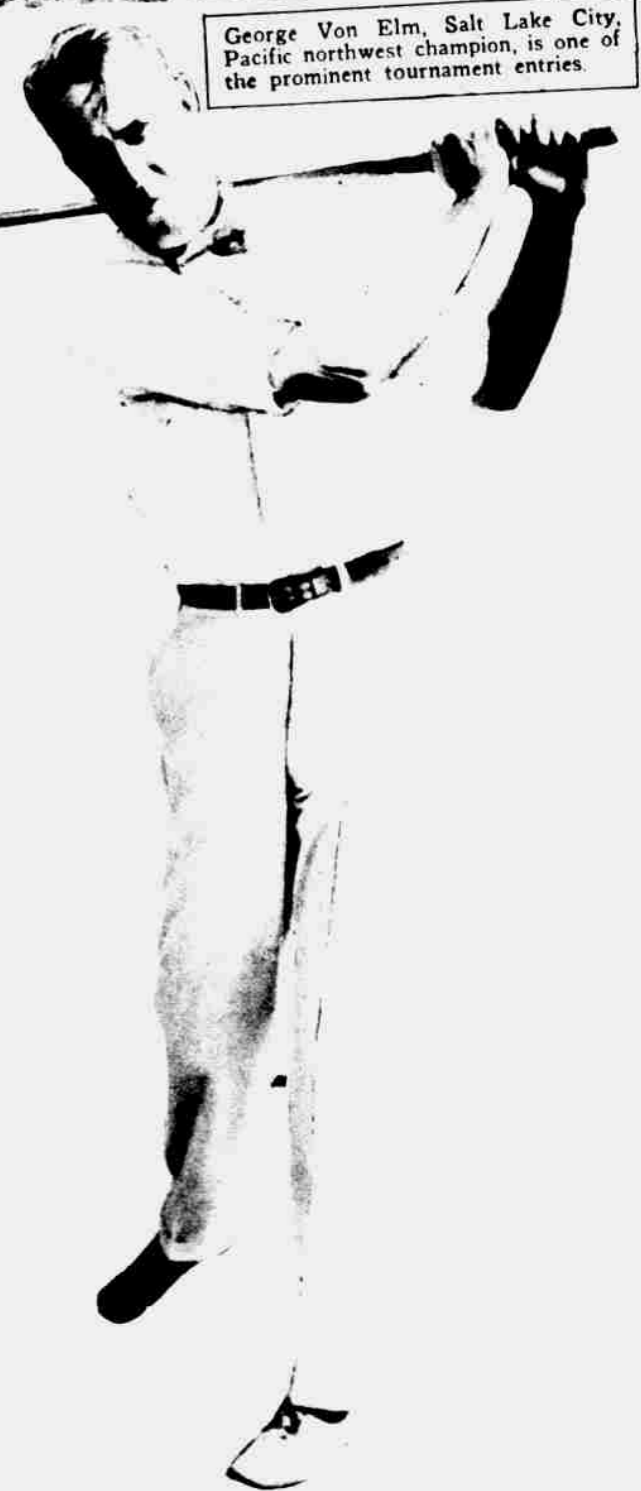

Charlie Johnson, professional instructor at the Country club, pronounces the course in excellent condition for the opening games tomorrow.

General view of the Country club links. Photo by Louis R. Bostwick.

Blaine Young, Field club player and present Nebraska champion, is out to uphold honor of the Cornhusker state against outside entries.

Guy Beckett, Omaha Field club golfer and former Nebraska state champion, will compete in the Trans-Mississippi.