

Legion and U. S. C. of C. Exchange Bonus Broadside

Douglas County Ex-Soldiers Ask Definite Action from Chamber in Aiding Disabled Vets.

Douglas county American Legion, post No. 1, and the United States Chamber of Commerce board of directors exchanged written broadsides on the bonus question yesterday.

The legion communication, which was delivered to President Julius H. Barnes of the national chamber at Hotel Fontenelle yesterday, asked for "some definite action . . . which will actually aid the veterans in what is doing for the disabled service men of the country."

"Will the United States Chamber of Commerce join the legion in the effort which it must make to remove this idea (of just treatment of veterans) from the minds of the millions of ex-service men in the country?" continues the legion communication. "If the bonus was wrong, will you foster something which will, for these men, take its place? If nothing should take its place, will you make an effort to so convince these men and the country at large . . . ?"

Rail Attorney Is Hot Under Collar Over Cook Action

The legion message continues by asking if the chamber will inaugurate a program properly financed to investigate specific needs of disabled veterans and place in Washington a permanent organization to aid the American Legion in its efforts in their behalf.

"Your organization has justly assumed responsibility for having killed the bonus," says the closing paragraph of the legion message. "We expect you to assume responsibility for the results which have followed. You have undertaken to set your will and your opinion above the expressed will of the majority of the nation in determining how the country shall pay its obligation to its soldiers. Now that your immediate end is satisfied, you cannot leave the misguided nation to work out its own future."

The message is signed by Samuel W. Reynolds, post commander, and was read during the board meeting immediately after it was received. Several members of the board expressed the opinion it was "one of the most adroit and clever messages" ever received by the board on the bonus question, and President Barnes left the meeting immediately to dictate a reply.

Vets' Department.

The reply calls attention to one department maintained by the national chamber now devoted especially to making sure that proper relief is furnished disabled veterans, and declares that the chamber has "consistently supported every appropriation and every action to assist the disabled veterans of the late war and re-quip them for useful service in private life."

The chief reason for the chamber's opposition to the blanket payment of bonuses to uninjured veterans is given as a belief that "the ultimate effect of such unreasoned finance would be to create industrial distress and unemployment, reacting directly against the prosperity and the well-being of these veterans as of all citizens."

The reply also asserts that the chamber appointed at its first meeting Thursday a committee of serious minded business men fully sympathetic with veterans to investigate the whole question as to whether it is possible, with proper protection against imposition, to develop any plan of relief for injured veterans.

The reply offers to consider any suggestion that the legion may offer for relief of those uninjured who really suffered a disability.

Replies to Barnes. Commander Sam Reynolds' answer to Mr. Barnes follows: "The American Legion has not and never will abandon its fight for adjusted compensation. Mr. Barnes' attempt to interpret our position as one of having abandoned the fight can best be answered by the action of his executive committee in only yesterday appointing a committee, a new army equipped and supplied to oppose the bonus issue when it comes up again. There will be a new bonus and new bonus bills until the will of the American people as to an adjusted compensation for ex-service men is complied with and the United States Chamber of Commerce is no longer in a position to, as Mr. Barnes has stated here in Omaha they did last week, sign the president's name to a veto message."

"We are shocked at Mr. Barnes' offer to trade support of our legislation for disabled veterans for an abandonment of the bonus by the legion. The legion has asked, in all sincerity for active support of the chamber in its fight for the disabled, but if that support must be bought then the legion will carry on alone and undisturbed as it has for four years. The disabled must, and shall, be cared for."

Attends Sessions on 84th Birthday

Here is Arthur B. Farquhar of York, Pa., a member of the United States Chamber of Commerce board of directors in session here. Mr. Farquhar celebrated his 84th birthday Thursday. He has missed only one meeting of the board in 11 years and protested forcibly against leaving the meeting this morning long enough to pose for a picture.

"I'm absolutely happy because I try to live each day for the benefit of humanity," said Mr. Farquhar.

Counsel for Northwestern Protests to Governor Release of Strikers Arrested at Fremont.

Decrying mob rule in Fremont, Neb., where he charges public officials failed to uphold the law, Wymer Dressler, counsel for the Northwestern railroad, today appealed to Clarence A. Davis, state's attorney general, from the action of Joseph C. Cook, Dodge county attorney, in dismissing kidnapping charges against a quintet of strikers.

"Two or three cool heads in the Fremont mob alone averted a repetition of the Herin, Ill., murders, for the majority of the mob was bent on bloodshed," Dressler asserts in his letter to Davis. "If acts of this character are to go unpunished, I see no use in this state for county attorneys or any other prosecuting authorities. If these same rioters and officials were dealing with a pint of whiskey they would prosecute vigorously and favor penitentiary sentences, while attempted murder goes unpunished."

Dressler calls on the attorney general and Governor McKelvie to bring the Fremont kidnapers to justice. "The kidnaping incident occurred the night of July 14, when a mob of striking employes attacked 10 railway employees, compelled them to run at least a mile in front of speeding autos and tortured them in other ways, so they required medical attention, Dressler charges.

The case was first handled by John Gumb, acting county attorney, until Cook returned from California a few days ago. Instead of filing information pursuant to the action in a preliminary hearing, he dismissed the case on the grounds the penalty for kidnaping is so severe he did not think a jury would convict the men.
