

Disease Sweeping Refugee Camps; Hundreds Dying

Red Cross Worker Gains First Hand Picture of Conditions at Salonika—Thousands Are Starving.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Hundreds of refugees from Asia Minor, ravaged by malaria and starvation, are dying daily at Salonika, according to a message from Miss Sophie Nelson of the American Red Cross nursing service at Athens, received at national headquarters of the Red Cross today.

Miss Nelson, who has just returned to Athens after a survey of conditions at Salonika, gives a first-hand picture of "terrible conditions among the starving thousands" an announcement by the Red Cross says.

"First careful examination of the refugee area at Salonika just completed," the Nelson message said. "This is the largest refugee center in Greece. There are 70,000 in city and another 10,000 in surrounding country. Hundreds are dying daily. Malaria is sweeping all camps. There is no food, no clothing, no medical supplies. Whoever gets sick, dies.

"An American Red Cross ship arrived with flour and people mobbed it, breaking the flour sacks. Every day big riots occur at the only soup kitchen in Salonika, which dispenses 7,500 portions daily. People fight for food, pulling hair and knocking each other down. There is looting and stealing at night throughout the city. "One of the greatest tragedies is the frequent suicide of those who can no longer endure the awful conditions. The city is choked with refugees, who are in schools, churches, mosques, warehouses, cafes, moving picture theaters, ruins, corridors of public buildings, railway stations and quays. You fall over them in the streets.

"The first shipment of American Red Cross flour and milk has reached Salonika and more flour is coming in a few days."

Born in Delaware county, New York, June 18, 1852, Mrs. Barker moved with her father, a lumberman, to Oshkosh, Wis., where she was married to the late Maj. John Barker in 1860. She and her husband returned to New York state to Omaha in 1882.

Slight Woman Brings Prowler to Bay With Gun

Fort Crook Soldier, Attempting to Enter House, Captured After Widow Fires Twice.

A sure-fire gun in the hands of Mrs. Edith Richardson brought a midnight prowler to bay Sunday night.

The little widow, weighing only 120 pounds, fired two shots at the intruder, before a neighbor, William Stoeter, ran to her aid and helped capture the window-jumper.

He gave the name of James McGinn, private at Fort Crook.

Since the death of her husband four years ago Mrs. Richardson has lived with her sick, widowed mother, and her two young sons, 11 and 15, in a little home at 1408 Dear Park boulevard.

Little Widow Holds Persistent Prowler

Mrs. Edith Richardson.

"I am the strong one in my family—I have no one else on whom to rely," said the sturdy little woman. "My husband bought me the gun a short time before he died, because burglars entered our house several times before."

Mrs. Richardson said she had no fear in using the gun, though she never fired one before in her life.

"I was so angry at the prowler for disturbing my poor, sick old mother," she exclaimed.

Problem of Cooking 2,500 Pounds of Beef for Barbecue Settled.

How to cook 2,500 pounds of beef, get it all done at the same time and serve it to 2,500 men while it is still hot was one of the questions that came up at a meeting of the Creighton Homecoming day general committee, presided over by General Chairman Edward F. Leary. The question was referred to "Doc" Fry, famous as the best "barbecue" man in all the western country.

The 2,500 pounds of beef will be barbecued and served to the 2,500 "Homecomers" who are expected to attend Creighton day next Saturday, November 18.

Another question with which the committee wrestled yesterday was the basis upon which to award the loving cup offered to the class with the greatest representation of "homecomers." This question was left to John Caldwell, chairman of the committee, after the general committee had discussed number present, miles traveled, percentages, points, etc., as a basis. The cup will probably be awarded at the dance given by the students Saturday night.

The committee on registration, of which Dr. William Stoff is chairman, was reported as follows: 820 to 12—School of Medicine, Dr.

Leo MacNamara of Owyhee, Idaho, was on the local market yesterday with a string of five cars of lambs. Three carloads of the shipment sold for $13.75 a hundred and the other two cars sold for $13.80 a hundred.

"We had a tough trip," said Mr. MacNamara, "it taking 10 days to get here and we encountered one of the worst storms of my experience. As soon as we left Buhl, the leading point, it began to storm and kept getting worse until we reached Wyoming, when we went into a regular blizzard. Heavy snow and wrecked trains held us back and the storm was so bad the flagman could not be seen when sent back to avoid rear-end collisions.

"Next month we will have another consignment of lambs for the local market. I have been building up my breeding herd and expect a large production next season."

Snow Is Reported on Way to Omaha

Forty-Eight Hour Drizzle Totals .94 Inches of Rainfall.

The first snow of the season is on the way.

It is but a question of hours, in the opinion of the weather man, as to when Omaha will be blanketed with white frozen flakes.

The forecast for last night was colder and rain, with rain today, but the weather man, casting his eye over reports from the west, nodded his head slowly when asked if this rain probably would become snow before dawn today.

It was 42 degrees above zero in Omaha at 7 yesterday morning and the mercury showed no inclination to rise. Ninety-four hundredths of an inch of rain has fallen in the city in the last 48 hours.

It was only four above at Denver, with 10 inches of snow. Snow is falling in western Nebraska, the Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, according to the weather man, and the winds are blowing the snow-laden clouds this way.

The Union Pacific, Burlington and Northwestern railroads claim their trains are running "near to schedule," however.
