Immediate Relief in all Cases by

Dr. Rush's

BLOOD ROOT OIL

Cured of Rheumatism in 2 Hours.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 2, 1882.

Dr. Rush's Medical Association:

GENTLEMEN.—I have been troubled with rheumatism for two years. I tried all the best advertised oils and liniments, and many first-class physicians without relief. The last Dr. I visited recommended Dr. Rush's "BLOOD ROOT OIL." I purchased a large bottle for fifty cents, and applied it. In two hours I was relieved and now I am entirely well. Its effects are wonderful, and I believe it the only thing in the world which will cure rheumatism.

Truly yours, JOHN HUTCHINSON,
89 Erie St., Buffalo, N. Y.

DR. RUSH'S BLOOD ROOT OIL

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 26, 1883.

The Speakership contest is the chief topic here at present and I notice there is little else written about by the correspondents. It is of course enshrouded in uncertainty owing to a rather mixed state of things, and issues of some moment are believed to be involved in the result, yet it is under no circumstances likely to be greatly prolonged or to resemble in any respect the memorable contests of the past. In the Thirty-fourth Congress two months were consumed in electing a Speaker, the choice falling upon N. P. Banks on the one hundred and thirty-third ballot; and in the Thirty-sixth Congress a struggle quite as protracted resulted in the election of William Pennington. But these contests were in the House itself and grew out of the evenly balanced condition of parties, while the present struggle is wholly within one party and is likely to be settled before Congress convenes. One feature of the contest is the candidacy of Mr. Cox, who has many supporters, all of whom are like the candidate himself, innocent of any attempt at joking in this case. But it is a fact that Mr. Cox has a deserved reputation for being funny, and it is difficult to associate this with the idea of dignity; hence there is an undisguised fear that, however able and well-deserving he may be, he would not lend to the position that appearance of dignity and statesmanship now so important to the party. Mr. Cox has parlors at Willard's, where he receives his friends, and there is no better entertainer to be found. He is ever ready with an illustration and a story; always genial and bright, "a fellow of infinite jest," with a fund of information and a facility of quotation seldom equaled.

The weather is bright and beautiful here now and with hundreds of strangers coming in daily the streets present an animated appearance. Pennsylvania avenue is crowded nearly every afternoon with promenaders, and one can see style and beauty enough in a single walk down this handsome thoroughfare to delight his senses for a week at least. Among the distinguished visitors to the capital during the last few days is Governor Butler. I saw him waddle into the dining room at Willard's with a rosebud in his button-hole and looking as fresh as a daisy. He is said to favor Cox for Speaker. The lobby at Willard's begins to assume its old time appearance in the evenings now that the house is filling up with notables. It is general headquarters during all seasons of political excitement, partly because of its location no doubt and partly because it is such a large house and accommodates so many prominent guests. Wm. R. Morrison, of Illinois, a strong supporter of Carlisle for Speaker, has quarters there and it is rather an interesting sight to see him backed up against one of the large pillars in the rotunda and surrounded by a score of eager correspondents boring for points. Mr. Morrison is one of the ablest men in Congress and if Carlisle is chosen Speaker he will likely be chairman of the ways and means committee. The event which is to open brilliantly the social season here is the housewarming of the Metropolitan Club in its handsome new quarters on the 28th. Thus far there has been even less sociability than usual at this season on account of the extraordinary absorption of such society ladies as are already here in furnishing the new houses into which so many of them are entering. It is rather surprising to see so many prominent and fashionable ladies attending the auctions of fine furniture and house-keeping goods as one meets here. In this respect Washington is different from most other large cities.
