

By reason of an unavoidable delay, we were unable to give our readers the supplement containing the "Laird Vindication," last week, but we issue, this week, an extra which contains all the affidavits, statements and facts in the alleged frauds in connection with the Stinking Water claims, which completely exonerates all parties concerned from fraud of any kind, and the death-like silence of the Bee and Herald, the papers preferring the charges, gives additional weight to the vindication. A careful perusal can't fail of convincing the candid mind.

"AFTER THE BATTLE" is the caption under which the Courier, assailed THE TRIBUNE, the people of McCook, and of Willow Grove precinct, last week. The editor first pays his respects to THE TRIBUNE in the following paragraph, which it is not at all necessary for us to notice, as the people of Red Willow county know full well that there is not one truthful word in the entire paragraph:

"THE TRIBUNE of the 8th inst., not satisfied with the results of the election in this county, seeks to fight the battle over, and in the hour of probable victory, gloats over the defeat of certain candidates on THE TICKET.

We have made diligent inquiry into the condition of the Editor's health at the time of giving birth to the above; but, have found no indications of any dire disease, save that the editor was suffering from a paroxysm of dyspepsia superinduced by hearing the returns from Willow Grove precinct, which is a constitutional excuse. For fear that the condition of our mind with respect to the recent county election be misunderstood, let us remark that we have no cause for dissatisfaction whatever, that we are not feeling particularly bellicose, and that what the Courier styles GLOATING, was in fact merely the reproduction of some of The Courier Extra "slop-over," to stir up the editor's "pure mind by way of remembrance" which, although a "close student of party history and principles," he had failed to see or hear. Sorry we were misunderstood.

"Comparisons are odorous," at best, but comparing the Bridge Bond Election with the quiet, orderly election held in McCook on the 6th inst., is a most ludicrous burlesque of the truth, an absolute falsehood, to put it mild, and a slur on the good people of McCook. The editor says that he was informed by a "prominent" citizen of McCook, that the election held here was conducted in a more "extended and aggravated" manner than "the famous Bridge Bond Election," where whiskey flowed like water. An unmitigated falsehood. The only really intoxicated man on our streets on election day was the "THE TICKET" peddler, and, sub rosa, who helped or ought to have helped pay for the Bridge Bond Election whiskey?

He further says that 50 illegal votes were polled in this precinct. A mere bald-headed assertion. Let us have the proof. While it MAY BE POSSIBLE that a very few votes were cast which were illegal, the allegation that 50 illegal votes were polled is not true, or THE TRIBUNE, at least, wants the proof to convince us. We know of 25 men right here in McCook who did not vote at all, and others think there are more. Willow Grove precinct, if all voters come out, can poll 225 legal votes.

In conclusion, the election in this precinct was as quiet and orderly a one as any held in Red Willow county. The whiskey may have flown like water, but no one living here saw the stream, or its hideous effects, except in the case mentioned. The Courier has made a number of serious charges against the people of this precinct, and we would respectfully call for the proof. Let us see whether these outrageous insinuations are based upon fact or whether envy has been the prompter. But for heaven's sake don't give your McCook friend away.

IN MEMORIAM. DIED:—At the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Royal Buck, Red Willow, Neb., on Thursday, Nov. 22, 1883, Flora E. Buck, aged twenty-nine years, four months and sixteen days.

From a child she had been afflicted with a nervous disease which greatly impaired her usefulness, and which was a cross to her, which, however, she bore with heroic bravery and Christian resignation. At the early age of ten years, she united with the Congregational Church of Nebraska City on profession of faith, and has honored that profession by a most earnest, consistent Christian life.

In 1872 she entered the State Normal School at Peru, to prepare herself for a teacher. After remaining there one year, it became evident that her nervous system could not endure the strain of severe study, and she was obliged to leave the institution. She subsequently fulfilled several engagements in teaching, in which she was eminently successful, but her health compelled her to abandon the profession.

For a year and a half she has kept the rainfall record, and made the other observations for the county, for the Weather Service Bureau at Lincoln; she has also made monthly reports to the Signal Service Bureau, Gen. Hazen's department, Washington City, in return for which, that department has sent her many valuable scientific and other publications.

From necessity, being much confined at home, she was far from being idle. Possessing an active, thoughtful mind, she spent much time in reading and writing. Many of her writings, both prose and poetic, have found their way into the "Advance" and various educational journals. Her diary, which she has kept from the age of eleven years, is a rare fund of information. All important happenings, both local and general, were carefully noted, and as carefully preserved. Her albums, scrap-books, and manuscript compilations from standard authors are very voluminous. Among them are about one hundred and twenty descriptive poems of old familiar things. In an album of sacred poems are a large number which she often spoke of, as so exactly fitting her case, that they seemed to have been especially written for her. Below are given two of these selections which were most frequently quoted:

"LEAN HARD." Child of my love, lean hard, And let me feel the pressure Of thy love. I know thy burden, child, I shaped it, made no proportion In its weight to thine unaided strength, For even as I laid it on, I said, "I shall be near, And while she leans on me This burden shall be mine, not hers. So shall I keep my child within The circling arms of mine own love." Here lay it down, Nor fear to impose it on a shoulder which upholds The government of worlds. Yet closer come; thou art not near enough, I would embrace thy care, so I might Feel my child reposing on my breast. Thou lovest me? I know it— Fear not then, But loving me, "LEAN HARD."

The way is dark my child, but leads to light; I would not have thee always walk by sight. My dealings now, thou canst not understand— I meant it so, but I will take thy hand, And through the gloom, Lead safely home my child. The way is long, my child, but it shall be Not one step longer than is best for thee; And thou shalt know at last, when thou shalt stand Safe at the gate, how I did take thy hand, And quick and straight, Lead to Heaven's gate, my child.

At home, she was the dutiful daughter, the tender, affectionate sister, the entertaining companion, loving and being loved; cheerfully trying to overcome the loss of life's pleasures which her ill health denied her. In the neighborhood she was the children's friend; her hands were always ready to prepare something for their comfort, enjoyment and instruction. She has left a Dorcas record, and all who knew her, loved her.

The Congregational Church of McCook has lost a devout praying member, and the home circle is broken; but father and mother, sister and brother, through burning tears, look away to the heavenly home where the dear one has gone to await a re-union in the bright beyond.

The funeral services were conducted on Saturday, at her late residence, by Rev. Dungan of McCook, and the remains were interred in the cemetery at Indianola.

"HOME"

A Highly Enjoyable Entertainment by the McCook L.-G. Band.

The Band Hall was literally packed with the elite of McCook, Indianola and Culbertson, Wednesday evening, to hear the members of the Band, assisted by Mrs. W. F. Wallace, Miss Jennie Fisher and Miss Manie Hunt, render "Home," a comedy in three acts written by Robertson. All available room was occupied, aisles, window sills, and standing room was at a premium. The play had been well studied and pretty thoroughly memorized, and was well presented throughout. Mr. Forbes was at his best as Colonel White. Mr. Hunt made a strong character as the bibulous Mexican Captain, and the character of Mr. Dorrisson by Mr. Wallace, Bertie Thompson by Mr. Stiles, Servant by Mr. Chenery, Mrs. Pinchbeck by Mrs. Wallace, Lucy Dorrisson by Miss Hunt, and Dora Thornhollow by Miss Fisher, were each well sustained. Messrs. Yager, Kenyon and Stiles who composed the orchestra, deserve their "meed of praise" for the beautiful music rendered on the occasion. The overture by the band gave evidence of great improvement, and was certainly well played. The boys promise other entertainments during the winter, and the excellence of the performance of last evening insures a good audience of any time the boys may be prepared to put another play on the boards.
