A TEN days' tour over that portion of Nebraska visited by the B. & M. locomotives has persuaded the writer that he has hitherto possessed vague notions of the progress and prosperity of the state. The commonwealth is assuming imperial proportions, and the predictions of the most sanguine pioneer of twenty to thirty years ago, fall far short of prophecy.

The most striking features of the outlook this year is the uniformity of the appearance of the growing crops. The corn fields of the Nemaha are reproduced on the Blues and on the Republican, and the corn fields of the divides and uplands are fac similes of those of the river bottoms and low-lands, and from the Missouri river to the Colorado line, wherever corn has been planted, the only observable difference between one field and another is manifestly due to a difference in the amount of culture bestowed, and not to soil or altitude.

If nothing untoward happens there can be no doubt that the aggregate harvest of the coming fall in Nebraska, divided by the area planted, will surpass anything in the annals of the United States and secure a permanent place for this state in the very front of the agricultural sections of the union.

The magnificence of the grain fields in this state is not marred by the appearance of the towns. There is not to be found anywhere on the face of the earth a collection of towns, villages and incipient cities of the same age, that show the good taste, neatness, and marks of thrift and enterprise that are everywhere seen in these new Nebraska towns. The business houses, larger residences and frame cottages of McCook, Indianola, Alma, Republican City and Bloomington and Red Cloud in the Republican Valley, with their shaded and shaven lawns of blue grass and clover, their neat fences and sidewalks, their brick school houses, churches and court houses, are not only worthy of New England but surpass the pattern in the freshness of their paint and the beauty of their modern designs. Nothing approaching the completeness of the towns of western Nebraska can be found in any other frontier state through which we have travelled.

Nebraska is a marvel, not only to the stranger within her gates but to the older pioneers of the eastern tier of counties. The people that are now pouring into her borders and occupying the prairie, come for homes. They are rapidly making her the most home-like state in all the west.—State Journal.

SIR MOSES MONTEFIORE has at last succumbed to the common fate of mortality. A Hebrew of the Hebrews in the tenacity with which he clung to traditions and customs covered with tangled ivy, he won the respect and good will of all nations by the purity of his life and his immeasurable sympathy for destitution and suffering. The poor of every race who "have only the heavens for a covering and the earth for a couch," will miss a generous benefactor. When his friends died he said, "It is a dagger thrust into me," and the Israelites of Palestine use the same expression when speaking of their loss. He lived long, but could not outlive his usefulness. He travelled the earth over before railroads were dreamed of; he has seen dynasties fall and kings and queens flying for their lives; he has looked into the face of famine and pestilence; he has been hunted by wolves and has done what he could to succor his people when hunted by the Czar. And now, after life's fitful fever, Sir Moses has "joined the majority."—New York Herald.

A NEW use has been found for the guitar. The Spanish troops occupying the cholera stricken city of Saragosa have been supplied with these instruments to enable them to keep up their spirits. The soldiers are trying the effects of guitar music as an antidote for cholera, and for fear the disease might catch them napping they keep up the alleged music day and night. It is reported that the inhabitants have fled the city, but whether in dread of the cholera or to get away from the music is not stated. Between the two terrible infictions the world at large will not be surprised that everybody wanted to run away. There will be some curiosity to learn whether there are any soldiers who survive the double danger. Those that do need not be afraid of the trifling danger arising from Gatling guns and exploding shells.

Is your life worth 25 cents? That is the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It has saved many lives and may yours yet if you have it at hand for use in case of an attack of Cholera Morbus, Dysentery or Diarrhoea. It will also cure Asiatic Cholera if taken in time. Sold by M. A. Spalding and B. & M. Pharmacy.

How indestructible the good grows and propagates itself, even among the weedy entanglement of evil.

GOLD can buy nearly everything in this world except that which a man wants most, viz: happiness.

THE owners of horses who wish to keep flies from tormenting them, can do so by rubbing with a solution made by steeping a pound of walnut leaves in a quart of water; after standing a few minutes strain and bottle for use.

THE recent exposures of the Pall Mall Gazette have had their desired effect upon the house of commons which by an immense majority passed the law for the protection of female children. Now if the Gazette will see that the law is enforced and that London's aristocratic lechers are brought to justice, it will receive the plaudits of the whole civilized world.

IRELAND's population is steadily and rapidly decreasing, owing principally to the large migration of its people to America. And yet there are few more patriotic peoples than the Irish. These facts taken in conjunction show that most if not all the ills of Ireland are real and not imaginary, and that the complaints made against the rapacity and injustice of England are well founded. Will the English people never realize that they are the greatest losers by their course toward the Irish?

MORE than five hundred thousand cases of bowel complaint have been cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Only think of the pain and suffering it has relieved, the agony and distress it has prevented; the homes it has made happy; the lives it has saved, and you will appreciate the good work it has done. 25 cent, 50 cent and $1 bottles sold by M. A. Spalding and B. & M. Pharmacy.
