In the state of Maine, under the new liquor law, the payment of a special tax to the United States government is declared to be prima facie evidence of violation of the law, punishable in all instances by both fine and imprisonment. With United States marshals and state officers both interested, the man who sells liquor in that state must be assured that his customer is dry.

THOMAS J. POTTER, first vice president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, has tendered his resignation, which will be accepted to take effect May 15th. The officials of the Burlington have had the resignation under consideration several weeks and only accepted after having been assured by Potter that he had decided to accept the office of first vice president of the Union Pacific railroad, which has been tendered him. The announcement of Potter to the first vice presidency of the Union Pacific is accompanied by the statement that the Union Pacific has finally effected a lease of the Oregon Railroad & Navigation company's lines, the details of which were finally settled within the past few days. Vice President Potter will assume control of the allied lines May 15th, the terms of his contract with the Union Pacific providing that he is to have control of the consolidated system, which will of course be operated as one company. The headquarters of the company will remain as heretofore at Omaha. It is understood that C. E. Perkins will assume the duties relinquished by Potter, and that no other change on the Burlington will be made for the present. The lease of the Oregon Railway & Navigation company to the Union Pacific was signed Monday.

The present prohibition party nominally dates from about 1870, but it was subsequent to 1880 that it really had a noteworthy existence. Since then its growth has been so rapid that the party may practically be said to have been formed between 1880 and 1882, in which latter year it polled 73,303 votes. In 1884 its voting strength, as is well known largely increased polling, a total vote for St. John and Daniel of 151,809. The campaigns in favor of prohibitory constitutional amendments in several of the states had kept the issue well before the public attention, and the very evident unwillingness of the politicians of the God-and-morality party to deal effectively with the question, had convinced the advocates of prohibition that nothing would be done for that cause. Hence the large vote for St. John. They held the balance of power in at least four states—New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Michigan. Had there been no prohibition ticket in the field, it is more than probable Mr. Blaine alone of the number gave a would have received the electoral votes of all the states names; as it was Michigan plurality for the republican ticket. In 1886 the total prohibition vote was 268,739, almost double that of '84, and in no less than eleven states—California, Connecticut, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon and West Virginia—the prohibition vote was greater than the plurality of the successful ticket. These states have an aggregate of 129 electoral votes. It is therefore made clear that the prohibitionists as a party are each year becoming a more potent factor in practical politics. The fact should be further considered that the prohibition party has never as yet polled more than a small percentage of what may fairly be called the prohibition vote. The votes recorded on constitutional amendments in various states and in local option contests show that fully 30 per cent. of the people of this country are really prohibitionists and willing to have the liquor traffic declared illegal. In other words, the third party prohibitionists have about 3,300,000 voters of kindred feeling to recruit from. There is, therefore, a phase of this third party movement which possesses great significance to the politician who is practical in politics.—Omaha Herald.
