MR. CLEVELAND says, in his letter of acceptance, that he has an "unmitigated hatred of the schemes of trusts, and he counts on checking their harmful results." We suppose that was his object when he put the son in law of Standard Oil Payne in his cabinet. He wanted to have Whitney, the bold, bad man, where he could watch him.

THE Detroit Tribune gives the names of eighteen veteran soldiers—all employed in the mail service in Michigan—who have been discharged by this administration. They were experienced and faithful men, but their politics did not suit Dickson, Cleveland & Co., and they were discharged. They did not, perhaps, come down promptly with the "campaign dust."

It is a ridiculous proposition for congress to offer $100,000 for a recipe for preventing yellow fever. The way to prevent yellow fever is to destroy the beds where it germinates, viz: filthy streets and alleys, cess pools, and ill-ventilated houses. When these sources are furnished with heat and moisture, all the nation's wealth could not buy a recipe for prevention.

EVERY man who works on a farm is interested in the protective tariff. Statistics of unquestioned accuracy show that since 1860 the wages of farm laborers in the United States have increased nearly 19 per cent., while the wages of farm laborers in Great Britain have increased only half that percentage. This is about the difference between wages in a free trade country all around.

So it seems there is still another labor party and it is to hold its national convention some time in October. Better late than never. The labor parties all put together would not be too large for convenience on election day, but it is so top heavy with statesmen that it has to be broken up into three armies so as to give an opportunity for the great men to appear at the front.

A FEW alleged anti monopoly sheets in the state, under the leadership of the Bee, and its vociferous tail, are tearing their nether garments in an abortive attempt to defeat Laws and to deny one Leese, a tool of a few shrewd politicians, who are thus endeavoring to knife the party. Laws is to day a truer friend of the people than Leese, with his bombastic egotism, is possible of becoming.

NEVER in the history of political parties have federal officials and their appointees been so importuned to contribute their money to the campaign as under this civil service reform administration. From the president down to the boy who runs the elevator, the demand has gone forth—give. Brer Breece knows how to wreck railroads, and he thinks he knows how to run a democratic campaign.

BEN BUTLER was asked the other day if he would accept a republican nomination for congress. With a merry twinkle in his blue eye, the general replied, "I shall not marry you, my pretty maid! Nobody asked you, sir," she said. "Do you see the application? I will say, however, that I have one additional qualification for congress, and that is that I am growing hard of hearing, and I should not wish to listen to many of the long speeches."

COMPLAINT comes from the headquarters of the Nebraska republican state central committee that campaign documents sent from Washington by mail fail to show up, although many days have elapsed since notice was received that the documents had been forwarded. Similar complaints are heard from numerous points east and west. Can it be that the mail service of this country is being conducted on this criminally partisan plan?

POSTMASTER GENERAL DICKINSON, Wednesday, made a campaign speech at Detroit, in which he pictured Cleveland as the only honest man now before the country. It is easy to see why Mr. Cleveland selected Mr. Dickinson for a cabinet position. Dickinson and Vilas are both good campaigners and from those two states where Cleveland expected to cause such a mighty political upheaval by his free trade message. The present campaign was planned by Mr. Cleveland many months ago, but his lack of judgment, as conspicuous as his lack of statesmanship, led him into a grievous and irreparable mistake.

THE real sensation of the day at the late Cross Creek conference, came when Bowed Head, an Indian, sprang into the circle and delivered the following urgent appeal to the Indians: "I am on a different path from some of the rest of you. I am not one of the chiefs sitting there, but I am a member of the tribe and I want to make a lead for the children. I am not a bit afraid of you because you are men. The only man I am afraid of is the God in whom I believe. While on this earth if there is any salvation to save the souls, I want to save the young generations of this tribe. If anybody is a friend of the Great Father I thought you chiefs were his friends; now you chiefs have spoken of our forefathers and their graves upon the hill, and then I thought to myself like this, when our forefathers died what had they accomplished for us, what did they do for us? I will tell you what marks they left behind them! An old camp fire where even now the grass does not grow, and old buffalo bones that we can see on the prairie; that is all that is left of their work. We can see the old stones that they worshipped still piled up. Young men, do you wish your children to go in this way? You chiefs, my brothers, my cousins, my relatives, I pray you have mercy on the young people who are beginning life and have no property to start with. I do not say these words because I seek to gain honor for myself, personally. I do not say them because I expect my great Father to remember me hereafter for it. Come forward, you chiefs, and set us an example. We are waiting for you because you are chiefs, but if you do not come forward, we will go forward regardless of you. You may not think it is good, but I know that it is good. I have finished."

MILTON WESTON, the Chicago capitalist whose case excited so much interest nearly three years ago, has been released from the Western penitentiary on an order from the Pennsylvania board of pardons. Weston, it will be remembered, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment on the charge of manslaughter, the act of killing having been done by some man in his employ during a fight between the forces of rival claimants for some valuable oil lands. Thousands of petitions were on file asking for Weston's pardon.

A DECISION has just been rendered in the supreme court of California to the effect that "trust" arrangements, whereby prices are fixed, are void as being in restraint of trade, and it has been decided by the supreme court of Tennessee that "trusts" which are known to partake of the nature of partnerships and combinations between corporations are not permissible under the law. The people have begun to assert their rights and the "trusts" must go.

LEGAL NOTICE. IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF RED WILLOW CO., NEBRASKA. F. L. BROWN, Defendant.

NOTICE. The defendant, Charles W. Lewis, will take notice that on the 24th day of September, 1888, F. L. Brown, plaintiff herein, filed his petition in the district court of Red Willow county, Nebraska, against the above named defendants to the effect that he claims to be the owner of a certain mortgage executed by the defendant, Lewis C. Hanning and Addie H. Hanning, his wife to the plaintiff, F. L. Brown, upon the following described real estate: "The north east quarter of section eleven, township four, range twenty six in the county of Red Willow and state of Nebraska;" to secure the payment of eight promissory notes, each dated October 26, 1885, for the sum of seven and one half dollars each, and due respectively on the first day of April, 1887, 1888, 1889, 1890 and October 1st, 1887, 1888, 1889; that there is now due from the defendants, Lewis C. Hanning and Addie H. Hanning to the plaintiff, F. L. Brown, upon the following mortgage the sum of $50.00 with interest at 10 per cent. on $7.50 thereof from April 1st, 1887, and on $7.50 thereof from October 1st, 1887, for which sum with interest plaintiff prays for a decree that the defendants be required to pay the same or that said premises may be sold to satisfy the amount found due and that each and all of said defendants may be foreclosed and barred of all equity of redemption or other interest in said mortgaged premises. You are required to answer said petition on or before the 4th day of November, 1888. F. L. BROWN, Plaintiff. By his attorney, W. S. MORTON. Dated, September 24th, 1888.

NOT A CENT OF HONEST CASH

Should be foolishly spent, we all admit, but where can one get the largest returns for his capital, and where will a dollar go the farthest? It is not enough to have money; you must use judgment in spending it. Look out for your own interest, and go where you can get the LARGEST DOLLAR'S WORTH.
