THE senate has resumed its tariff debates with full force, and although the election is over the arguments are spirited, if not new. The democrats are fastening upon themselves the name of free traders, which they so indignantly denied during the late campaign.

IT certainly seems absurd that twenty three thousand Sioux Indians in Dakota should hold a reservation larger than the state of Indiana against the progress of civilization. The policy of the government will probably be framed in accordance with the recommendations of the Sioux commission, which suggests that arbitrary but humane measures be taken.

. THERE is a prospect that the United States may have some trouble with Germany concerning the Samoa Islands. Germany had ask ed to have absolute control of these islands The unreasonable request had been refused sor place. by Secretary Bayard. Negotiations had been suspended for a time. During the interval of suspension the German fleet moved upon the island and took full possession. This move was probably made with the consent of England and the connivance of the other European powers. This is the situation. The question now is, what will the United States do about it?

The sudden resignation of United States District Attorney Sellers of Indiana has caused more than a ripple of excitement among prominent democrats of Indianapolis.
