At the beginning of his illness he suffered from diabetes and stomach disorder. Later the kidneys refused to perform their functions and he passed quietly away. Thus ended the life of one of the most prominent men in California." Like thousands of others his untimely death was the result of neglecting early symptoms of kidney disease.

IF YOU are troubled with diabetes, gravel, or any de-rangement of the kidneys or urinary organs, don't delay proper treatment until you are forced to give up your daily duties; don't waste your money on worthless liniments and worse plasters, but strike at the seat of the disease at once by using the greatest of all known remedies, the celebrated Oregon Kid-ney Tea. It has saved the lives of thousands. Why should it not cure you? Try it. Purely vegetable and pleasant to take. $1.00 a pack-age, 6 for $5.00.

TO AGENTS.

Homeseekers' excursions, 1892, on August 30 and September 17th, a rate of one lowest first class fair will be made from eastern points to points on our line for two homeseekers' excursions. These tickets will be sold at all the principal railway points as far east as Buffalo and Pittsburg. Tickets will be good within twenty days from the date of sale and stop overs will be allowed after passing the Missouri river. It is expected that there will be quite a large immigration of intending settlers to Nebraska, northwestern Kansas and eastern Colorado, during this summer and fall. This immigration can be very largely increased by judicious advertising and work by the various communities tributary to our line. It is therefor suggested that sections proposing to prepare such advertising matter for distribution in the east in regard to the inducements they have to offer the farmer, the business man and investor, should begin to get their advertising in shape at as an early a date as possible. #### FOR BETTER ACQUAINTANCE.

THE TRIBUNE feels satisfied that much good could be accomplished by a closer acquaintance between the families of our city people and the families of the farmers. The attorney, banker, bus ness man and others of our city people are more or less acquainted with the farmer. Perhaps a few of the business and professional men may be acquainted with the wives and daughters of the farmers. Mr. Farmer would immediately extend an invitation to Mr. B. to bring his wife out to his house. A date would be arranged and upon that day Mr. Business Man, his wife and little ones would step into the carriage and drive to the farmer's home. Mrs. Farmer would be expecting them and would meet them at the drive way with a glad and happy smile. ## MUSCULAR CHRISTIANITY.

Sometimes a Pastor's Popularity Springs From a Small Thing.

"It is strange how small a thing will make a clergyman immensely popular," said a minister connected with

New York Trinity parish, "but the manner in which a young clergyman sprang into prominence was truly remarkable, and now he is rector of one of the leading Episcopal churches in Orange. As soon as he left college, being an active man and the champion athlete of his college, he set right down to hard work. He had for his first charge a small east side mission, which was like a ray of sunshine among the dark, murky tenement house. Some young men who attended the mission belonged to an athletic club, and, as their minister entered into all their social affairs with vim, it was not long before he received an invitation to attend a 'scrap.' He went. and before he left he boxed with some of the lads in the club and beat them all. The club's best boxer was absent then, but the members extracted a promise from the young minister that he would go around and spar with their star man. The only stakes was a promise that if the clergyman lost he should become a momber of the club, which was offset by the promise that if he won all the members of the organization would attend the church for a month. The night of the fight came round, and there was a large crowd of East-side sports who went to see the parson licked. Three rounds were sufficient to prove that muscular Christianity, represented by the minister, was victorious. The result was that the men of the sporting club paid their bets by going to church regular-

Two Rats That Knew How to Make the Best of Things.

Here's a short lesson in contentment that may be worth noting. A Hartford gentleman had been annoyed by a huge rat which persisted in making way with chicken feed and pretty much everything that it found in the struggling to reproduce themselves in the shape of chickens. One of the newfangled French rat traps had been baited with a choice piece of roasted cheese to tempt the trespasser, but the old fellow was too "fly," and so the old fashioned steel trap was buried under the chaff in the well-worn path being pushed aside meanwhile. The old rat tumbled into the hidden trap and was caught.

Nothing was thought of the wire cage (which lay half concealed by a lock of hay) until lately, when it was moved out of the way. A mass of it was found that a couple of halfgrown rats had found their way into cape and settled down to make the best of the situation. They had drawn in through the spaces at least two quarts of chaff and bits of hay and had constructed a comfortable home and gone to housekeeping. They looked surprised at being disturbed.

KILLED BY FRIGHT.

Frederick L of Prussia Scared to Death by His Crazy Wife.

One of the most remarkable instances in history of death by fright is that of King Frederick L of Prussia He was actually scared to death by his wife. He was one day sleeping in an arm-chair when his queen, Louisa of Mecklenberg, who had been hopelessly insane for some time, escaped from her keepers and made her way to his private apartments. As mentioned above, Frederick was dozing when his wife, dressed in a pure white gown, dashed through the plate glass in the door and threw herself in a raging delirium upon him. In breaking the glass she of course cut herself most horribly. The king had not been apprised of the hopelessness of her case, and was astonished beyond measure at the appearance of the woman, clad only in linen and covered with blood. His shrieks aroused the whole palace, but when she had been secured the king himself was found to be in a raging delirium. From this he never recovered, but died trying to hide from terrible phantoms.

Determined to Be Naughty. A certain Boston kindergarten is blessed with the attendance of a very original youth named Richard. He is a very honest little boy, and highly respected by his parents, but the other afternoon when he came home he acknowledged frankly to his mother that a punishment had been inflicted upon him at the kindergarten. "Way, what have on done?" "Well, you see," he answered, "Johnny and I got tired of being good, and we made up our minds that we would just get our heads together and holler out the very naughtiest word we could think of, both together!" The mother was inexpressibly shocked. Johnny was another very nice and well-bred boy. But she managed to ask: "Well, what did you say?" "We just screamed out 'Bedbug!' as loud as we could! Probably this tragic episode has never had its duplicate in the history of kindergartening.

Strange Little Travelers. Some queer little animals arrived recently in New York from Australia. They are called kangaroo rats, and resemble the kangaroo very much when viewed through the reversed end of a telescope. Their method of locomotion is the same as that of the kangatoo. The females carry their young in a pouch, and their faces are very bright and pretty. They were en route to the Golden Gate park, the first of their kind ever sent to California
