Newsy Notes About Nebraska Places and People.

Chadron will rebuild its academy that was burned.

There are over 400 incurables in the hospital for the insane at Hastings.

Haigler has a newspaper, and it is called the news. It stands up for Nebraska.

Rev. Mr. Guild baptised three people by immersion in the river at Crete Sunday.

Math Bosch of Lamar lost a pocket-book containing $95, and offers an even divy with the finder.

"Nebraska as a state," says the Dundy County Pioneer, "has a great deal to be thankful for." And so she has.

Albion is to have a new grain elevator. It is to be a first class structure with a capacity of 30,000 bushels.

There is some talk at Oakdale of organizing a joint stock company to build a large brick block on the site of the buildings recently burned.

The twenty-seventh annual meeting of the Nebraska State Teachers' association will be held at Lincoln, Tuesday, December 27 to December 29 inclusive.

A Benkelman citizen, built upon broad gauge principles, voted for every candidate on the big Australian ticket, and was grieved to learn that his vote was not counted.

Mat Kane of Verdigre met with quite a serious accident a few days ago. He and a friend were out quail hunting when the gun of the latter was accidentally discharged, taking effect in Kane's foot.

The Record says Mrs J K Schmidt is probably the only Knox county lady who risked a wager on her political preference for president, and she will now wear a silk dress when she calls on Mrs Cleveland.

Hastings Nebraskan: The Hastings manufacturing enterprise barometer indicates the approach of a canning factory, and it is hoped it may arrive on schedule time and not "slew" off to one side and leave us out.

Preparations are being made for constructing a creamery at Madrid. A stock company with a capital of about $3,000 has been formed and the building will be erected this winter in order to be ready for business next spring.

Street Commissioner Winspear of Omaha has a score of squatters to evict from city lots south of the distillery. He says he will probably wait until the river freezes over and then slide the shanties across into Iowa.

Mr. Bagley, the young express messenger who stole $10,000 and then returned it, made a very awkward job of it. He lacked experience. A few lessons at the state insane asylum might have been invaluable to him when the trying hour of action arrived.

Dr. Coulter of Winchester, Kas., is lecturing in Nebraska on the evils of secret societies. In the minds of many the lodge goat is an unclean and perverse animal. Those who are against him should therefore express their views with freedom. Let us educate.

Johann Torbeck, living near Nora, suffered a painful and rather serious accident to his left hand on Saturday last. While setting fence posts, his hand was struck with the mallet of his assistant, while holding the post, which smashed the thumb and forefinger.

The city of Columbus has struck a gait in building improvements that bids fair to outrival some of our larger cities. Its favorable location as a trading point gives it advantages that few inland cities possess, and the result is obvious. Columbus will continue to forge ahead.

A. Simmons, one of the sturdy homesteaders of Dawes county, started to go on an errand, and when a quarter of mile from home looked back and discovered his barn on fire. He arrived in time to see his dwelling burn also. And such is life.

Kearney's new educational institution, the Platte institute, closed its first term very successfully last week. The second term promises still better, applications for admission being so numerous that the institution cannot accommodate them all if the applicants appear in person.

Isaac Willard, who lives a few miles north of Gibbon, raised seven ears of corn which he intends sending to New York for a sample. Two ears measure 18 inches long and 6 inches in circumference. Two other ears measure 11 1/2 inches long and 7 1/2 inches in circumference. It is all of the common yellow horse corn variety and is only a fair sample of what his farm has produced.

The mule team of Eugene Bigelow ran away at Harrison last Tuesday. He had a load of hay standing in the street and was climbing on in front of the wagon when he fell back on the wagon tongue and frightened the team, which ran away, upsetting the wagon. Mr. Bigelow fell under the wagon and the lines caught his foot and dragged him some distance, but luckily the team did not turn and he escaped with slight injuries.

It is said that cars killed the cat. One cannot use too much care in dealing with one's neighbor's feline favorite.

There's one satisfactory thing about betting on politics. Every man may invest his money with the assurance that should he lose he will receive the same returns as the man who wins.
