OVER THE STATE.

Paid the Sugar Bounty.

The Oxnards at Grand Island and the owners of the Norfolk beet sugar factory have received warrants from the state in payment of nearly $40,000 bounty. No appropriation was made by the legislature, but the sugar makers declared that they were authorized to receive payment from the general fund. Secretary of State Piper has finally approved the claims. Auditor Moore has issued the warrants and State Treasurer Bartley has signed them. The holders will await their turn on the general fund, which means that the warrants have been registered and are drawing 5 per cent interest.

The act passed last winter provides for the payment of a state bounty of 1/2 cent a pound for all sugar manufactured in factories existing when the bill became a law. While no appropriation was made, the act itself contains this section:

"When any claim arising under this act is filed, verified and approved by the secretary of state, as herein provided, he shall certify the same to the auditor of state, who shall draw a warrant upon the state treasurer for the amount due thereon, payable to the party or parties to whom said sum or sums are due."

Acting under this section Auditor Moore issued the warrants after he had secured advice which satisfied him of the legality of the transaction. On the other hand the constitution provides that no money shall be drawn from the treasury without a specific appropriation, and the payment of bounty on wild animals has always been stopped when the appropriation became exhausted.

Claims for bounty on cheery have not yet been paid, although a representative of the factory at O'Neill has been pushing the matter.

All the State Interested.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the second convention of the Nebraska Beet Sugar Association has issued a call for the convention, which is to be held in Fremont, February 5 and 6, inviting the selection of representatives as follows: The governor of the state is requested to appoint twenty delegates at large, the State University, State Board of Agriculture, State Horticultural society, State Dairymen's association and State Federation of Labor, ten delegates each; mayors of cities, five delegates each; villages, three delegates each; presidents of boards of trade and mercantile clubs, five delegates; State Normal school, private and denominational colleges, three delegates each; labor organizations, farmers' institutes and granges, three delegates each, and irrigation societies or companies, three delegates each. Editors of agricultural and irrigation publications and editors of all newspapers in Nebraska will, on presentation of credentials, be entitled to seats in the convention. An invitation is also extended to all present members of congress, governor and state officials and members of the legislature to attend as delegates.

A program will be presented, with papers on the subjects, from a scientific, theoretical and practical standpoint. The railroad companies have signified their intention of making a rate of one fare for the round trip.

Killed by His Wife.

Newcastle dispatch: Lewis Bokoskie, a well-to-do Bohemian farmer, was shot and killed by his wife one night last week at their home a few miles from town. News of the tragedy was brought here by neighbors, to whom the woman reported the deed.

Bokoskie, according to her story, came home drunk and assaulted her and the children. She tried to protect herself and he threatened to kill her. She managed to get the shotgun and fired on him at short range, inflicting injuries which caused his death a few hours afterwards. County officials were notified and they went to the scene, where an inquest will be held.

The woman is a daughter of Mrs. Bird, a wealthy resident of Omaha. They had four children.

Omaha Murderer Convicted.

Omaha dispatch: At 10:15 yesterday morning the jury which heard the case against Claude H. Hoover returned a verdict of murder in the first degree, inflicting the death penalty for the murder of Councilman Sam Dulois.

Seventeen days ago today, in the evening of December 13, Claude H. Hoover shot and killed his brother-in-law, Sam Dulois, two shots taking effect in Dulois' left side, immediately above the heart.

The shooting was the result of a slight dispute between the two concerning a woman companion of Hoover's sister, Miss Katie Brophy, who Hoover claimed was not a fit companion for the girl.

Western Nebraska Fair.

North Platte dispatch: The great question agitating people in this section at the present time is that of the proposed western Nebraska fair. At the meeting of the State Irrigation association at Sidney, an organization was formed for the purpose of holding such a fair in this city. The state association endorsed the idea and promised all the aid in its power.

The president of the association is Mr. W. L. Park, the division superintendent of the Union Pacific at this point, and an enthusiastic irrigator. The idea is to have a fair for the products of irrigated Nebraska. The association is now figuring with Colonel W. P. Coyle, and if the deal on foot is consummated the fair will be a strong rival of the state fair in Omaha in 1896. The colonel thinks of bringing his congress of rough riders of the world to this city at the time the fair is held.

A model farm will be planted near the fair grounds for the purpose of practically showing the benefits of irrigation.

Bonaeum Again Defeated.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 30.—For the fourth time the Reverend Bishop of Lincoln has been "knocked out" in his fight in the civil courts with Father Murphy. At Tecumseh Bishop Bonaeum appeared with an amended petition in his temporary injunction proceedings against Father Murphy, in which he sought to restrain the latter from retaining possession of St. Andrew's Church property. Judge Babcock held that the new petition did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, and dismissed the proceedings.

140 Millions for Pensions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The subcommittee of appropriations in charge of the pension appropriation bill finished consideration of the bill today. The bill calls for $140,000,000, a decrease of $1,000,000 from the estimates submitted by the commissioner.

John L. and the Goat.

Ex-Champion Knocked Out Again. This Time by a Brute He Had Tormented.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—John L. Sullivan has been knocked out for the second time in a fair fight. It happened at La Salle, Ill., last night.

Sullivan and Paddy Ryan are traveling with a dramatic company, another member of which is a large billy goat named Dan. Sullivan had great delight in bantering the goat and watching the frantic efforts of the latter to resent it. John would slap Dan, pull his whiskers, and offer other indignities that fairly drove his goatish insense with rage. When he could think of nothing worse, Sullivan would turn him over on his back, where the goat would lie helpless, his spreading horns preventing him from turning over.

Then Sullivan would spit in his face. Dan's feelings toward the ex-champion became such that he would snort with rage at the very sight of him. When the show was at La Salle, Sullivan was seated in a dressing room, near the stage, putting on his shoes, when the door opened, and Dan, who was standing near by, tied to the wall, as usual, got a glimpse of him. The goat made a plunge and snapped the rope. Before Sullivan realized that he was in any danger the billy goat had struck him with the force of a trolley car, and the big fellow was knocked into a heap in the corner of the room. Sullivan tried to rise and the goat gave him another butt. Sullivan lay on the floor and gasped.

A member of the company walked in at that moment and Dan gave him a butt in the stomach that laid him out. Sullivan had by this time regained his wind and he let out a series of lusty bawls for help that brought enough reinforcements to subdue Dan. Sullivan for a time was wild with anger, and nothing short of the murder of the goat would satisfy him. He finally changed his mind, however, and now says that Dan can whip any goat on earth and he is ready to back him.

A Life Sentence Imposed.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 6.—George Washington Davis, the negro convict of wrecking a Rock Island passenger train near here August 9, 1894, in which eleven persons were killed, was sentenced by Judge Holmes to life imprisonment, the limit of the law. Public opinion here is overwhelmingly in favor of the negro's innocence, and the belief largely obtains that the Rock Island was a convict in order to avoid payment of damages to relatives of the victims. The case will be appealed at once.

Bull Fights for Chicago.

ATLANTA, Jan. 6.—Chicago is to have some genuine bull fights. The matadors and other "dores" that go with the genuine article and who have been with the Mexican Village here, have gone on to Chicago with Mark L. Stone, who had the Gypsy Village here, and it is Stone's intention to give bull fights there and in other Northern cities. He says there is no law against showing the bull fights.

Internal Revenue Collections.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Jan. 6.—The internal revenue collections for this district, which comprises the state of Kansas, Oklahoma and the Indian Territory, for December amounted to $18,534. This is a big falling off from December 1894. The amount derived from oleomargarine stamps is the only thing that held up. It averages $11,000 a month in this district.

A Meeting of Manufacturers.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—The National Association of the Manufacturers of the United States will hold its first annual convention in this city January 21-23. Over 900 delegates will attend this convention, representing manufacturing industries in this country, which produce 600 billion dollars worth of goods annually. The convention will be strictly a meeting for business.

THE COMMISSION MEETS

FIRST STEP TOWARD FIXING VEN-EZUELA'S BOUNDARY MINE.

IT FORMALLY ORGANIZES.

Justice Brewer of Kansas Is Chosen President and All the Members Except Mr. White Sworn In—The Commission Makes a Formal Call on President Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The members of the Venezuelan commission, Mr. White alone being absent, were at the State department today and had an important conference with Secretary Olney. After exchanging greetings with the secretary and with one another, Secretary Olney presented each member a commission from the president, which, after giving formal notice of appointment, said:

"It is expected that the commission will avail itself of all possible sources of information, will apply to the matter all pertinent rules of municipal and international law and will make a report to the President of their conclusions together with the evidence and documents submitted to and considered by them, with as little delay as is compatible with the thorough and impartial consideration of the subject to be dealt with."

The language of the commissions issued to the members so clearly defines their task that it left little to be said by Secretary Olney on this point and the features of his remarks were the explanation of the desire of the government that the commission should regard itself as entirely independent of control in the pursuance of its investigation and as master of its own procedure at all times. At the conclusion of the conference with Secretary Olney the commission retired to the diplomatic room to hold its first preliminary meeting. Secretary Olney tendering the service of his own private secretary, Mr. Blandford, to act as recording secretary until other provision is made.

The session lasted about an hour and at its conclusion a formal statement of the proceeding, so far as it was deemed proper to make public, was given out. Justice Brewer was unanimously elected president of the commission and proceeded to administer the oath. Walker Blandford was appointed clerk. Commissioner Couderc moved that the matter of selecting of quarters for the commission be left to the private secretary, Mr. Blandford, to act as recording secretary until other provision is made.

The commissioner Gilman moved that an inquiry be made as to the best map, showing physical characteristics of the country in question, which should be reproduced in a convenient form for the use of the commission. This motion was also agreed to. Commissioner Gilman was authorized to make the inquiry. The commission then, upon motion of Commissioner Couderc, adjourned at half past 12 o'clock to meet Saturday next at half past ten o'clock, unless the President shall designate another day meanwhile.

The commissioners, after adjournment, proceeded in a body to the White house and paid their respects to the President. It appears that in the matter of selecting assistants and officers the commission will proceed with great circumspection and particularly in the selection of a secretary for which place names of several prominent persons have been mentioned.

NO LONGER A TERRITORY.

Utah Has Been Admitted to the Sisterhood of States.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Jan. 6.—Manager Brown of the Western Union Telegraph company fired two guns in front of his office at 9:13 a. m. today as an agreed signal that the president had signed the proclamation admitting Utah as a state. At noon a salute of twenty guns was fired by the artillery on Capitol hill. Many flags were displayed on the public buildings, but no unusual demonstrations were noticed on the streets. The enthusiasm is being held in check until Monday, when the inaugural ceremonies will take place. All the public business of the territory has been closed ready for the new order of things to be inaugurated Monday. Governor Wells has been busy most of the forenoon receiving congratulations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The President at 10 o'clock this morning signed the proclamation admitting Utah to statehood. The proclamation is of the usual form. In regard to religion it says:

"Whereas, Said convention, so organized, did, by ordinance irrevocable without the consent of the United States and the people of said state, as required by said act, provide that perfect toleration of religious sentiment shall be secured and that no inhabitant of said state shall ever be molested in person or property on account of his or her mode of religious worship, but that polygamous or plural marriages are forever prohibited, and did also by said ordinance make the other various stipulations recited in section three of said act."

Speech by Sherman.

THE OHIO SENATOR TALKS ON THE FINANCES.

A Mixed Criticism and Approval of President Cleveland—Troubles of the Treasury Attributed to the Adoption of the Wilson Tariff Law—Suggestions for Reforming the Currency—Other Matters in the Senate.

Sherman on Finances.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Senator Sherman today addressed the Senate on the resolution introduced by him a few days ago relative to the restoration of the gold reserve. He began by asserting that, while Congress would support the President in maintaining the honor and integrity of our country in the field of diplomacy, it will not approve his recommendation on the more important subject of our financial policy, and especially of our currency. Continuing, he said:

"The President has mistaken the cause of our present financial condition in attributing it to the demand for gold instead of to the deficiency of revenue caused by the legislation of the last Congress. He proposes as a remedy the conversion of the United States notes and treasury notes into interest bearing bonds, thus increasing the interest bearing debt nearly $500,000,000. He proposes a line of public policy that will produce a sharp contraction of our currency, add greatly to the burden of existing debts and arrest the progress of almost every American industry which now competes with foreign production."

Senator Sherman read from Secretary Carlisle's report to show that prior to 1891 the demand for coin for United States notes during a period of thirteen years from July 1, 1879, to July 1, 1892, was only $43,310,890, while the receipts of gold for United States notes during the same period amounted to $130,000,000. The withdrawals from the treasury from July 1, 1892, to December 1, 1895, have amounted to $360,266,512. During the first term of Mr. Cleveland, when he was powerless to affect our currency and tariff policy, the Senate being Republican, the gold increased from $240,000,000 on April 1, 1885, to $320,000,000 on April 1, 1889. This gold came into the treasury without cost in exchange for United States notes or gold certificates. Mr. Carlisle attributes the withdrawal of gold to silver legislation, yet the Bland-Allison act was in force from 1878 to 1890, when the accumulation of gold occurred, and the great body of gold was withdrawn after the act of July 14, 1890, was repealed.

In view of these official facts can any fair minded man have a doubt as to the cause of our financial condition? What other cause can be stated than that unwise legislation reduced our revenues below our expenditures, impaired confidence in our ability to maintain our currency at par and compelled the government to sell bonds provided for the redemption of United States notes in order to meet deficiencies? What other remedy is there for our financial difficulties except to borrow money on the best terms possible to pay current deficiencies and to provide additional revenue for future wants?

To this extent and for these purposes I am willing to support this administration, however much I may disagree with its general policy. I do not wish to criticize the sales of bonds authorized by the resumption act to meet these deficiencies. Under the circumstances the administration was justified in doing this, even to the impairment of the resumption fund, but it ought frankly to say that the cause of the invasion of the resumption fund was the deficiency of revenue created by faulty tariff legislation by the last Congress. The true remedy is to supply by taxation in some form additional revenue, and, until this can be effected, to borrow from the people of the United States enough money to cover past and future needs.

This done gold will readily be exchanged for United States notes, as was done from January 1, 1879 to the election of Mr. Cleveland. The two defects in existing law relating to redemption are mentioned by the President. First, that the notes presented for redemption must be reissued. It seems from the newspapers that he has found the power to hold notes redeemed until they can be exchanged for coin, a discovery that he should have made sooner. Second, that the resumption fund is a part of the general balance in the treasury and may be applied to current expenditures.

"Congress neglected to cure the defects pointed out by me as Secretary of the Treasury in 1880, but I hope will correct them now at the request of the President. It was not the intention of the President that a deficiency of revenue would occur or that, if it did occur, the government would use a fund specifically pledged for another purpose to meet current liabilities."

"The President is of the opinion that the United States notes and treasury notes should be retired and give place to bank notes. This is a question for Congress to decide. It is certainly not of that opinion now, nor was the last Congress of that opinion."

"I believe that, under existing law, the aggregate sum of United States notes and treasury notes issued under the act of 1890, amounting to about $490,000,000, can be easily maintained at par with coin if the two amendments I have mentioned are adopted by Congress."

"A careful study of the system of banking currency and coinage adopted by the principal nations of Europe convinces me that our system, when cured of a few defects developed by time, founded upon the bimetallic coinage of gold and silver maintained at par with each other with free national banks established in every city and town of importance in the United States issuing their notes secured beyond doubt by United States bonds or some equivalent security redeemable on demand in United States notes, and the issue of any amount of United States notes and treasury notes, equal to the amount now outstanding with provision for a ratable increase with the increase of population, always redeemable in coin supported by an ample reserve of coin in the treasury not to be invaded by deficiencies of revenues and separated by the sub-
