TRAMPS.

Atlantic City, Wyoming, August 16th, 1897. To the Editor of THE TRIBUNE. Dear Sir: The merry party composed of, R. B. Archibald, E. C. Quereau, C. H. Quereau, H. M. Tyler, S. M. Cochran, L. W. McConnell and J. M. Trammell, left McCook for the gold fields in Wyoming; all went well until they reached the station, Rock Springs on the U. P. R. R., the end of the journey by rail, here they were met by your correspondent who gave them a welcome and hastily proceeded to harness the team and hitch to the National Park Wagon No. 2; a few necessities for the inner man were loaded in the wagon and all aboard was said and we headed for the mountains. 8 p. m. We start for 14-mile ranch. All went well with but few complaints about the long miles and would we ever get there. 1:30 a. m. We are in camp, the bed is spread and all night caps are adjusted. 2 o'clock and all are asleep; all's quiet for the night. 5:30 a. m. and breakfast is called by Ward, cook No. 1, and also by Trammell, cook No. 2. 6 a. m. We are on the road again for Drums, 21 miles distant; we must make this point as this is the nearest watering place. 1:30 p. m. We are in camp at Drums for dinner. 2:30 p. m. We are on the road again for Pacific Creek crossing, our next stop for the night. Seven sage chickens have been killed on our journey this afternoon. 7 p. m. We are in camp for the night. Cook No. 2 has prepared the chickens and cooked them for supper. Supper over and all take a smoke and comment on the events of the day and the mountains, which lay just to the north of us. 8 p. m. The bed is spread on the sand and all being tired have lain down to rest for the night. Night caps are all adjusted once more and all's well. Yes, the coyote echoed back the chorus "all's well." The sleepers were quiet and all went well until 4 a. m., when Mr. Tyler arose from his would-be night's rest with a complaint to enter at headquarters. Cook No. 2 (Trammell) has disturbed Johnny's (Tyler's) slumbers by his "quiet" breathing, and Johnny was heard to exclaim, "Charlie did you ever hear a fog horn? Just listen, my! my! I'll go and get some sage brush and build a fire, I can't sleep." 5 a. m. Breakfast was called by cook No. 2. 6 a. m. All was loaded and on the road again. The Sweet Water crossing is our next camp for dinner; all went well until near 10 a. m., when Mr. Tyler being weary not having had a very good night had fallen asleep and was happy for time being. But one sudden jolt of the wagon awoke him, he began to look for his little gun. Boys, where's my gun? he was soon seen looking the back track, for it was no joke by this time, for he had lost, yes actually lost, his little gun; a passing team had found his little gun, and he returns a happy man once more. 12 m. In camp on the Sweet Water. Archibald, Tyler, Quereau and McConnell have gone trout fishing; we will bring back some trout for dinner, boys, and away they go. 1 p. m. The boys have returned not having even a bite. Boys, we tell you there are no trout in the Sweet Water. Yet notwithstanding all this the Sweet Water has been stocked and trout is very plentiful. 2 p. m. On the road again, our next stop is on the Dunbar Meadows at National Park Hotel, 9 miles distant. 6 p. m. In camp at National Park Hotel. No serious complaint except the long miles; oh, what long miles! A few days will be spent looking over the company's mines, and then we go to the New Fork to hunt and fish. More anon.

We Want Fresh Names

We want five thousand new customers on our books this winter. We want to spread our peculiar business gospel. We want to make unbelievers believe. For the past ten years we have steadily enlarged our circle of business friends along the lines of rugged honesty and good faith. We do business right. We build slowly, but solidly. We have never lost a customer once made, and our methods are just old-fashioned enough to survive. We don't sell everything. We deal only in ready-made clothing and furnishings—Suits, Overcoats, Pants, Shirts, Hats and such things—for men and boys. Our whole energies are bent on finding the best values in the market and selling them on the closest margins ever known for cash. It is nothing unusual for us to save people one hundred per cent. If you don't know us; if you have never bought anything of us, it will pay you to do this today—send us a postal card with your name and postoffice address. Mention the name of this paper. Ask for Sample Book A 15. If you are the head of a family or in any way interested in clothing, it will be the best day's work you have ever done.

Our Sample Book

Contains 22 samples of Suits, Overcoats, Pants and Boys' Clothing, and tells you how to save half on anything you buy. You must ask for it. It is not thrown away or given away.
