During the summer of 1891, Mr. Chas. P. Johnson, a well known attorney of Louisville, Ky., had a very severe attack of summer complaint. Quite a number of different remedies were tried, but failed to afford any relief. A friend who knew what was needed procured him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which quickly cured him and he thinks, saved his life. He says that there has not been a day since that time that he has not had this remedy in his household. He speaks of it in the highest praise and takes much pleasure in recommending it whenever an opportunity is offered. For sale by L. W. McConnell & Co.

Army Hygiene in Hot Countries. Overheating of the body, which is accompanied by perspiration, is dangerous unless the body is well covered. The too rapid evaporation of sweat chills the body, which in that state is more susceptible to diarrhoea, dysentery, inflammation of the liver, fevers and other maladies. The use of light canvas is rational for outer garments, and for underclothing cotton flannel is best. At night, warmer clothing is requisite, and a flannel belt must then be worn. For headgear, a light canvas belinet, with airholes, will be found most suitable. A large visor, lined with leather or green cloth, will protect the eyes. Fever is often taken through the eyes. The English authorities, recognizing this fact, supplied their men with smoked any time within 30 days glasses in Egypt. Before a march, the feet ought to be washed in water with a dash of alcohol and then soaped, or, preferably, greased.
