NUMBER 13

The Republican Nominees.

Below we give brief biographical sketches of the Republican nominees in this county. It is a pleasure to note the ability and fitness of the several candidates named in convention, last Saturday:

DR. J. E. HATHORN,

Our nominee for representative, was born in Piscataquis county, Maine. At the age of 17 years he enlisted in the serwice of his country, serving until the close of the war in company "M," First Maine Heavy Artillery. The doctor saw some lively service, being in ten engage. day. ments during his enlistment, at Spot sylvania and the charge at Petersburg, ern part of the state to see the homewhere 604 men out of 832 engaged were folks. lkilled and wounded.

After the close of the war he returned to his studies, graduating from the Maine State Seminary he entered the freshman class of the Bates college at Lewiston, Maine, from which in due time he was graduated with the degree of B. S., and Lincoln entered upon the study of medicine in the medical department of Bowdoin college, Maine.

The doctor moved to Illinois in the Tall of 1870, where he taught school some, being principal of the LaMoille public schools one year, and held a professorship in East PawPaw seminary for one year. Graduated from Rush medicity, in the near future, to make her cal college in February, 1874, and five home on the farm near Holbrook. years later took a post-graduate course in the Chicago medical college. After receiving his diploma from Rush the doctor located in Bureau county, Illinois, where he practiced medicine and surgery county, in the fall of 1886 during the Lincoln, to attend the state convention. time the college boom was on in that

The nominee for county attorney, is one of the county's best and most widely relatives. known lawyers. He has been for years with the legal business of this section of Monday afternoon, from a week's visit in resolutions and a recess was taken for the state. He is well equipped and the mountains. thoroughly qualified for the important office of public prosecutor; indeed it a better selection. He will be elected by a safe majority, insuring the continuance in that office of a safe, conservative and able state's attorney.

STEPHEN BOLLES.

It is useless to go into a sketch of his life. He has been a resident of Red Willow county since the year one, and has always been closely identified with precinct, he is known all over the county. He has served the county a number of terms as commissioner, and has made a good officer, having the best interests of the people well in mind. He will be reelected by a large majority, and will continue to give the people efficient service in that office.

Representatives of the ladies' societies will call on you during the coming week out the saying.

In addition there will be an entertaining program of some character, not yet fully determined upon.

Remember next Friday evening and the occasion with your presence and liberal patronage.

Missing Man is Found.

Thomas Jansen, an eccentric old man, was last seen in life at Indianola, December 13th last. He was on his way up to Stockville on foot. What are supposed to be his remains were found in a well on the farm of Andrew Hawkins, 12 miles northwest of Bartley, Tuesday of this week. The remains were covered by is exciting and tragic with interest.

It was a fairly harmonious convention and adjourned with perhaps less sores

The skirmish for the state delegation was warm, and perhaps the greatest disappointment of the convention was in the selection of the congressional delegation.

Everybody was in favor of Bob High, but many thought the convention should name the delegates. There is a proper and strong objection to the vest pocket

There was an incipient boom for Captain John J. Lamborn for congress, but the east end boys could not get action on it on account of the manner in which they were unwillingly tied up in the state delegation.

Sexson was a nice race, neck and neck for a while, until the doctor won out great feast of refreshments and games, with a little daylight to spare. The convention could not have made a mistake between two such men, anyhow.

Starr had the country delegations quite solid and his nomination came easy and in a manner to surprise those not posted. Willow Grove stayed by Eldred to a man, although defeat was certain before they were reached in calling the roll.
