McCOOK, RED WILLOW COUNTY, NEBRASKA, FRIDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 20, 1903.

NUMBER 40

TRAGEDY ON THE UPPER DRIFTWOOD

Ed B. Lincoln kills his own brother-in-law Richard G. Mitchell.

Sunday morning, Ed B. Lincoln killed his brother-in-law Richard G. Mitchell by striking him over the head with a piece of wagon-tire,—death resulting in a short time. The sad tragedy was enacted on the farm of the murdered man, about ten miles southwest of this city on the Upper Driftwood, just across the line in Logan precinct, Hitchcock county, while Lincoln was de-ranked after suffering from an unusually severe and prolonged attack of epileptic fits, to which he was subject.

It seems that Lincoln had been suffering severely for about a week with his old malady, and about two o'clock, last Friday night, he became so violent in action and speech that his sister Mrs. Mitchell thought it advisable to call in a neighbor A. J. Hatcher for safety and self-protection. Mr. Hatcher spent the rest of the night at the house, but Lincoln remained very quiet and peaceable during his stay, resuming his threatening conduct as soon as Hatcher had returned home.

On Saturday the matter of sending Lincoln to the insane asylum was discussed by the sister and husband, which intensified a growing feeling on the part of Lincoln against Mitchell and wife, which ended in the tragedy of Sunday morning.

Mitchell was engaged in currying a horse, when his wife ran from the house announcing that Ed was coming and continuing her way on through the barn, thinking that her husband was following. Either Mitchell did not heed the alarm or Lincoln was upon him too quickly; at any rate the fatal blow with the heavy and sharp-pointed wagon-tire was dealt by Lincoln while Mitchell was in a stooping position. The skull was crushed like an egg-shell, the victim falling under the horse, where he remained until dragged forth not long after by the wife who returned to see what had become of her husband. After striking Mitchell, Lincoln started after the sister, who succeeded in evading him, however, and when Lincoln finally returned to the house, she went to Hatcher's after assistance.

Help was finally secured among the neighbors and after a terribly exciting day, a day full of apprehension and forebodings and thrilling incidents, one of them being a runaway with Lincoln as the only occupant of the wagon, he having bodily thrown out of the wagon the driver Mr. French, who was considerably bruised by his experience, Lincoln was finally gotten into a wagon and taken to Culbertson by Sheriff Brown of Hitchcock county and assistants. The sheriff did not reach the scene until toward evening, Sunday, being here in McCook on business, when informed of the tragedy, imperfectly, and he went to Culbertson first and then to the farm, delaying his arrival several hours thereby.

Lincoln was taken to Culbertson and held under guard until Monday, when his case and condition were investigated by the board of insanity of Hitchcock county assembled at Culbertson. The finding was that Lincoln is insane, and application was at once made for admission to the asylum at Lincoln. Permit was received on Tuesday and the same evening Sheriff Brown took the unfortunate man to Lincoln.

THE TRIBUNE is informed by parties to whom Lincoln made the statement, that Lincoln had threatened to kill Mitchell, and had expressed regret that he had not done so years ago, when suffering from a similar attack. It is not stated that Mitchell and Lincoln were in the habit of quarreling, for Mitchell was an unusually quiet-mannered and close-mouthed fellow, but Lincoln seemed to have taken an antipathy to him and when laboring under the mad spell of his malady naturally sought his life and that of his sister.

Lincoln is a man of gigantic build, weighing almost three hundred pounds, and until finally taken in charge by the sheriff and assistants and conveyed to Culbertson was a source of great alarm and uneasiness among the people of that neighborhood.

The remains were buried in Logan cemetery, Logan precinct, Hitchcock county, Tuesday afternoon, thus closing one of the saddest tragedies ever enacted in this part of Nebraska.

J. B. Lincoln of Pacific Junction, Ia., a brother of Mrs. Mitchell, attended the funeral, Tuesday.

CARD OF THANKS.

We are deeply grateful to all the friends and neighbors for ready and willing assistance rendered us in our recent bereavement and sorrow and are sincerely thankful for every kindness shown us in our sad tragedy.

MRS. RICHARD MITCHELL.
J. B. LINCOLN.

Stop that cough! Cure that cold! McConnell's Balsam will do it.

MISS HAZEL ROUGH, Ida Allen and Fay Tipton gave an enjoyable Valentine party, Saturday evening, to a company of their young friends at the home of H. A. Rouch. A two-course lunch was served and a general good time had. The decorations were in pink and green.

JACOB WALLERS, a brother of Mrs. Sophia Griswold, whose death occurred last week, departed on Saturday night for his home near Chicago. Both children of the deceased sister, a boy and a girl—the latter quite a bright and attractive child of ten years of age—accompanied him home. Wallers is a well-to-do farmer near Chicago, and the children are fortunate in securing so desirable a home, especially so when the misery and squalor of their life recently is considered.

A Most Joyous Nuptial Event.

A happy wedding of charming simplicity was consummated, Wednesday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Doan, the high contracting parties being their daughter Nina and Mr. Leroy Kleven. About forty relatives and friends witnessed the joyous affair.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Bump welcomed the guests and directed to the cloak rooms.

Promptly at 6:30 the young couple approached the marriage station, little Gertrude Snyder preceding them and scattering the way with flowers, the while Miss Maud Cordeal played Dried's "Norwegian Bridal Procession." The officiating minister Rev. Frank W. Dean of the Congregational church stood with in a bower effect of lace hangings and clinging vines, and in the simple, impressive and beautiful ring ceremony pronounced the words uniting their destinies in earth's closest union.

The bride has blossomed into young and radiant womanhood in our city from a young girl and numbers a host among her friends and admirers. The groom was born in Culbertson and is a product of Southwestern Nebraska of which we are all proud. He is one of the Burlington's most expert telegraphers and has recently been advanced to the important position of dispatcher at McCook headquarters. He is popular both within and outside railroad circles. They have the heartiest congratulations and well-wishes of all.

The bride was handsomely gowned in heavy white satin trimmed with pearl passementerie; en train. The waist had a long yoke effect of tiny tucks finished with pearl passementerie. The sleeves were tucked close-fitting to the elbows, with fancy under-sleeves of white chiffon ruffles. The skirt was made with yoke, and trimmings of pearl passementerie across foot of yoke and down sides of front panel.

Miss Cordeal and Gertrude Snyder, the little flower-girl, received gifts at the hand of the groom. Congratulations over, the guests were seated at small tables attractively spread and a three-course luncheon was tastefully served. The decorations were in scarlet and white. A candelabrum burning a scarlet candle occupied a central place on each table. The color scheme was carried out also in the refreshments. There was a tulip at each guest's plate. Those assisting in serving refreshments were: Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Bump, Mrs. G. R. Snyder, Mrs. F. S. Wilcox, Mrs. A. J. Chambers, Miss Maud Cordeal.

Those present from out of town were: Mrs. Bertha Kleven and Henry Kleven, mother and brother of the groom, and Miss Pearl King, all of Culbertson; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wood, brother-in-law and sister of the bride; and Mr. and Mrs. James C. Barber of Havelock.

The presents were many, handsome and rich in silver, cut-glass, china etc. For the present the young friends will have rooms in C. A. Hedges residence, boarding with the parents of the bride.

A Swell Social Event.

The colonial dancing party given by the ladies of the Fortnightly Dancing club, last Friday evening, in the Menard opera house, to the young gentlemen of the club and invited guests, was one of the swellest social affairs of the winter. It was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyed in every particular and detail.

It is claimed for the decorations that they have never been equaled at any function ever given in the opera house, a strong claim, 'tis true, but one which the facts well warrant. Rugs, curtains, fancy pillows galore, furniture and other tasteful accessories gave the scene an attractive appearance of comfort.

The ladies were all gowned in colonial styles, with bepowdered hair, and the scene was quite bewitching withal. The gentlemen restricted themselves to plain black and powdered hair.

The grand march was led by Mr. H. C. Clapp and Mrs. F. A. Pennell. Ralph Bosworth and Dollie Pennell distributed carnations to the dancers during the grand march, the gentlemen receiving white and the ladies red.

The ladies of the L. O. T. M. have served refreshments during the evening, utilizing the stage for the purpose. This feature was very cleverly managed by the ladies. From a convenient and pretty booth in the southeast corner of the main floor punch was served during the evening by Misses Emma Perry, Jessie Pope and Edna Waite.

The gentlemen were all delighted with the happy manner in which they were entertained by the ladies, who have much cause for satisfaction and gratification upon the success of the affair.
