Lincoln Letter.

Lincoln, Nebraska, December 7th, 1933. The open season for prairie chicken, grouse and quail closed in Nebraska on December 1, dealers being allowed until December 6 to dispose of the birds on hand.

Game Warden Carter's semi-annual report which will be issued shortly will show that the fees and fines collected this season exceed those of any previous season, also that the income of the office has been more than sufficient to defray the department expenses, not including those of the state fish hatcheries through which no income of any nature is derived.

In lieu of the usual statistical map, which will not be issued this year, the bureau of Labor and industrial statistics will issue a series of monthly reports in pamphlet form, the state printing board having decided to allow not to exceed $25 per month for that purpose.

Commissioner Bush is corresponding with the labor departments of Iowa, Missouri, South Dakota and Kansas, for the purpose of organizing an inter-state association which it is thought will facilitate the employment and transportation of farm hands, especially during harvest time when it frequently occurs that hundreds of men lie idle in one state while their services are demanded in another, and later on in the season conditions are transposed. By co-operation, instead of competition, between the states it is thought that the transient labor can be shipped from one point to another as the season advances, thus giving the men steady employment for many weeks, and greatly facilitating the harvest in all sections.

The semi-annual apportionment of the temporary school fund will be far in excess of what it was last year during the corresponding months. Treasurer Mortensen's monthly statement just issued shows $246,966.78 in the fund at the end of November, which sum will be swelled to something over $250,000 when the apportionment is made.

During the whole of Treasurer Mortensen's term, interest rates have been at the lowest ebb, a condition which, if entirely satisfactory to Nebraskans in all other respects, is not calculated to increase the earning capacity of the permanent school fund. By keeping every penny of the permanent fund invested, Mr. Mortensen has been able to make a most handsome showing on previous apportionment days, and it is most gratifying to learn that the December disbursement probably will exceed that of a year ago by something like $18,000.

Adjutant-General Culver is outlining plans for a series of practical as well as interesting experiments with the heliograph apparatus furnished to the signal corps at Fremont by the government, and with which the Nebraska boys scored such a remarkable success at Fort Riley.

General Culver states that the Nebraska corps already has accomplished everything that is required of similar organizations in the regular service, either at maneuvers or in time of actual war, but that he will not be satisfied until Nebraska has set a new mark for long-distance communication with the heliograph, utilizing the sun's rays by day and electricity by night. A little flash-light conversation between a detail located in the dome of the state house and a squad occupying an elevated station at Fremont is one of the tasks which the corps will be expected to undertake.
Oil Inspector Church tells a most cheerful story of what has transpired in his department during the last six months. Subtracting $5,566.45, the total expenditures for all purposes, from $8,961.90, the gross receipts, Mr. Church finds that the department has given the state a net profit for the half year of $3,395.45.

The November report, which is not included in the above statement shows $2,281.10 in receipts more than double the average monthly income for the rest of the year.

A most distressing accident occurred at the home of E. C. Moore, north of town, Friday morning, resulting in the almost instant death of little Theodore Valentine Moore, the 2-year old son of E. C. Moore. Three little boys aged 2, 3 and 5 years respectively, were playing with a shot gun which was not supposed to be loaded. By some means the gun was discharged and the load of shot entered the breast of little Theodore with the result mentioned. The funeral was held Saturday, Rev. Satchell of the M. E. church officiating.
