14 East 12th St., New York City. Oct. 15th, 1902.

"I had been suffering severely from kidney trouble. All symptoms were on hand; my former strength and power had left me; I could hardly drag myself along. Even my mental capacity was giving out, and I was about to die. It was then I saw an advertisement of yours in a New York paper, but would not have paid any attention to it, had it not promised a sworn guarantee with every bottle of your medicine, asserting that your Swamp-Root is purely vegetable, and does not contain any harmful drugs. I am seventy years and four months old, and with a good conscience I can recommend Swamp-Root to all sufferers from kidney troubles. Four members of my family have been using Swamp-Root for four different kidney diseases, with the same good results."

With many thanks to you, I remain, Very truly yours, ROBERT BERNER.

You may have a sample bottle of this famous kidney remedy, Swamp-Root, sent free by mail, postpaid, by which you may test its virtues for such disorders as kidney, bladder and uric acid diseases, poor digestion, being obliged to pass your water frequently night and day smarting or irritation in passing, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, headache, backache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, diabetes, bloating, irritability, without feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion, or Bright's disease.

BIRTHS AND DEATHS

CAUSES THAT AFFECT VITAL STATISTICS.

Advancement in Civilization and Prosperity One of the Chief Reasons for the Decline in the Birth Rate Noted in So Many Countries.

Advancement in civilization and prosperity appear to affect the vital statistics of all nations alike. In modern times France has shown the most marked decrease in the ratio of births to deaths. From 1815, the last year of the Napoleonic wars, to 1830, the proportional excess of births over deaths for every 10,000 inhabitants was 61. Between 1831 and 1850 it dropped to 41. In the following twenty years there was a further decrease, the excess of births numbering only 25. In the decade ending 1900 the excess was reduced to 6, and in the latter year the proportionate excess of births over deaths in every 10,000 inhabitants of the republic was only 3. France entered the nineteenth century with a population of 26,000,000; she closed it with 38,000,000. But Great Britain had meantime started with 12,000,000 and ended with 41,000,000, and the population of Germany had grown from 15,000,000 to 56,000,000.

During the last forty or fifty years the people of each of these nations have enjoyed more luxurious living than they did before. While the death rate in England, through the introduction of improved sanitation, has been steadily declining since 1861, the vital statistics of the country show a very marked decline in the birth rate. Now the minister of public instruction and medical affairs finds that the vital statistics of Prussia, which comprises three-fifths of the population of Germany, show a steady decrease in the birth rate there also since 1861. In the latter year it was 40.9, now it is only 25.5. In the city of Berlin the birth rate has fallen from 46 in 1861 to 25.6 this year. The latter is only 4.4 above the rate in France, which is the lowest in the world.

The question of race suicide thus seems to be one that is disturbing all of the more prosperous of modern nations, as it did Rome during the Augustan age, when legislation had to be enacted in order to encourage the growth of population. France has been seriously discussing various methods of arresting the decline of the birth rate. An extra parliamentary commission has been appointed to seek means of increasing the number of births and diminishing mortality, and government bonuses for large families and heavy taxes on bachelors and childless couples have been suggested. It is expected that the German emperor will take cognizance of the conditions existing in his realm and suggest drastic means of arresting the race suicide which President Roosevelt so vigorously attacked in this country.—San Francisco Chronicle.

NOISE AS A CURE.

Perhaps the Chinese Know More About Medicine Than We Do.

The Chinese doctor sets up a terrible racket when called to treat the sick. This is supposed to drive evil spirits away, and it unquestionably acts well in a great many cases. Civilization demands rest and quiet; all noise is barred from the sick room. The Chinese have demonstrated, unknowingly, a great psychological or psychopathological fact.

A patient of mine had received the last rites of the church, the pulse had ceased at the wrist and he had sunk into that coma which precedes death. Someone in the next house struck up the "Anvil Chorus" from "Il Trovatore." I was very much annoyed and distressed, and tried to stop it.

Suddenly the pulsation at the wrist began again, the patient gradually opened his eyes, motioned to his sister. She bent low, and he whispered in her ear, "Te dum, te dea, that is my favorite tune," says he. We roused him, fed him, and to-day, ten years after the event, he weighs 240 pounds.

The therapeutics of vibration or noise is yet to be written. So I have discovered that anything that can arouse the subconscious, subliminal self will cure my patient when all drugs fail, and noise is a very cheap agent.—Medical Brief.

Origin of Spinster.

"Spinster," said the philologist, "is the term that the law applies to the woman who is unmarried. The origin of the word dates back to the days when spinning was not done by machinery, but by hand. At that time every girl learned to spin, as a matter of course, the same as she now learns to spell. She was obliged to spin a couple of hours every day, and what she produced belonged to her. Thus, every girl, by the time she came to get married, owned a great quantity of linen of her own make that she brought, as a kind of dower, to her husband. Every girl's leisure, up almost to her wedding day, was devoted to the spinning of linen for use in the household of her spouse. Therefore, every unmarried girl was called a spinster."

He Knows.

O dear little heart, don't worry so; God is watching you; he will know how hard the tolling, how drear the way; He will comfort you, dear, some day.

Poor little soul, don't mind the pain; Others may garner the ripened grain; And the empty husks be all your share; God sees all—you are in His care.

In this selfish world not one may care; How hard you struggle, or how you fare; But One there is whose love overflows—Dear little girl, He knows—He knows.—Irene L. Darling in Boston Transcript.
