Road engine 1239 and a switch engine came together in the Denver yard, the other day. The switch engine was turned over and both were considerably damaged. Engineer Brewington was in charge of the 1239. The wrecker had to be sent up from here to pick up the engines.
The front trucks of the cream car on No. 5, last Friday night, got loose and became detached from the car near Cambridge. While the damage was small and no one was hurt, the train was delayed until about two o'clock in arriving here. The train was making perhaps forty miles an hour when the trucks got loose and all parties concerned as congratulating themselves upon escaping so easily.

An addition to the present depot and headquarter's building is one of the necessities of the near future. The plan is to increase the room by adding on to the north wing, now serving as the superintendent's private office upstairs and the battery-room downstairs. When the addition is completed there will be a general rearrangement of the upper story of the building. Among other moves, the telegraph-room will be enlarged—taking in the two small rooms now occupied by the trainmasters and the force of the timekeeper's department. This is an imperative move, as the telegraph force is laboring under disadvantages and positive discomforts in their present cramped and poorly ventilated quarters. The superintendent will fall heir to the new part of the building upstairs, and the relief department will be located on the ground floor of the addition. The timekeepers will move back into the east end of the building, together with the trainmasters. The superintendent's clerical force will be located in the room now occupied by the superintendent as his private office. This will relieve the present necessities of the case, but a larger and better adapted and more modern building will eventually be built if the business of the company shall increase as it has during the past few years.

BANKSVILLE.
A. M. Benjamin is harvesting his barley.
H. I. Peterson has C. E. Thompson helping him through harvest.

The Science of Eating
To use a comparison; wheat does not have the vegetable glues the same as the coarser grains of corn and oats. Instead it is rich in phosphates of lime, iron, and sodium. Wheat absorbs more moisture in cooking and is, therefore, more delicate and better suited as a food for children. Wheat is properly prepared for food as California Wheatose.
Flaked wheat food for breakfast.
All good grocers.

THE SAVING HABIT
Should be encouraged in all possible ways. Like good morals and manners, the instruction should begin in the home. As early habits mold the future character, so do those who early acquire the saving habit, lay the foundation for future success. Many a boy has saved enough from his small earnings to give him a liberal education or to make a start in business of his own. Persistent saving opens the way to countless possibilities in success, and many a young man owes his start in life to his having opened a savings account and adhered to a strong determination to add to regularly and systematically the first deposit made. We invite your savings accounts.
