"WHIZ!! WALK A MILE"

Is a laconic definition of a toboggan ride. It's quick work going down the slide, but it's a long climb back to the starting point. It is very much that way with health; it is quickly lost and slowly regained. When the first symptoms of failing health appear, proper care may prevent the descent to utter weakness and debility. Usually the complication of disorders known as general debility has its origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. These diseases are perfectly cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures through the stomach disorders which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach.

There is no alcohol in the "Discovery," neither opium, cocaine nor other narcotic.

"I was all run down; had no strength; had sharp darting pains all through me; head and back ache every day," writes Mrs. Frank Caswell, of Salamanca, N. Y. "I was also troubled with a distressed feeling in the stomach and pain in front of the hip bones. I had a severe cough and it nearly killed me to draw a long breath. I was so sore through my lungs."

"I wrote to Dr. Pierce, telling my symptoms as near as I could. He sent me a very kind letter, advising me to try his medicines, which I did, and before I had taken them a week I was decidedly better. I took two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two of the 'Favorite Prescription,' and am sure I never felt better in my life than when I quit taking them."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a cure for biliousness.

THE SILENT WORKER.
Remarkable Value In Labor of $10,000 Wisely Invested.
In these days of great financial transactions, when men are striving for power and riches, the effect of the aggression of wealth as well as the wisdom of thrift and prudence are shown in the following article by Theodore Dreiser, who points out the power and equivalent in labor of $10,000 wisely invested:
Herein lies the beauty of wealth: If you have the opportunity by means of labor or inheritance or any other hook or crook to secure the sum of $10,000 you then have the equivalent of what, if properly invested, is equal to one man's labor every day in the year, Sundays included, for all the time that you shall hold the sum mentioned. Think of it! One man working for you day after day, in rain or shine, whether there be good times or bad, through sickness and in health—one man working all the time! If you were super-sensitive and owned a slave such conscientious, unvarying labor on the part of any one might be disturbing to you—you could not be entirely indifferent to his material or spiritual wants. If he were ill you might, perforce, almost be compelled to be sorry. If he were pale or run down in health you could not help but feel that he might need a rest in his labor. If he were oppressed by debt, wrought upon by the illness or wants of others, you would be apt to take cognizance in some small way, but here by the good fortune of inheritance or the sense of prudence you are saved all this.

The man whom your money represents is never ill. He is not, so far as you can know or see, possessed of a family. He is not a creature of ambitions, not a person of feelings. No desires drag at his heartstrings as they do at yours. He is a strange creature, built of some odd material that never wears. His hands are quick, his feet willing, his mind incapable of worry or care. All day he works and all year-year after year—and, though you be taking your leisure at the shore or in the city, though you rest and never think, he is busy—this slave of yours—laboring, laboring, so long as you own the $10,000 he represents. Seasons come and seasons go. Your own life becomes a weariness to you. Work loses its charm, but he, this creature whom your $10,000 represents, is ever plodding. Though you eat, drink and be merry, you need have no fear for him. He cannot rest. He cannot die.—Theodore Dreiser in Tom Watson's Magazine for September.

BOYS WITH SIGHT OF OWLS.
Two Connecticut Lads, Blind in Daylight, See Well at Night.
On the east side of Hartford, Conn., live two brothers who during daylight are nearly as blind as owls, but at night can see like cats, says a Hartford dispatch to the New York World. When the sun is shining Hyman and Abe White, one six and a half years old and his brother three years younger, seek the darkest and shadiest places they can find to avoid the glare of light that makes vision practically impossible for them. When the shades of night fall they are ready for anything, and in a condition of darkness that prevents their little friends from seeing anything around them Hyman and Abe are perfectly at home.

The father of the two boys named is a dealer in bottles, and he has had the eyes of his two sons examined by experts in Hartford and New York. Nothing that has been done has helped their condition. The boys are not depressed in spirits by their affliction. They are sorry they are unable to play with other boys in the bright daylight, but they remain cheerful and are usually able to find some companions in their shady and sheltered retreats in Riverside park.

The darker and more shaded the spot the better it suits Hyman and Abe, and they are glad when the sun goes down and permits them to see clearly the objects around them. Their little eyes are peculiarly sensitive to light.

The neighbors say the White boys will have to be taught in the night schools, as they will be unable to study during the daytime.

Wine and Willa.
The Law Magazine and Review tells an odd story of a Hamburg merchant who had five sons who were all ardent teetotallers. The merchant was contrary minded, and, to rescue the misguided young men from the error of their obstinate ways, he directed in his will that each of the five should on the day of the funeral drink a glass of wine to his memory in some public place, adding as a condition subsequent that if any of them should refuse to drink the enjoined glass his share of the inheritance should be forfeited and divided up among the more complaisant brothers, but if all should refuse the whole family property should go to charities.

No other testament so odd on the subject of wine is recalled except that of a total abstainer who left a fine wine cellar, a recent legacy to himself, to his heir, with directions that its contents should be poured untasted on the ground.

The Life Was In Him.
Daniel O'Connell once unraveled a queer plot in a will case. Witness after witness swore that they saw the document duly executed. At last a constantly reiterated expression caught the lawyer's attention, "The life was in him," over and over repeated. "By the virtue of your oath, was he alive?" he asked one witness. "By the virtue of my oath, the life was in him," he was answered. Then O'Connell turned to the man and very slowly and very solemnly said, "Now I call upon you, in the presence of your Maker, who will some day pass sentence upon you for this evidence, I solemnly ask you—and you answer at your peril—was there a live fly in the dead man's mouth when his hand was placed upon the will?" Cornered and pale with fear, the witness confessed that this had actually happened.

Does the Sun Set?
"It ill becomes any of us to criticize lapses in grammar," says an authority. "When we all of us consent to and constantly make use of one such lapse ourselves. To speak of the 'setting sun' is wholly incorrect. You may set a book on a table or even set a son on a chair if he be big enough not to fall off, but what does the orb of day set, and where does it set? No, sir, queer as it may sound to ears grown accustomed to the universal form, the sun sets. If it sets anything why doesn't it raise something? If it shouldn't be the rising and the setting sun it should be the raising and the setting sun. Think it over, and when you get it arranged to your satisfaction try to find out what you mean when you speak of a setting hen."—Philadelphia Record

Genesis of the Lightning Rod.
The first lightning rod was not constructed by Franklin nor set up in America, but by a monk at Seutenberg, Bohemia, named Prohob Dilwisch. His apparatus was made and put together during the spring and summer of the year 1754 and was first set up in the garden of the cure of Prentitz (Moravia) on June 15 of the year above named. The rod attained as much distinction as that later made by Franklin and was the cause of the inventor being presented with much money and large estates. His enemies claimed that the rod was the cause of the great drought of 1757, 1758 and 1759, and upon the matter being reported to Vienna it was ordered to be taken down.

Who He Was.
A traveler saw a woman take a man by the collar, yank him up the steps into a railroad car, jam him down into a seat, pile up a valise and two big brown baskets with loose covers and long handles at his feet and say:
"Now, sit there until I help Mary Jane on the car and don't move till I come back."

When the woman reached the door the traveler said to her:
"Is that man your husband?"
"Naw!" roared the woman. "He's my daughter's husband, and she hasn't spirit enough to say her soul is her own."

The Bengal Grosbeak.
The Bengal grosbeak builds a nest shaped like a bottle and always selects for its support a long, lithe limb overhanging a stream of water. The entrance is beneath, and, from the situation and peculiar shape, it is absolutely impossible for a snake to gain admission to the nest. One naturalist records seeing fourteen attempts on the part of serpents to get at the nest, but the hungry snakes always fell off into the water.

Changed Position.
Fielding—How time changes a man! There's Battser. A dozen years ago he was so engrossed with the teams on the diamond that he cared for nothing else. Now all his thoughts are centered in his family. You know he has a wife and eight children. Rhums—Well, that isn't so much of a change. He has simply transferred his interest to his home nine.—Judge.

Working the Old Man.
"Do you think her father will give his consent?"
"Sure! I've been playing poker with him once a week for the last six months and letting him win. He'll feel like he has been offered a pension when I ask him."—Houston Post.

The Best They Could Do.
Rich Uncle—Well, Annabel, have you named the baby for me? Young Wife—N-no, Uncle James, but we have come as near to it as we can. We call her Jimima.—Chicago Tribune.

Delmont, S. D., Dec. 17, 1922.
I used L. K. for hog cholera and it was all right. It cured my hogs. I had three sick ones and they all got well and done fine. I also used it for chicken lice and mites and it is all you claim for it. It is the only medicine for hog cholera, I think.
GOTTLIEB JARZ.
Harrington, Neb., Dec. 11, 1922.
I am using Liquid Koal and am well pleased with it. I am sure I saved my hogs with it last year, and am going to keep it in stock all the time as it is the best thing I ever had on the place for everything it is intended for. It is good for chicken cholera, lice on stock, insects of all kinds; it kills cholera, I think.
