

MORE confidence—not more money.

Postal saving bank system will place the flow of money in the hands of the people. All the elastic currency schemes have a tendency to place the currency question with the banks. Let the people have the reins.

ONE of the noticeable movements of the day—especially in the west and south—is the prohibition question. Prohibition is making powerful strides in America. In Europe some awaking is felt: The diet of Finland, Russia, recently unanimously adopted, without roll call, a bill prohibiting the manufacture of alcohol in Finland.

THE railroad rate question is going to figure prominently before Congress next winter, in view of the action of the National Association of State Railway Commissioners at their recent convention held in Washington. There will be no general attempt to amend the Hepburn law, but an amendment will be proposed along the lines suggested by the Commissioners, making it unlawful for a railroad to enforce a new rate until that rate shall have been declared by the Interstate Commerce Commission to be reasonable. And it is highly probable that the Nebraska congressional delegation will be in line for the proposed amendment, which purposes giving shippers a hearing before interstate rates can be changed, and in that measure at least gives shippers a voice in fixing rates.

TEACHERS MEET AT DANBURY.

County Association Holds an Exceptionally Good Meeting—Fair Weather.

The Red Willow County Teachers' Association held its first meeting for this school year at Danbury, on Saturday, November 23. The attendance of teachers was unusually good and the interest manifested in the general discussion of each subject on the program was flattering indeed to all who have heard the educational interests of the county. The attendance of the patrons of the Danbury schools and of the adjoining school districts rounded out the number who all but filled the Congregational church.

The program as given below was carried out in full with the exception of one forenoon subject, and every number was pronounced good by all present. The recitation given by Becca Daffer, the second prize winner in the South West Nebraska declamatory contest, and the one by Lizzie Eifert, who represented the rural school in the same contest were given, that teachers might be interested in the subject of public speaking as a part of the training of our schools. It was a practical program throughout and one all could profit by.

Most men who mingle with great crowds or participate in an event of many features are absolutely unable to describe in detail any one particular feature. It is then that they find their weekly newspaper most valuable. Just so it is with the readers of daily newspapers; they have not the time or the inclination to follow every phase of the week's events and so turn to a weekly newspaper for a concise and connected account of any event of more than local interest. This demand is easily supplied at small cost by The Weekly Inter Ocean, which can be obtained with this paper, one year, for $1.25.

Past Salaries of Actors.
A number of autograph letters of Edmund Kean supply some interesting information about the salaries of actors early in the nineteenth century. One relates to an offer by Mr. Ellison offering Kean £3 a week as acting manager of "the new theater in Wych street." Later this rose to £25 a month. In 1826 Kean was offered $12,000 a year to go to America. In the prime of his popularity he received £200 for a week in Edinburgh and apparently reached the highest point when Mr. Bunn wrote from the Theater Royal, Dublin, on Feb. 8, 1829, and offered him £50 a night to play in Dublin and Cork.—Liverpool Mercury.

Home Influences.

Each one of us is bound to make the little circle in which he lives better and happier; each one of us is bound to see that out of that small circle the widest good may flow; each of us may have fixed in his mind the thought that out of a single household may flow influences which shall stimulate the whole commonwealth and the whole civilized world.—Dean Stanley.

He Knew Her.

The conductor looked at the thin man.

"Do you see that stout woman at the other end of the car, the one with the monkey hat?" he asked.

"I think I see the one you mean," the thin man responded.

"There, she's looking this way," said the conductor. "Well, sir, I admire that woman."

"You do?"

"Yes, I do. She may have a squint and wear bad fitting clothes and big shoes, yet I admire her."

"Why?"

"She knows how to get off a car the right way, and that's why. She's too stout, and her hair is ratty, and she hasn't any taste, but when she steps down from the back platform I never worry. I know she'll land all right. I'm dead sure she isn't going to sit down in the mud and ask me for my number. That's why I admire her. Here she comes now. Watch her when she gets off."

The stout woman came down the aisle and briskly descended to the street. And the conductor, with his hand on the bell rope, winked approvingly at the slim man.

Then the stout woman looked around. "Come, George," she called, and the slim man meekly followed her.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Simple Minded Kurds.

Some of the peculiar traits of the Kurds of Asia Minor are described by a traveler: "If it were possible to imagine two colors more distinct than black and white it would be possible to imagine two characters more widely differing than those of the Arab and Kurd. The pure Kurd is the most unsophisticated and glib person in the world so long as you keep away from the material issues. His respect for a man who can read and write is almost pitiable. The Kurds are on the whole blunt and somewhat uncouth, silent and quite incapable of falsehood. If they do wrong—and they often do—they admit the fault in the simplest and most unaffected way. I had a muleteer who was honest, civil and incorrigibly idle. 'Did you ever kill a man?' I asked him one day. Yes; sixteen on the Khazat road when I was a deserter from the army,' came the reply in a voice absolutely unmoved. 'You were a robber?' 'Yes, but now, praise be to God, I am married and a muleteer.'"

No Chesterfield.

A Boston man was praising the late Earl of Dunmore.

"Lord Dunmore," he said, "was a good man. Tall and robust and supple, I can see him still with his short gray beard and his kind face. His only fault—a fault due to his aristocratic upbringing, no doubt—was the exaggerated value that he set upon correctness. He insisted in correctness in eating, in dress, in everything."

"At a dinner in Beacon street once I heard him tell a story about an incorrect self made man, or 'nouveau riche,' as he called him. This man was dressing one night to go out. His wife bustled into the room before he started to look him over.

"'But, George,' she said reproachfully, 'aren't you going to wear your diamond studs to the banquet?'"

"'No. What's the use?' George growled. 'My napkin would hide 'em anyway.'"—New Orleans States.

Proof of Brains.

Mr. Travers, the famous New York wit, once met at dinner a pompous Englishman who was "doing" the States. He had letters a-plenty attesting his Dilkance—letters from Gladstone, Dilke, Salisbury and Churchill. He had talked everybody tired before the dinner began, and Travers saw visions of a bad meal when he discovered the Englishman to be his neighbor at the table. There was never a stop in the fellow's tongue. When the oysters were brought on he began: "Now, it is a question as to whether or not the oyster has brains. Scientists dispute the idea." "T-t-t—they certainly have some," retorted Travers. "Your proof, sir?" challenged the Briton, eager for argument. "W-wh-wh-wh, sir, the o-o-oyster knows h-h-h-how to shut up."

Uplifting the Savage.

We have received the following spicy analysis of British civilizing procedures in Africa from a young Egyptian from Tanta, who shows dramatic aptitudes. The title of his communication is:

A TRAGEDY IN SIX ACTS.

- Act 1.—The missionary.
 - Act 2.—Whisky and pale ale.
 - Act 3.—The Maxim gun.
 - Act 4.—A newspaper.
 - Act 5.—Cricket and football.
 - Act 6.—Death of the last aborigine.
 - Finis.—Band plays "Rule Britannia."
- Egyptian Standard.

Poor Consolation.

"Oh, dear!" exclaimed the society woman. "I feel so wretched, and this is my receiving day too! I do hope no one will call, for I'll be in misery all the time."

"Well," remarked her husband facetiously, "I always understood that 'misery loves company.'" —Catholic Standard.

Her Bribe.

Unattractive Maiden Aunt—Goodby, Jottie. Come soon again. I hope you'll forgive my not kissing you, but I have an awful cold. Jottie (aged six)—Never mind. Do kiss me, auntie. Mother said she'd give me 5 cents if I'd let you.—Exchange.

Resented.

The Scotchman (during an argument)—Hoot, man, hoot! The Irishman (hotly)—Shure an' O'f' not hoot. Do ye take me for a bloomin' owl?—London Scraps.
