The Two Sinners.

She was a woman, worn and thin, whom the world condemned for a single sin. They cast her out of the King's highway, and passed her by as they went to pray. He was a man, and more to blame, but the world spared him a breath of shame. Beneath his feet he saw her lie, but he raised his head and passed her by. They were the people who went to pray, at the temple of God on that holy day. They scorned the woman, forgave the man; 'twas ever thus since the world began. Time passed on and the woman died; on a cross of shame she was crucified. The world was stern and would not yield and they buried her in a potter's field. The man died too, and they buried him in a casket of cloth with a silver brim. And as they turned from the grave away, said: "We buried a noble man today."

Two mortals knocked on heaven's gate—stood face to face to inquire their fate. He carried a passport with an earthly sign, but she a pardon from love divine. O, ye who judge 'twixt love and vice, which, think ye, entered Paradise? Not he whom the world had said would win, but the woman alone was ushered in.—Exchange.

Men Past Fifty in Danger.

Men past middle life have found comfort and relief in Foley's Kidney Remedy, especially for enlarged prostate gland, which is very common among elderly men. L. E. Morris, Dexter, Ky., writes: "Up to a year ago my father suffered from kidney and bladder trouble and several physicians pronounced it enlargement of the prostate gland and advised an operation. On account of age we were afraid he could not stand it and I recommended Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the first bottle relieved him, and after taking the second bottle he was no longer troubled with his complaint. A. McMillen Druggist."

FOR AGED PEOPLE.

We unhesitatingly and strongly advise the use of Rexal Ordinaries in preference to any other constipation treatment. We so well know their value that we offer to return every cent paid us for them if they fail to give entire satisfaction. They are eaten like candy, are beneficial to the whole system, do not cause any inconvenience or griping, and positively relieve the evils of constipation. Two sizes, 10c. and 25c.

L. W. McConnell. The Rexal Store.

Many of our citizens are drifting towards Bright's disease by neglecting symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble which Foley's Kidney Remedy will quickly cure. A. McMillen, Druggist.

REAL THREAD OF LIFE.

A Tiny Wisp of Tissue Imbedded in the Heart's Walls.

According to tradition, it was Atropes, the blind Fury with the abhorred shears, who slit the thin spun life, and many of Milton's readers may have wondered whether there was any thread in the anatomy of man the severance of which would be immediately fatal. Injuries to the brain and heart, in both of which the principle of life has been supposed to reside, may be survived for shorter or longer periods; but, as an article by Dr. C. E. Lea reminds us, physiologists have of late years discovered a nerve or bundle of nerves which might well be described as the thread of life. One of the developing sciences of our time is cardiography, the science of the heart beat. The heart, as most people are aware, is divided into auricles and ventricles. The ventricles are the pumping chambers; the auricles are the collecting chambers of the blood and, like the stroke of a racing eight, set the rhythm of the heart beat. A little instrument called the sphygmograph is placed on the wrist pulse and magnifies its movements and traces them with a recording pen in a zigzag curve, telling the observer what the ventricles are doing. Another instrument, the polygraph, placed on the jugular, records the more delicate vibrations of the auricle. With the aid of these two instruments the physician can find what all the four chambers of the heart are doing. Now, the auricular contraction acts as a stimulant or starting shock to the ventricular contraction. Most stimuli are conveyed along nerves. Therefore a little nerve in the heart to act as a telegraph wire between auricle and ventricle was to be expected. Such a thing has been found by physiologists; but, rather than a nerve, it is a specialized sensitive portion of the heart muscle itself. It is a little wisp of tissue not an inch long and only one-twelfth of an inch thick. On this delicate communicating wisp, called the auriculo-ventricular bundle, hangs existence itself. Evolution has arranged that it shall be so small and so sheltered in position in the heart that it is rarely damaged even by large injuries to that organ. But if it is severed then the ventricles must stop and life must instantaneously cease.—London Post.

THE POSTOFFICE.

It Seemed to Be Located in a Rather Lonely Place.

A veteran stagecoach driver in Idaho used to tell of an incident that happened when he drove the stage over to Boise City from the Union Pacific line. He had on one trip only a single passenger, a little tenderfoot of a New England schoolman going to take charge of a school in that town. She had never before been farther from Boston than the Hudson river. Along about dusk one evening as she sat on the box by the driver and the team wound its way around the shoulder of a bleak mountain a highwayman suddenly stepped into the middle of the road and held up his hand. A cocked rifle rested easily in the hollow of his arm and its muzzle pointed straight at the driver's head. He quickly pulled up.

"Throw over Wells-Fargo's box!" said the man with the gun.

The driver reached down and flung the box into the road; then he started to gather up the reins.

"Hold on!" the other cried impatiently. "Where's the mail bag? Don't you think I want that?"

For reply the driver swiftly kicked it overboard.

"All right," said the man on the ground in affable tone; "you can drive on now."

For half a mile they rolled along in silence, schoolman and driver. The former seemed to be in deep study. At last, turning to the driver, she said, "I don't know anything about the west, of course, but that certainly does seem to be an awfully lonesome place to have a postoffice."—Washington Post.

A Useless Implement.

Aunt Ann Arkwright, the bustling spouse of Uncle Joshua Arkwright, proudly showed him a silver implement which a friend had given her as a birthday present. It was shaped something like a spatula, but broadened considerably toward the handle. Uncle Joshua inspected it with some curiosity.

"What is it?" he asked.

"Haven't you any idea?" she said.

"No, not the least in the world."

"Well," said Aunt Ann, "it's a ple knife."

Uncle Joshua poked it up, inspected it critically and laid it down again.

"I haven't any use for it," he said.

"As far as I'm concerned it's too wide. I couldn't eat pie with it 'thout cutting my mouth."—Youth's Companion.

Dyed Articles.

In dyeing at home amateurs often make the mistake of putting the dyed article through the wringer, possibly to avoid staining the hands for one reason or perhaps hoping to dry the garment more quickly. This, however, should never be done, for the creases so formed are most obstinate and, in fact, often only disappear with wear, despite all pressing. Dyed articles should be squeezed from the bath and hung out of doors to dry.

The Old Pipe.

He was out at the elbows and out at the knees,
But he had an old pipe in his mouth.
He was worse than a rag man by several degrees,
But he had an old pipe in his mouth.
He was out of a job, and his plans had all failed,
He was down in the mouth, and his luck he bewailed.
At the rich man he swore, at monopoly he railed—
But he kept that old pipe in his mouth.
He was woolf and shabby and hungry and lame,
But he had his old pipe in his mouth.
He had saved little money—he was not to blame,
For he must have a pipe in his mouth.
He would go "out to mark it"—an every-day joke,
And you knew what he'd say ere a sentence he spoke.
"A penny for bread and five cents for a smoke,"
Oh, he must have that pipe in his mouth!
His wife sewed by lamplight, to drive the wolf hence,
(And to keep that old pipe in his mouth.)
And he said between puffs: "We must cut our expense."
But he kept that old pipe in his mouth.
Kind charity, come without further delay,
This woman may die—what will happen, then, pray?
Here's a case you must help. Shall I tell you the way?
Just take that old pipe from his mouth.
—Hattie H. Louthan, in Beacon Light.

I know of a fatal poison,
A deadlier never was seen.
A few drops of it will kill you, I'm sure,
They call this bad stuff nicotine.
We spend as much cash for tobacco as coal—
Or our nation does, rather, I mean.
Of course you and I would not do such a thing
As ever to touch nicotine.

Word from Delta, Colorado, was received Sunday by A. F. McCord of the death of J. M. Epperly, who was for many years a resident of Bartley and a member of the G. A. R. Post here. His many friends here are grieved to hear of his death and sympathize with his daughters with whom he had been living.

Another fine rain here, Monday morning, when one and eight-tenths of an inch fell without wind. Small grain prospect is fine and alfalfa is just ready to cut. Corn is doing well. Small fruit and garden stuff in good supply and the potato prospect was never better. Roses are freely blooming, birds are sweetly singing and all nature is seemingly helping us to be happy.

Word was received here Tuesday of the sudden death of Mrs. Samuel Bentley, last week at Edgar, Nebr. Mr. and Mrs. Bentley were for several years residents on a farm near Bartley and had many friends, who sorrow to hear the sad news of Mrs. Bentley's death.

G. W. Jones is having a concrete walk laid along the east part of his residence property. S. R. Grisell is in charge of the work.

Several loads of hogs were sold in Bartley Tuesday at $7.10 per cwt. This is good for those who have to sell but not so good for those who must buy. Jas. Sipe ships this week to Denver and E. E. Smith to Omaha.

Good milling wheat is selling here this week for $1.10 per bushel.

To avoid serious results take Foley's Kidney Remedy at the first sign of kidney or bladder disorder such as backache, urinary irregularities, exhaustion, and you will soon be well. Commence taking Foley's Kidney Remedy today.

MARION.

Mrs. Wm. Pryor of Cedar Bluff is in town on business, Thursday afternoon.
