Why Smith Sold Out His Saloon

"I hear that Smith has just sold out his saloon," said one of a couple of middle aged men who sat sipping their beer and eating a bit of cheese in an American saloon.

"Yes," responded the other, rather slowly.

"What was the reason? I thought he was just coming money there."

The other nodded a cracker abstractedly for a moment, and then said: "Smith, you know, lives on Mt. Washington, right near me, where he has an excellent wife, a nice home, and three as pretty children as ever played out doors. Smith is a pretty respectable sort of a citizen—never drinks or gambles, and thinks the world of his family."

"When he went home one afternoon last week and found his wife out shopping, he went through the house into the back yard, and there under the apple tree were the three little fellows playing. They had a bench and some bottles and tumblers, and were playing 'keep saucen.' He noticed that they were drinking something out of a pail, and that they acted tipsy. The youngest, who was behind the bar, had a towel tied around his waist, and was setting the drinks up pretty freely."

"Smith walked over and looked in the pail. It was beer, and two of the boys were so drunk that they staggered. A neighbor's boy, two years older, lay asleep behind the tree."

"Boys, you must not drink that!" he said, as he lifted the six-year-old from behind the bench.

"We're playin' s'loon, Papa; an' I was sellin' it just like you," said the little fellow.

"Smith poured out the beer, carried the drunken boy home, and then took his own boys in and put them to bed. When his wife came back she found him crying like a child."

"He came down town that night and sold out his business, and says he will not sell or drink another drop of liquor. His wife told mine about it, and she broke down crying, while she told it."

This is a true story, but the name was not Smith.—Exchange.

Testifies After Four Years.

Carlisle Center, N. Y., G. B. Burbans, writes: "About four years ago I wrote you that I had been entirely cured of kidney trouble by taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy, and after four years I am again pleased to state that I never had any return of those symptoms, and I am evidently cured to stay cured." Foley's Kidney Remedy will do the same for you. A. McMillen.

A Mistaken Idea....

Some people have an idea that in order to have a bank account, they must have a large sum to deposit; that the bank does not care to be bothered by small accounts.

This, however, is not true of the First National Bank. This bank welcomes new accounts, whether of $1 or $1,000, and the same courtesy and service is accorded the small depositor, as those in more fortunate circumstances.

It is our object and wish to serve the public in financial matters in a manner that shall be satisfactory to all—old or young, rich or poor.

We Want Your Banking Business and will be pleased to have you open an account with us.
