HASTINGS, NEBRASKA.

Improvements at the Immaculate Conception Academy.

The sisters of St. Dominic at the Immaculate Conception Academy, Hastings, Neb., are completing the building of their institution. The most modern improvements in the manner of lighting, heating, plumbing etc., are installed. The school, in both the building itself and in the methods of educating, is patterned after the best schools in the country.

A modern and complete physical and chemical laboratory, and a new and thoroughly equipped gymnasium are among the additions to the educational departments. These will give the academy a curriculum of studies that will compete with any in the state.

Miss Marguerite Higgins, a graduate of Dr. Sargent's Normal School of Physical Education at Harvard, Cambridge, Mass., is in charge of the physical department at the academy. Besides the Swedish and German American systems of gymnastics, there will be taught athletics indoor and outdoor, basket-ball, baseball, captain-ball indoor and outdoor etc., social aesthetic and folk-dancing, fencing, club-swinging etc.

There will also be a special corrective department for children with spinal curvature, round-shoulders, drooping head etc.

The work for boys and girls will be conducted separately and many contests and competitions in the various games will be held between the different classes.

The department is planned so that each child may get a certain per cent of individual attention, also that the greatest benefit and enjoyment for the child may be obtained.

There will also be similar outside classes for the mothers and young ladies from surrounding towns.

No pains will be spared to make this an ideal convent boarding school for girls.

Of Course.

"Don't you like that quotation from Shakespeare. 'The friends thou hast, and their adoption tried, grapple them to thy soul with hoops of steel!'" he asked, soulfully. "I think hoops of gold would be better," said the girl shyly.

PRINCETON'S COMET JUBILEE

Wild Night Waiting For Swish of Halley's Visitor's Tail.

GREAT PARADE OF STUDENTS.

How They Stormed the Observatory and Carried Off Comet Chaser Zachaeus Daniel—Catching Marching Song—Very Little Sleep For the Town.

Eight hundred comet crazed students stormed the observatory in Princeton, N. J., at midnight on May 18, kidnaped Zachaeus Daniel, the astronomer, and compelled him to make two speeches. The comet hunter was carried in triumph through the campus to the lawn in front of President Woodrow Wilson's house.

It was a great night for Princeton. The demonstration started right after the senior singing and plunged the timorous among the townfolk into terror. Well it might, for the uproar sounded like the breaking up of a boiler factory or a million cook stoves falling from the Milky way.

It began on the campus with the firing of every shotgun and revolver that could be secured up within the college precincts, then to the music of four drums, a bugle and two fifes the "parade," as they call it at Princeton, started. It was the biggest "peeraade" ever got together in the university's history. In it were youths in bathrobes, pajamas and anything else that seemed appropriate costume for comet gazing.

Hunted Comet Hunter.

To the tune of "Whoop'er up for Halley's comet—siss-boom-aah!" the parade marched round and round the campus for a while, and then somebody started a yell for Zach Daniel. Immediately the celebration swung off toward Prospect avenue, firing roman candles, revolvers and guns. The comet hunter and reporter were on their way to the campus to see what the rumpus was about when they encountered the parade.

"Say, I'm going to get out of here," said the astronomer nervously and slipped behind a bush and so escaped for the time being.

The parade deployed on the lawn in front of the observatory, yelling "Zach, Zach! We want Zach!" and then, seeing no lights about the place, it was decided to take it by storm. Three students formed a human ladder against the wall, and several light-weights shinned up them to the platform leading to the dome.

"Find Zach and bring him out," were the orders; but, no Zach being found, they amused themselves by squinting through the telescope and working the dome machinery. Suddenly Zach, who had ventured out of hiding to make sure no damage was done to his beloved instruments, was spied. Instantly the mob fell on him and hoisted him shoulder high.

Carried Him Away.

"Speech, speech, speech!" they yelled, while roman candles flared and "the band" played furiously.

"Boys, I can't speak," pleaded the comet hunter from his perch.

"You must! Speech, speech! Whoop'er up for Zach!"

"Well, we are now in the tail of the comet."

"Oh, get out!"

"Quit your kidding!"

"It's lost its tail!"

"Oh, you Zach!"

"Oh, you comet!"

Despite his pleadings the astronomer was borne off amid a meteor shower of remarks like the foregoing. Straight across the campus they took him to President Wilson's house. This time the marching song was—

Comet, comet, you've got no tail! What the Halley do we care? What the Halley do we care?

In front of President Wilson's house, that dignitary not appearing in response to insistent demands, the students again forced Zach to make a speech.

"Why aren't we dead?" yelled one.

"Because we are alive," replied the astronomer, and with that they let him escape. The "peeraade" kept on till nearly midnight, when it broke up from sheer exhaustion.

There was Comet Crazy. Princeton went comet crazy at night, and there was no sleep for the just, even had the latter felt inclined for it, which incidentally they did not. From 8 in the evening, when the senior class—a senior singer, to be Princetonian—gathered on benches in front of Nassau hall and made the campus ring with college songs, till long after midnight Princeton celebrated the comet. Nassau street held its throngs of bareheaded "sops," "juniors" and pretty girls.

If you have never been at a senior singing you don't know what you've missed. The juniors and townies stand or lie on the grass of the campus while the moon—when there is one, as there was the other night—plays peek-a-boo with the old green elms and makes a black and white shadow crazy quilt on the "camp." The senior class, massed on benches, sit in the dark shadow of Nassau hall, the group illuminated only from time to time when somebody lights a pipe or a cigarette. There must be no applause except for solos or angry senior whistles confound the offender.

THE DEAN OF THE AMERICAN PLATFORM

Frank Dixon Coming to Chautauqua with Eloquent Message.

It is interesting to know something of the personal life of the notable men who will appear upon the Chautauqua program and to whom we shall listen. If we may know the conditions of birth, of education and the steps whereby they have come to hold the prominent places that they occupy in the public eye it adds spice to the thoughts that they leave with us.

Dr. Frank Dixon is without a doubt the most finished and logical speaker on the American platform today. He will be on our program. Who is he and why?

Dixon was born in North Carolina, the youngest of three sons born to Rev. Thomas Dixon. By every right he was destined for a typical southern gentleman, "to the manor born." The eldest brother of the family is now a prominent preacher in Chicago. Thomas Dixon Jr., is a preacher, lecturer and the noted author of "Leopard Spots" and other southern stories. The subject of this sketch was educated in the university of his home state and later took a course in theology and became a Baptist clergyman. He was a successful preacher and was pastor of one of the largest churches at Hartford, Connecticut, when he resigned to go upon the platform as a popular lecturer.

As a preacher Dr. Dixon was "different." He was a "man's preacher" and his later charges had become noted for the originality of his pulpit addresses. In his Hartford church he had a large proportion of the influential men of the city interested in the social and civic work that was organized by the church and executed through active committees.

As a young man in college he had given especial attention to sociologic research and his intellect overrode every tradition of his birth and station as an aristocrat.

The first lecture prepared was "The Man Against the Mass." It took from the start. He beheaded special privilege and pleaded for a square deal for the common folk.

Mr. Dixon is pre-eminently an orator—a deep thinker, a logical reasoner, an eloquent and dramatic speaker. Added to these accomplishments he has a rare and refined sense of humor that he uses as the vehicle to carry some of his weightiest arguments home to his hearers. His personal appearance, tall, slender and graceful, is an additional asset that Nature has bestowed upon this worthy son of the Southland.

It is worthy of note that Mr. Dixon is devotedly fond of his family and they spend as much as possible of their time together at their Dixonside home, ~~which is from a railway, on the banks of Chesapeake Bay, where they have some of the best Jersey cows and some of the purest bred chickens that are raised in the United States.~~

A GREAT ORCHESTRA.

Here is a musical organization of lady artists, led by the talented violinist and director, Alfred Metzendorf, that outshines them all in real ability to play to the varied tastes of a mixed audience. In the first place, they are women. That fact assures the quality of sympathy that has made music the one universally loved class of entertainment. They are artists of first grade. They carry a brass quartette, always popular. Their instrumentation is balanced and capable of the volume needed in large auditoriums. Their soloists are delightful. They are equally at home in the heaviest and more popular numbers. Their programs are varied to all musical tastes.

The leader, Alfred Metzendorf, is a violinist of fame. He is a crank on the question of rehearsals. He allows no number on the program until it is thoroughly mastered in every detail. Rehearsals are held daily that nothing may be lost. He has brought this orchestra to a point of perfection that has made standing room desirable wherever it has appeared. Our people will be glad to learn that the Redpath Chautauqua System will bring this splendid organization to our Chautauqua this season.

Don't Waste Time and Effort.

Old ways of housecleaning are tiresome and take much unnecessary effort. Your time and strength are worth a good deal. Save time and look into this more satisfactory way. Forget that old ancient methods exist. Get the all-round, handy cleanser that has saved hours of work and lots of worry for the women of today. Old Dutch Cleanser is the short and easy route to simplified housekeeping. See how much easier it makes your work. Old Dutch Cleanser scrubs all kinds of floors and painted walls; scours all sorts of metal and enameled surfaces and polishes them, too; it cleans everything thoroughly and quickly. No acids, caustics, alkali or grit in it. It means relief from hard work and lots of satisfaction.

He Met It on the Road.

He didn't wait for prosperity to come. The very minute they told him it was on the road, he said: "Maybe the horses'll get stalled, and the driver all froze up; so I'll just meet it halfway, and help get the wheels out the mire, and give it a fresh start; then, when it looks like smooth sailing, I'll hop on, and take a seat by the driver, and we'll go whistling into town!"—Atlanta Constitution.
