A Pacific Coast Trip.

Turning still more to the left along the Sierra Madre range, Mount Wilson or "Old Baldy", meets our view, and turning around seemingly we can look over the whole world; with a balloon or air ship it might be possible to reach our starting point in a few minutes, but having only a part of the material, we are compelled to return as we came.

Before leaving Los Angeles, it is only fair that we mention some of the more pretentious hotels and stores. Among the fine hotels are the Angelus, Wickershim, Alexandria, and at Long Beach, the Virginia is a model of grandeur and beauty, each of these cost from one to three million dollars. Will leave it for you to decide which is the finest. There are many other good moderate-price hotels, with good accommodations and centrally located.

The great department stores include Hamburgers, the largest west of Chicago, Bullocks, and others compare favorably with the large stores of Denver.

Anticipating a daylight journey along the coast from Los Angeles to Santa Cruz, we left Los Angeles in the morning.

Over the Coast Line of the Southern Pacific Ry. Passing Santa Barbara, with its plaza, ocean boulevard and the old mission. On along the coast while the cool sea breezes make life worth living. Carmel-by-the-Sea, a quiet old Spanish town, Carmel mission, in the shadow of which now dwell artists and writers, between the shade of the pines and the shine of the snow white sand on the beach, which is as soft as velvet.

And after awhile we reach the bay of Monterey and that old semi-Spanish town Monterey; this was California's first capital. The first brick and wood buildings in California were here, the first theatre and postoffice.

It was just after dark that we reached Santa Cruz, and were met at the station by Mrs. Georgia Waite, and escorted directly to her home, where her mother also awaited our coming; both of them friends of ours, formerly in Green Bay, Wis., and now living in Santa Cruz, California. Enjoyed a splendid visit with them, making our stay in Santa Cruz doubly pleasant, and we did have a fine time in Santa Cruz. The bathing was fine. The casino, nataratorium and pier are the scene of merry making. The city is situated on the shore of Monterey bay. Picturesquely set on terraced hills, ever green in that remarkable climate, and having lofty mountains for a background. More than a mile of beach extends north to a rocky coast where the sea thunders incessantly on the rocks.

Santa Cruz can boast of the finest berries found any where on our trip, the Logan berry, a cross between the California wild blackberry and red raspberry, was first grown here. The strawberries are the finest ever and the season lasts six and eight months. The grove of Big Trees, near Santa Cruz is very accessible, only six miles distant. Just a few words about the big trees, as they are popularly called, found only in California. Their botanical name is sequoia. There are two varieties, the sequoia sempervirens or redwood and grows in extensive forests on the coast side of the coast range, and the sequoia gigantea the real big tree, which is found only on the western slope of the Sierra Nevada, usually at an elevation of about 5,000 feet. These trees when grown are symmetrical in height and girth. The bark varies from one to two feet in thickness, and is a bright cinnamon color.

The "grizzly giant," Mariposa grove is 33 feet in diameter, the first limb twenty feet around, and 125 feet from the ground. There are many others nearly as large. The redwoods near Santa Cruz vary from 18 to 23 feet through and about 300 feet tall, and some in the Mariposa grove tower a little over 400 feet.

Both trees are evergreens and bear small cones, the seeds of which are flat like a parsnip seed. Estimates as to the age of these monarchs, by different authorities, vary considerably; some claim 4,000 and some of the best professors declare that the largest trees may be even 6,000 years old.

Regardless of these differences, the one great undisputed fact remains, that these trees in all their majesty, stand here today, the oldest living things in the world.

The ride from Santa Cruz to San Francisco, a distance of eighty miles, is through much fine timber, and rolling country, many fine ranches and dairy farms. Quite a number of small thrifty looking towns speak well of this section.

They Have a Definite Purpose.

Foley Kidney Pills give quick relief in cases of kidney and bladder ailments. Mrs. Rose Glaser, Terre Haute, Ind., tells the result in her case. "After suffering for many years from a serious case of kidney trouble and spending much money for so called cures, I found Foley Kidney Pills the only medicine that gave me permanent cure. I am again able to be up and attend to my work. I shall never hesitate to recommend them." A. McMillen.

The state fair this year is offering premiums in cash to the amount of $2,650.00 for county exhibits in agricultural farm products. The state has been divided into three sections, western, central, and eastern, for the amount of premiums offered is an inducement for any county to make a display of their agricultural products. Additional premiums are offered for individual exhibits. The state fair this year will be held Sept. 5 to 9, and counties contemplating an exhibit should begin to get ready. Premium lists may be had from W. R. Mellor, Secretary, Lincoln.

For Quick Relief From Hay Fever.

Asthma and summer bronchitis, take Foley's Honey and Tar. It quickly relieves the discomfort and suffering and the annoying symptoms disappear. It soothes and heals the inflamed air passages of the head, throat and bronchial tubes. It contains no opiates and no harmful drug. Refuse substitutes. A. McMillen.

Dysentery is a dangerous disease but can be cured.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy has been successfully used in nine epidemics of dysentery. It has never been known to fail. It is equally valuable for children and adults, and when reduced with water and sweetened, it is pleasant to take. Sold by A. McMILLEN, Druggist.

GAEKWAR CAN AFFORD GIFTS.

Tributes to King George Cannot Dent Enormous Fortune.

The gaeikwar of Baroda is now in the United States on his way to England and has with him gifts for the new king which are reported to be of extraordinary splendor and value. The maharajah can well afford to be liberal, for he is one of the world's richest men.

His collection of jewels is said to be the finest in the world. He possesses a diamond necklace that is surpassed nowhere. It is composed of 200 brilliants of marvelous purity and would easily sell for more than a million dollars.

Another of his treasures is a carpet four yards square in which are woven rubies, diamonds and pearls to the value of $4,000,000. It represents three years' work by skilled artists and jewelers.

Novelty In Equine Headgear.

A new style of horse's hat has appeared on the east side of New York city. The inventor, a driver, says that it is more sightly than the old straw hat and protects and satisfies those comfort requirements which the other did not. In shape the new headpiece resembles a tennis racket. The flap is meant to extend far enough downward between the eyes to protect the brain, which, the designer says, lies beneath a horse's forehead and not between his ears, as the old hat would seem to indicate. The smaller end is fashioned to extend backward and fasten to the top of the bridle. The inventor hopes to make his creation the fashion.

Telltale Envelope.

Luther W. Charlton of Washington has invented an envelope that cannot be opened without detection. A spoon shaped tongue is cut in the flap of the ordinary envelope, to which it remains attached by a slender stem. The under flap of the envelope has two folds on the inside, under which the shoulders of the spoon shaped tongue rest when the envelope is closed and sealed.

Help from the Outside.

"Was it hard work for you to quit smoking?" "No, when my wife once made up her mind to it."—Boston Herald.

CAUSES CLASH WITH POPE

Rev. B. M. Tipple, Head of Methodists in Rome, Figures in Fairbanks Incident.

New York.—The man who was at almost directly responsible for the situation in Rome, when the pope denied an audience to a former vice-president of the United States, Charles W. Fairbanks, went to the Italian capital from New York. He is Rev. Bertrand Martin Tipple, in charge of the American Methodist Episcopal church in Rome.

Dr. Tipple is a forceful man, the embodiment of tremendous energy. Because of his great patriotism, it is said, he rejoiced in the opportunity to welcome Mr. Fairbanks, and, inasmuch as Mr. Fairbanks is a Methodist, Dr. Tipple expected the event would prove a notable one in the history of the American church.

Friends of the minister assert there was no thought during all the preliminary arrangements of an affront to the vatican, and that when the clash became apparent he offered to release the former vice-president from his engagement to address the Methodist congregation. Mr. Fairbanks, however, insisted on fulfilling his appointment, exercising care to avoid saying anything which might offend the Roman church, even praising the work of that organization in his address before the Protestant body.

Dr. Tipple has been in Rome only four months. He was educated at the Cazenovia seminary in this state, at Syracuse university and at the Drew Theological seminary. He was a member of the New York East conference from 1887 to 1909, serving three churches in New Haven, Brooklyn and Stamford, Conn.

As an example of his energy, he raised the money in two years; while stationed in Brooklyn, to burn a $40,000 mortgage. At Stamford he secured the gift of $50,000 with which to establish an old people's home, and he opened a home for self-supporting women.

WILL HONOR A STATESMAN

Statue of John C. Calhoun to Be Accepted by Senate on March 10.

Washington.—The senate on motion of Senator Tillman has set aside March 12 for the exercises at which the statue of John C. Calhoun, contemporary of Clay and Webster, vice-president and secretary of state, will be accepted.

STATUE OF JOHN C. CALHOUN

The statue has been placed in statutory hall in the capitol and Senator Tillman will deliver the chief address. The statue is the gift of the state of South Carolina, where Calhoun was born.

Ticket Speculators Victorious.

The ticket speculators in front of the theaters in Berlin, against whom the directors have made war, will remain active in their business. The authorities have decided that the speculators cannot be driven away from their haunts, but that they must not block traffic. The manager agreed to keep in reserve a certain number of tickets for every performance for those people who came late, and, inasmuch as the police cannot break up the business, they intend to petition for a law making the vending of tickets on the sidewalks a misdemeanor.

EDITOR SYMBOL OF RACE ADVANCE

Arrived in America Thirty-five Years Ago From Tyrol.

THOUGHT LOCOMOTIVE DEVIL.

Oklahoman Believes His Career Typifies Progress of Man In Last 400 Years and Is Proud of Fortunes He Has Won and Lost During His Life In the United States.

John Golobie of Guthrie, Okla., who is proprietor of the Oklahoma State Register, came to New York not only to see Colonel Roosevelt, but to see Castle Garden again after thirty-five years. Mr. Golobie was just ten years old when he saw it the first and last time, and he has mostly forgotten what language he spoke then. His English is perfect.

Mr. Golobie said that his life epitomizes the history of civilization and progress in the world the last four centuries.

"I don't know," said Mr. Golobie, "whether I was born a Dalmatian, a Croatian, an Istrian or what, but I do know that I came from a little district in the Austrian Tyrol, and I was only ten years old when I left. They had just heard of this country in that part of the world. I know the idea thereabout was that the earth was flat and square and on wheels, and they used to say in our village whenever we would feel the jar of an earthquake of which the full force was being felt in Italy, 'Oh, that is one of the earth's wheels jolting over a stone.'"

"They did not have locomotives in that part of the world then. There was talk of a railroad being built, but the people of our village opposed it on the ground that anything driven by fire and smoke must perforce be by the machination of the devil. I was a victim of primogeniture, and my mother had saved up to give me a chance in the world. When she heard of America she determined to send me here, and I came alone, except that a German woman who spoke a little of my language took me in charge on the journey.

"I know that in Castle Garden they shot us up the wrong chute and put us in with a bunch of people whose language we did not speak. In fact, I never found anybody that did. I was a year and a half learning enough English to get along with, and I was by turns a dry nurse, a woodchopper and as I got a little older a shoemaker.

"When the Wichita boom came along I, who had gone first into insurance and then into real estate in Kansas, made $18,000 in about six months. I reinvested it again and lost it all. Then I took to writing. Considering that I sprang from darkness like that of the middle ages, I claim that my career about typifies the progress of man in the last 400 years."

$40,000 PRIMARY A PHANTOM

Congressmen Fear Sibley Will Cause National Publicity Bill.

Congressmen in Washington, especially those who do not want to pass a publicity bill for campaign receipts and expenditures, were talking in dark corners about the expenditure of $40,000 by ex-Representative Joseph C. Sibley, hero of the Archbold letter episode, who has just defeated his successor, Representative Wheeler, for the Republican nomination for congress in the Twenty-eighth Pennsylvania district.

Inasmuch as Mr. Sibley's total remuneration, counting all perquisites to his office, if re-elected to congress, will be only about $18,500 in two years, it is difficult to understand why he wants to go back to Washington when his primary nomination alone stands him a dead loss of $22,000 and he has yet to be elected, wait more than a year before taking his seat and then live two years after that. One answer is contained in Mr. Sibley's complaint about the criticism leveled against his extravagance. The gist of his argument is:

"I have plenty of money, and I want to go back to congress. Why shouldn't I?"

BERLIN HAS A NEW MIDGET.

Prince Atom Is Two Feet In Height, but Smart.

What is alleged to be the smallest midget ever exhibited is now filling an engagement at a vaudeville theater in Berlin under the name of Prince Atom. He is just over two feet tall, his height being about the same as the diameter of a phonograph horn. His parents were of normal size. He is normal in his proportions, and his mind is well developed. He is also good natured, and he loves to chat with the children who flock to see him perform athletic feats and swing the dumbbells.

America Heads Philippine Exports.

Manila, Iloilo and Cebu are the chief importing and exporting Philippine ports, Manila leading, followed by Cebu. The United States leads all other countries in both imports and exports. In imports the order is principally, United States, Great Britain, French East Indies (rice), China, Australasia, Germany, Japan, Spain, France, British East Indies and Hongkong.
